Are Greenbugs Bugging You?

Now that Richard Nixon is so much Watergate over the dam there may not be much bugging you except taxes, inflation and Schizaphis graminum.

Just in case you've been wondering what the little green bug is which has invaded Lincoln, you're right . . . for oddly enough, that's what it is popularly called: Greenbug. But if you want to impress people call it Schizaphis graminum, the scientific name.

If you're a farmer you'll call it by some expletive deleteds since it is the single most damaging pest on grass-like crops such as milo and sorghum.

Extension entromologist David Feith said that occasionally, such as this week, the Greenbug produces winged forms (Schizaphis is an aphid — normally wingless), and that clouds of them swarm their wind-aided way out of the fields and into the cities.

While Greenbugs bug farmers in an economic way, they just plain bug city dwellers and gardeners because they only get in your hair, eyes and ears, not flowers and typical garden crops.

The present flight of Greenbugs will probably be gone by the weekend, Keith said Tuesday.

Ford Makes Contacts

. . . Olive Branch Extended To Meany

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford moved ahead Tuesday in his efforts to consolidate his new presidency, making personal contacts ranging from big labor to city hall.

He extended the olive branch at an unexpected meeting with AFL-CIO President George Meany, who had not been invited to the White House in the Nixon administration for more than a year.

"The President hopes the meeting will serve to help the Ford administration establish good relations with the AFL-CIO and with a great labor leader," Press Secretary Jerald terHorst said after the 45-minute Ford-Meany meeting.

Following up on the anti-inflation theme of his speech to Congress Monday night, Ford issued his first veto, rejecting an estimated $2 million in proposed pay increases for deputy U.S. marshals.

And he called in 14 mayors and 15 governors for meetings Wednesday and Thursday to discuss their problems and his own.

Mayor Joseph L. Alioto of San Francisco, president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said he hoped the meeting would foster "a new spirit of cooperation with the federal government ..."

Ford also attended to foreign policy matters, conferring with Secretary of State Henry A. Kisinger and preparing for a "working luncheon" meeting with visiting Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy at the White House Wednesday.

Ford is still commuting to work from his suburban Alexandria, Va., home, reporting to the Oval Office by 8 a.m.

Aides reported Ford "very relaxed" on his fifth day in office — his busiest so far. It included almost hourly appointments morning and afternoon, with get-acquainted private meetings with the Joint Chiefs of Staff and a gathering of some 200 sub-cabinet level presidential appointees.

Between meetings, President Ford talked on the phone to some of his friends on Capitol Hill, including several high-level congressional Democrats.

Spokesman terHorst gave an official hint Tuesday that Ford may already be changing his mind about not seeking a second term.

"No decision has been made," terHorst said about the possibility of a Ford race in 1976. That was a major departure from Ford's own statements since he was nominated as vice president last October that he was not interested in seeking the presidency in 1976.

Ford said Monday night he was not making the formal State of the Union address then and added: "God willing, I will have at least three more chances to do that."

TerHorst said Ford was moving ahead with plans for a summit meeting on the economy sometime after Labor Day and wth his efforts to get the Cost of Living Council reinstated by Congress to serve "at minimum" as a wage-price monitoring agency. Democrats in Congress were pushing that legislation ahead on their agenda Tuesday.

Reaction to Ford's unity speech before Congress Monday night was reported to be good both at home and abroad, terHorst said, describing Ford as "very pleased with the reaction he has seen and that has come to his attention."

Ford's schedule for picking a vice presidential candidate by the end of the week was progressing on schedule.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said a sealed envelope with vice presidential recommendations from Senate Republicans was turned over Tuesday to White House congressional liaison aides. "I think no decision has been made," Scott told reporters, "and I doubt if the President will start reducing the list until at least tomorrow (Wednesday)."

Meanwhile, terHorst said Ford was exercising his prerogative to take another look at about 100 presidential appointments, made by former President Nixon and awaiting confirmation in the Senate. But, White House sources said, there probably will be few changes, if any, in these pending appointments.

Also announced was Ford's first speech-making trip as President — to address the VFW's 75th National Convention in Chicago Monday. It was a date Ford had accepted as vice president and it was looked upon as a good audience now for President Ford to give a speech on national security and foreign policy.

Waldron Proposes Vote On Pay Raise

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. J. James Waldron of North Platte Tuesday suggested that the Legislature call itself into special session to propose a November vote of the people on a proposal to increase legislative salaries.

Waldron offered the suggestion to members of the Unicameral's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee, but got no takers.

"That's not a very popular thought," Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City said.

Voters last May rejected a proposal to boost senatorial salaries from $400 to $675 a month. The $400 ceiling is contained in the state constitution.

'Read Bad Reaction'

Another effort this year to increase salaries might produce "a real bad reaction," Murphy said.

But Waldron noted that the Legislature will have to wait until the 1976 elections to propose another pay hike if it doesn't place such a proposition on this year's general election ballot.

Senators are "underpaid," he said, and voters might be willing to help them recover some of their real income loss due to inflation by providing a boost.

Waldron, the committee chairman, said he will schedule hearings later this year on political campaign practices.

Such hearings might lead toward legislative proposals on public financing, campaign spending limits, alteration of Nebraska's primary election date and institution of an "open primary" system, he said.

The Legislature has been engaged in "piecemeal" reform of campaign practices, Waldron said.

The proposal to move the primary date from May to September is designed to shorten the general election campaign.

Under an "open primary" system, voters could choose either a Republican or Democratic ballot.

Waldron also urged the committee to schedule a trip to North Platte to inspect a hospital building which, he said, could serve as a office building consolidating state services in the area.

The building, which is being abondoned, could be purchased for about $500,000, Waldron estimated.

In other action, the committee heard a suggestion from former Sen. Ross Rasmussen that Omaha's vacated Union Pacific Station be used as a museum to depict the history of transportation.

'Main Highway'

Rail, wagon and river transportation opened the West, Rasmussen said, and "Nebraska served as the main highway."

Rasmussen said he would like to see the old river boat Bertrand and its artifacts located in such a museum.

The Bertrand was found buried on the DeSoto Bend national wildlife refuge some 20 miles upstream on the Missouri River from Omaha.

Rasmussen said it should be relocated in an area along Interstate 80 where it could be accessible to as many people as possible.

Waldron said he would schedule hearings in Omaha at a later date to consider Rasmussen's idea.

Maddox In Early Lead

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, a segregationist seeking a second term as governor, took a strong early lead over 11 other opponents in Tuesday's Democratic gubernatorial primary, but appeared headed for a runoff.

Calhoun banker Bert Lance, 43, and State Rep. George Busbee, 47, of Albany, were locked in a see-saw battle for second place.

If no candidate wins 50 per cent of the vote, the top two finishers will meet in a Sept. 3 runoff.

With 442 of Georgia's 2,200 precincts counted, Maddox had 52,532 votes or 38.5 per cent.

Busbee had 27,491 votes or 19.91 per cent. Lance, a former state highway director, had 25,004 votes or 18.11 per cent.

The other Democratic contestants, including former U.S. Sen. David Gambrell, were far behind in the early returns.

In the five-way Republican gubernatorial primary, Macon Mayor Ronnie Thompson took a firm lead with 2,377 votes or 44.3 per cent.

Maddox, 58, a former governor who campaigned briefly for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1968, was elected lieutenant governor in 1970 after the courts rejected his challenge to a law prohibiting him from succeeding himself as governor.

U.S. Sen. Herman Talmadge, 61, an 18-year Capitol Hill veteran who served on the special Watergate committee, won renomination in a race against veterinarian Carlton Myers.

In one of the key state Senate races, black state legislator Julian Bond, 34, defeated little-known black minister Charles Scott. With all but one precinct counted Bond had 6,078, or 78.3 per cent, to 1,676, or 21.7 for Scott.

Maddox was Georgia's governor from 1967 to 1971 and campaigned strongly on his record.

He finished the campaign with a last-minute endorsement from the Ku Klux Klan — an endorsement he immediately rejected.

25% Boost In County Tax Bill Appears Likely

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

It appeared Tuesday night that Lancaster County residents can expect a 25% increase in the county portion of their tax bill for the upcoming year.

Following a public hearing which attracted about 40 county residents, the commissioners indicated no significant changes in the proposed $21.2 million 1974-75 fiscal year budget and scheduled a meeting Thursday for adopting a budget.

Any major changes which the board would make in the proposed budget must be advertised again prior to the board's adoption of a budget and setting the levy.

Of the total record proposed expenditures, $6.05 million will need to be raised by taxation as compared with $4.5 million last year.

Based on the $565,220,426 certified valuation, the levy for proposed expenditures would be about 10.7 mills as compared with 8.63 mills last year, and 11.7 mills the previous year.

This means that the owner of a $20,000 home will be paying about $75 for the county portion of his tax bill as compared with $60 last year, and $82 the previous year.

Former commissioners and commissioner candidates were present at the hearing to voice their views and concerns about proposed expenditures.

Former commissioner William Grossman said that it should be noted that many items previously included in the commissioners miscellaneous (CM) fund have been transferred to the individual department budgets.

The $400,000 increase in the CM fund would be doubled if these items had not been transferred, he said.

"It makes you look pretty good," he told the board, but "the department heads are forced to account for the added increases" in their budgets.

Another former commissioner, Ralph Harlan, urged the board's awareness of the drought problems in the county.

Harlan, who is again seeking election to the post now held by County Board Chairman Robert Colin, said that many of the county's farmers will not be able to pay their taxes because of the drought.

He said he commended the board on its detailed budget and was not criticizing its proposed expenditures but urged the board "to look at this thing realistically."

"There's got to be a stop" to higher taxes, he said.

Singer said he had lived to be 63 years old and had been in business for 35 years and "I owe the bank more money today while years ago I owed nothing."

County Treasurer Frank Golden, pointing to some of the community development and human services areas of proposed expenditures, said:

"This isn't holding the line. We ought to stay in line with the President's request to hold the line," he said.

Speaking out in support of the area of human services, Bruce Hamilton, who is seeking the commissioner post held by veteran commissioner Kenneth Bourne, said there are many other worthwhile programs and agencies with unmet needs in social concerns.

He criticized the extensive time spent by the city and county in reaching an agreement on the area of human services.

Hamilton also touched on the controversy between the board and County Assessor Fritz Meyer on Meyer's proposed method of equalizing property in the county.

He said he agreed with Commissioner Jan Gauger's dissenting vote on approving the $80,000 requested by Meyer to implement his method of equalizing which "I believe will fail to result in true equalizaton, but I hope a solution can be found."

George Crosby of Capital Association of Retarded Citizens (CARC) expressed pleasure over the board's tentative approval of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) $1,640,454 budget.

He said there are waiting lists of individuals to be served and urged the board's continued support of expansion of the LOMR services.

Mel Hansen urged the county's continued support of the programs for the retired ans senior citizens.

The only county department which appeared at the budget hearing was the sheriff's office.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Del Zieman asked the board to consider approving the leasing of a building for storing the county's helicopter and servicing of sheriff's vehicles.

The vacant building under consideration, he said, is on South Coddington about two blocks south of West O.

The savings in gasoline, parts, mechanic labor, and the amount now paid for leasing a hanger would more than pay for the rental of the property and equipping it, Zieman said.

Shown below are the proposed levies for the 1974-75 fiscal year budget as compared with the corresponding levies last year:

Fund	Proposed Levy	1973-74 Levy
General	3 766	2 509
Lancaster Manor	2 006	1 399
Relief	343	140

Food Export Controls Eyed

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — Key officials within the administration are considering reimposing export controls on food as a means of holding down prices in the face of discouraging crop forecasts.

This is one of a number of inflation-fighting options presented to President Ford in his first days in office.

Former President Nixon's action in placing curbs on the export of soybeans and other grains last June stirred an international uproar among countries dependent on the United States for food supplies, particularly Japan.

However, with food a leading component of the consumer price index and the prospect of foreign bidding for reduced supplies driving up prices even further, key officials are considering what some consider "unpalatable" measures to keep the lid on inflation.

Cyprus Talks Fail; Turkish On Attack

By The Associated Press

Turkish air and ground forces launched large-scale new attacks in northern Cyprus early Wednesday following the collapse of the second round of peace talks in Geneva.

The United Nations Security Council was called into session in New York at 2 a.m. EDT to consider the new threat to peace.

Turkish planes began attacking targets around Nicosia, the Greek Cypriot capital, as dawn was breaking. Fifteen minutes later gunfire erupted all along the so-called Green Line dividing the Greek and Turkish Cypriot quarters of the city.

The Turkish Cypriot radio station said Turkish artillery "is hammering" Kythrea, 18 miles northeast of Nicosia, and Skylloura, 14 miles northwest of the capital.

A Turkish government broadcast said the renewal of military action was ordered "to protect the independence of Cyprus and to provide security for the Turkish community on the island." It charged the Greeks and Greek Cypriots had refused to discuss the Turkish proposals at the Geneva talks and "still considered Cyprus a completely Greek island."

The Greek Cypriot government radio charged Turkey with an "unprovoked and cowardly attack," but the announcer declared: "We shall never surrender. This land is Greek and shall remain Greek."

Thousands of Greek Cypriots fled from their homes in Nicosia, Famagusta and other points in northern Cyprus Tuesday afternoon as it became apparent that the Geneva talks were collapsing.

Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes rejected a proposal by the British and Greek delegations to recess the talks for a cooling-off period of up to 48 hours. British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan, the mediator at the talks, called the Turkish action arbitrary and contended "it would have been possible to work out a solution."

The United States had voiced concern Tuesday over the situation as Turkey called its ambassador in Athens home and declared that its 40,000-man invasion force on Cyprus was "strong enough to occupy the entire island."

In Athens, Premier Constantine Caramanlis of Greece summoned the American, British, Chinese, French and Soviet ambassadors and asked for their help in preventing new fighting on Cyprus.

He lashed out at Turkish cease-fire violations on the island and "the unacceptable Turkish proposals and the intransigent Turkish position" at the Geneva talks. Caramanlis said the situation "can lead to a conflict."

In Geneva, Turkey and the Turkish Cypriots had been pushing for the concentration of scattered Turkish Cypriot communities on Cyprus into one or more large, autonomous areas. But spokesmen for Greece and the majority Greek Cypriots opposed that concept, claiming it would cause huge population displacements.

Reporting U.S. concern in Washington, a spokesman announced the State Department's endorsement of "a greater degree of autonomy" for the Turkish minority on Cyprus.

Waldron Proposes Vote On Pay Raise

25% Boost In County Tax Bill Appears Likely

It appeared Tuesday night that Lancaster County residents can expect a 25% increase in the county portion of their tax bill for the upcoming year.

Following a public hearing which attracted about 40 county residents, the commissioners indicated no significant changes in the proposed $21.2 million 1974-75 fiscal year budget and scheduled a meeting Thursday for adopting a budget.

Food Export Controls Eyed

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — Key officials within the administration are considering reimposing export controls on food as a means of holding down prices in the face of discouraging crop forecasts.

This is one of a number of inflation-fighting options presented to President Ford in his first days in office.

Former President Nixon's action in placing curbs on the export of soybeans and other grains last June stirred an international uproar among countries dependent on the United States for food supplies, particularly Japan.

However, with food a leading component of the consumer price index and the prospect of foreign bidding for reduced supplies driving up prices even further, key officials are considering what some consider "unpalatable" measures to keep the lid on inflation.

Cyprus Talks Fail; Turkish On Attack

By The Associated Press

Turkish air and ground forces launched large-scale new attacks in northern Cyprus early Wednesday following the collapse of the second round of peace talks in Geneva.

The United Nations Security Council was called into session in New York at 2 a.m. EDT to consider the new threat to peace.

Turkish planes began attacking targets around Nicosia, the Greek Cypriot capital, as dawn was breaking. Fifteen minutes later gunfire erupted all along the so-called Green Line dividing the Greek and Turkish Cypriot quarters of the city.

The Turkish Cypriot radio station said Turkish artillery "is hammering" Kythrea, 18 miles northeast of Nicosia, and Skylloura, 14 miles northwest of the capital.

A Turkish government broadcast said the renewal of military action was ordered "to protect the independence of Cyprus and to provide security for the Turkish community on the island." It charged the Greeks and Greek Cypriots had refused to discuss the Turkish proposals at the Geneva talks and "still considered Cyprus a completely Greek island."

The Greek Cypriot government radio charged Turkey with an "unprovoked and cowardly attack," but the announcer declared: "We shall never surrender. This land is Greek and shall remain Greek."

Thousands of Greek Cypriots fled from their homes in Nicosia, Famagusta and other points in northern Cyprus Tuesday afternoon as it became apparent that the Geneva talks were collapsing.

Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes rejected a proposal by the British and Greek delegations to recess the talks for a cooling-off period of up to 48 hours. British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan, the mediator at the talks, called the Turkish action arbitrary and contended "it would have been possible to work out a solution."

The United States had voiced concern Tuesday over the situation as Turkey called its ambassador in Athens home and declared that its 40,000-man invasion force on Cyprus was "strong enough to occupy the entire island."

In Athens, Premier Constantine Caramanlis of Greece summoned the American, British, Chinese, French and Soviet ambassadors and asked for their help in preventing new fighting on Cyprus.

He lashed out at Turkish cease-fire violations on the island and "the unacceptable Turkish proposals and the intransigent Turkish position" at the Geneva talks. Caramanlis said the situation "can lead to a conflict."

In Geneva, Turkey and the Turkish Cypriots had been pushing for the concentration of scattered Turkish Cypriot communities on Cyprus into one or more large, autonomous areas. But spokesmen for Greece and the majority Greek Cypriots opposed that concept, claiming it would cause huge population displacements.

Reporting U.S. concern in Washington, a spokesman announced the State Department's endorsement of "a greater degree of autonomy" for the Turkish minority on Cyprus.

Finance Report Says Kennedy Still In Debt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has filed a tardy campaign finance report saying he still owes $10,020.71 on his 1970 Senate campaign.

The report was filed more than two years late. A spokesman for Kennedy said the campaign treasurer had misinterpreted the federal campaign finance law that took effect in 1972, and believed erroneously that no federal reports were required.

The spokesman, Richard Drayne, said periodic finance reports had been filed with the Massachusetts secretary of state, as required by state law, and that no deception had been intended.

He denied that Kennedy is raising money for a possible run for the White House in 1976.

The report said Kennedy had raised $2,800 in 1972, $500 in 1973, and $38,101.23 so far in 1974. All but $2,000 of that has been spent, according to the report, mostly to pay off debts from the 1970 campaign.

One debt of $10,020.71 remains, owed to John T. Campbell of Bridgewater, Mass., a Kennedy friend who is president of radio station WPLM, Plymouth, Mass.

Some of the money was used to pay expenses of a lavish fund raising dinner at Kennedy's home in McLean, Va., last February. The affair featured a heated tent, an orchestra, chartered limousines, $767 worth of decorations and $382 for mementos.

Almost all of the money raised in 1974 was produced by that dinner.

The Kennedy campaign committee has the cumbersome title of "Committee to Re-elect Senator Edward M. Kennedy United States Senator '70."

Under the law that took effect April 7, 1972, it was required to file a registration statement with the secretary of the Senate giving the names of officers and other information. It was also required to file periodic reports of receipts and expenditures starting in 1972.

But it was not until last Friday that the committee filed its registration report and its first finance report with the Senate.

Senate officials stamped the report with the words "late filing," and "notice of error or omission has been sent."

The treasurer of the Kennedy Committee, Clifford J. Shaw, said in a telephone interview that Kennedy had waited years to pay off his Senate debt because he didn't want to appear to be raising money for the 1972 presidential campaign. Further delay was caused in 1973 because of a family crisis when the senator's 12-year-old son Teddy contracted bone cancer and lost a leg.

"Finally, he said 'Let's get this thing off our necks,' " Shaw recalled. The fund raising dinner followed.

After the fund-raiser at Kennedy's home, the committee paid off $10,433.40 in interest and principal to R.P. Fitzgerald, president of Boston's Harbor National Bank; $9,963.85 to Gerard Doherty, a Boston lawyer and close Kennedy associate, and $9,788.75 to H. Hoffman of Boston, another Kennedy friend.

Ford Expected To Run

Washington — President Ford's closest political associates think he has decided, tentatively at least, to seek a full term in 1976. No one expects any early declaration, but Ford's statement Monday night about "at least" three State of the Union messages wasn't an accident.

Stowaways Caught

New York — Fifty-nine Ecuadorean stowaways were rounded up when a banana boat from South America docked here. Investigators said the men paid $25 apiece to a Steve Dore in Guayaquil, who is understood to be under arrest there.

Sugar Prices Surge

New York — The surge in sugar prices has forced major industrial users to raise the prices of their products and give serious thought to sugar alternatives.

Trials End Expected

Seoul, Korea — South Korean court-martials sentenced 12 more students and a prison guard to jail for defying the government, but there are strong indications that the current wave of trials will end in a couple of days.

Press Tells Deaths

Moscow — The official Soviet Press acknowledged that eight Soviet women mountain climbers had perished in a storm last week on Lenin Peak in the Soviet Pamirs.

Ambassador To Korea Named

Washington — President Ford announced he was nominating Richard L. Sneider, deputy assistant secretary for East Asian and Pacific affairs, as the new ambassador to South Korea, replacing Philip C. Habib, who is returning to Washington as the new assistant secretary for that bureau.

British Deficit Rises

London — The government reported Britain's visible trade deficit in July had increased slightly to $1.147 billion and was just short of a record level, due mainly to the nation's rising oil bill.

Brazil To Build Ships

Rio de Janeiro — Brazil has started work on a $3.3 billion program for the construction of 765 ships by 1979 as part of a general shift in this country's priorities to achieve greater economic independence.

Mississippi Mayor Faces Tax Counts

AP

Charles Evers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury has charged Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette, Miss., with evading more than $50,000 in federal income taxes, the Justice Department announced Tuesday.

Evers, the black civil rights leader who returned to his home state to campaign for office after his brother Medgar was slain, was indicted by the grand jury in U.S. District Court in Jackson

Evers, mayor of Fayette since 1969, was charged with three counts of evading taxes for 1968, 1969 and 1970.

His former wife, Nannie Laura, was charged in the counts covering 1968 and 1969.

The indictment charged that Evers and his wife submitted "a false and fraudulent income tax return" when they stated that their 1968 taxable income was $6,688 while the correct income was $50,455.

For 1969, they reported an income of $6,334 when their true taxable income was $67,388, the indictment said.

For 1970, Evers submitted tax returns listing an income of $7,197 when his actual income was $61,712, the indictment charged.

By doing so, Evers and his wife avoided paying more than $9,600 in taxes for 1968, more than $21,400 for 1969 and more than $21,500 for 1970, according to the indictment.

IRS Raises Mileage Deduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service announced on Tuesday a small benefit from the energy crisis for the ordinary taxpayer — a 25 per cent hike in the basic mileage allowance for cars used in business.

It will allow 15 cents a mile — up from 12 cents — for the first 15,000 miles an automobile is used for business purposes and 10 cents a mile for each additional mile, a hike of a penny a mile.

For individuals using their automobiles for medical and charitable purposes, the allowance went up a penny to seven cents a mile with the same hike applied to the allowance for cars used in moving.

Interest Rates Climb On Home Mortgages

Washington (UPI) — Interest rates for federally guaranteed home mortgages have been raised for the fifth time this year to a record 9.5%, the Department of Housing and Urban Development said Tuesday.

HUD Secretary James T. Lynn said the increase from 9% was a reflection of the realities of the mortgage money market. The new rate takes effect Wednesday.

Lynn said home buyers with mortgages guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration and the veterans administration were paying "penalty" points ranging from 6 to 8% of the home's purchase price.

In the last auction of FHA-VA mortgages, the effective interest yield to investors was 10.124%.

By raising the interest ceiling on FHA-VA guaranteed mortgages, closing costs for home buyers will be substantially reduced.

The interest expense, although "admittedly high" a HUD spokesman said, will spread the expense over the life of the mortgage instead of a big payment at the start.

The condition of the present mortgage market was reflected in a HUD statement that 100,000 mortgages with 8% interest rates put on the market by HUD last May are still available. Although home buyers would like to have the 8% mortages, money lenders are not attracted to the yield.

There are also 72,000 home mortgages with a 7¾% rate available from a HUD offering of 200,000 mortgages in January.

The 7¾ and 8% mortgages are for new homes that are built under FHA-VA programs that meet FHA-VA standards.

The previous high for FHA-VA guaranteed mortgages was the 9% rate set on July 8.

HUD raised the ceiling from 7¾% to 8¼% on Jan 22, to 8.5% on April 15 and 8¾% on May 13 to help FHA-Va home buyers remain competitive with conventional mortgage lending rates.

Betty Ford Likes White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — After giving it a thorough going over, First Lady Betty Ford said she liked 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, but her husband may still be fixing his own breakfast there.

"I'm thrilled to death," Mrs. Ford said after getting a private guided tour of the White House on Tuesday. "It's very beautiful and in excellent condition."

The First Lady said she's looking forward to moving into the executive mansion next Monday. Her husband, President Ford, plans to be out of town that day addressing the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Chicago.

Mrs. Ford said she will start packing Wednesday for the move from 514 Crown View Drive in Alexandria, Va., where the Ford family has lived since 1955.

The First Lady's first mass news conference, with about 150 reporters, was held in the blistering sun behind the White House.

Reporters noted that the President liked to prepare his own breakfast and the First Lady said that might not change.

"All he needs is a toaster," she said

Mrs. Ford said she doesn't plan to redecorate but "there are some very minor changes," which might be made.

For example, daughter, Susan might suggest some redecoration to fit her 17-year-old tastes.

Asked if the White House decor would be to the liking of the President and her three sons, Mrs. Ford said "there's a masculinity" about the White House.

She hopes to continue her active role in volunteer work and emphasized she was especially interested in the arts and working with retarded children.

In answer to a reporter's question about the number No. 2 spot in the administration, Mrs. Ford said that it was a fine idea that her husband was considering a woman.

"It's time women step up and take their place," said the First Lady. But she conceded that she hasn't broached the subject with her husband.

Mrs. Ford fended off a question about whether she liked the White House so well that she might want stay on for four years after 1977.

"That's a very leading question," she said.

Replying to another question, Mrs. Ford said she favors abolishing the church ban which prohibits women from becoming priests in the Episcopal Church. The Fords are parishioners of the Episcopal Immanuel Church on the Hill in Alexandria, which has a woman deacon who has been fighting against the no-woman priest law.

Finance Report Says Kennedy Still In Debt

Katy Allen Very Big In Modeling Business

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Most people have never heard of her, but Katy Allen is very big in the nude modeling business.

Katy, mistress of a Victorian mansion crammed with plants, dogs, birds, a stuffed elk and a parrot named Earthquake, measures 48-35-49 and tips the scales at 235 pounds on a 5-foot-5 frame.

She has been baring her abundant bulk for individual artists and classes, sculptors and photographers for nine years, ever since a friend told her the Models Guild of San Francisco "needed a fat one."

"I auditioned, was accepted and I've been busy ever since," she said. "It's a fulltime, happy career."

Her fee for artists is $4 an hour; photographers pay 10 times that.

Katy said that while walking around San Francisco she often is stopped by strangers who dash up and gush, "Oh, I have a picture of you in my bathroom."

The house Katy lives in is as much in demand as the 28-year-old model herself. It once belonged to her grandmother and is straight out of another era, full of overstuffed furniture, floppy Victorian hats, beaded handbags, fans and furbelows.

Artists, said the blue-eyed model, ask her to pose among her flora and fauna, where she has been painted, sketched and sculpted.

Occasionally, she said, she even falls in love with her clients.

"That's happened several times," she smiled. "It's very nice.

"Sometimes, when 50 people are sketching me, I think, 'What am I doing here with my clothes off?' However, generally, I enjoy inspiring artists. I don't make too many comments on their work. Ninety per cent of the things they draw are themselves. I am just the thing they start with and they go off 100 different ways."

Katy says life is much too good for her to consider expanding into a bigtime scene such as New York.

"It's too heavy and tense for me," she said.

Katy rises at 6:30 a.m., cleans her two-story house, models from 9 a.m. until noon, takes afternoons off for a promenade or shopping, then returns to feed and water the flora and fauna and feather dust the elk and bookcase armadillo.

At 6:30 p.m. there's another modeling session, and afterwards preparations for one of her beloved dinner parties.

She has no intention of shedding any of her money-making poundage since her physician has told her that she's very healthy.

"I've always been plump," she admitted, pouring tea and nibbling on petit fours. "When my doctor tells me the weight is affecting my health, I'll lose weight," she said.

Katy's favorite hobby is cooking, and she says she's writing a cookbook aimed at people who want to serve large, elegant gatherings.

Between times, Katy likes to luxuriate in a perfumed tub

"I indulge myself," she murmured.

Gasoline Prices Could Dip–Simon

Washington (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Tuesday the price of gasoline could soon drop six or seven cents a gallon, if:

— Crude oil supplies, now dramatically increasing, continue to rise.

— Arab nations do not decide to reduce production.

— World market prices are not arbitrarily raised.

If all those conditions are met, Simon told reporters, the resulting economic pressures could bring petroleum prices down by as much as $3 a barrel in the coming months.

That, he said, would translate into reductions of up to seven cents a gallon at the pumps.

"Additional supply (of crude oil) is coming on now quite dramatically," Simon told reporters.

He and John C. Sawhill, his successor as head of the Federal Energy Administration, testified at hearings investigating oil industry profits before the Senate small business subcommittee.

Both said the record profits reaped by the petroleum industry during last winter's energy crisis were acceptable when weighed against the need for investment capital to expand the search for new oil resources.

They said the way to deal with the windfall oil profits was to tax them with allowances for money that is ploughed back into new oil exploration.

Sawhill, however, said he was "disappointed" that Mobil Oil Corp. had decided to use hundreds of millions of its oil profit dollars to buy Marcor, the holding company for Montgomery Ward.

Sawhill also said the FEA is considering a plan to equalize crude oil costs for small and large refiners by fixing the percentage of "old" and "new" oil used by refineries. The price of newly discovered and produced oil has risen far above that of "old" oil.

Senate Vetoes Navy Loan Agreement With Grumman

©The New York Times

Washington — The Senate Tuesday vetoed the Navy's $100 million loan agreement with the Grumman Aerospace Corp. to continue production of the F14 fighter plane.

The vote was 53 to 35 on a resolution by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., disapproving the agreement under which the Navy would have advanced payments of up to $100 million to the Bethpage, N.Y., contractor for the controversial F14.

Proxmire, a persistent critic of the F14, and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who opposed the Proxmire resolution, said after the vote that Grumman now would have to obtain new sources of financing either from commercial bankers or a revised arrangement with the Navy, which regards the F14 as essential to the nation's military security.

"Grumman has been and is now working on alternative commercial credit plans," a spokesman for the parent Grumman Corp. said in Bethpage after the vote.

"However," the spokesman's statement continued, "due to the action of the U.S. Senate in turning down the request for the advance payment agreement, the time has been substantially shortened and may have made consummation of these plans impossible."

Grumman's contract with the Navy to build the F14 has been plagued by controversy and rising costs since 1969. Two years ago the Navy began lending low-interest money to Grumman after commercial banks suspended further credit following the company's losses in 1971 and 1972.

The Senate's action Tuesday was taken under a two-year-old law permitting either house of Congress to disapprove, or veto, any government loan arrangement totaling more than $25 million to a defense contractor.

Subcommittee Cuts $5.1 Billion From Pentagon Appropriation

Washington (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee slashed $5.1 billion from the 1975 Pentagon appropriation Tuesday, less than 18 hours after President Ford told Congress there should be no "unwarranted cuts in national defense."

The action came while Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger was elsewhere on Capitol Hill arguing that the military couldn't afford any more deep cuts in its budget.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Appropriations Committee, announced the action by his defense subcommittee. It was virtually certain to be approved by the full committee.

McClellan said the appropriation now gives the Pentagon $81.9 billion for the fiscal year that began July 1, down 5.9% from the $87 billion the administration asked, and $1.3 billion less than the House approved last week.

McClellan had said earlier he would pare the request, but the depth of the cuts was somewhat unexpected, and apparently was promoted by growing concern in Congress with inflation caused by too much spending.

He said the bill provides enough to "maintain our defense . . . and yet be realistically aligned with the present state of our economy. This bill will not please everyone but it represents our best judgment."

But the administration was almost sure to be unhappy. Ford said Monday night, "You and I always stood together against unwarranted cuts in national defense. This is no time to change that nonpartisam policy."

Schlesinger told an armed services subcommittee Tuesday that the United States has cut back to 2.1 million troops — lowest figure since the 1950s — while Russia has built up to 3.8 million men under arms.

While the Russians have concentrated 43 divisions on the Chinese border, Schlesinger said, the United States is still outnumbered 2 to 1 by Soviet troops in Europe.

Negotiators Agree On Hike In GI Bill

Washington (UPI) — Senate-House negotiators have agreed on a 23% increase in educational benefits for Vietnam era veterans — the biggest increase since World War II.

The compromise legislation would also provide veterans with loans to supplement their monthly benefits and would extend eligibility from 36 months to 45 months, five school years.

Former President Richard Nixon strongly indicated he would veto the bill as inflationary. There is no indication what President Ford's position will be.

Under the bill, single veterans who now receive $220 a month would get $270; the benefits of a married veteran would increase from $261 to $321; the married veterans with one child from $298 to $366. Veterans would also receive $23 for each additional dependent.

Ford Charts Course

President Gerald Ford, a bit unsteady at the wheel, steered the nation's ship of state into the mainstream of things Monday night. In his address to the joint session of Congress, he proved the validity of what has been written about him to date.

He is, indeed, much like the late President Harry Truman — not quite as outspoken and not as liberal but definitely straightforward and unpretentious. The new President spoke plainly, without any clever slogans or nifty nuances.

It was a completely frank speech. He will go more than halfway to come to an accommodation with Congress but he will not go all the way. Congress will have to come part way, too.

Ford prefers compromise to stalemate but he will use the veto if he has to. He is not playing cute about the future. God willing, he said, he will serve the remainder of this term and two more elected terms.

He wants to be friends with all the nations of the world but friendship is a two-way street. Ford does not envision friendship as a sacrifice of national sovereignty.

The economy is a problem. People have to quit spending so much and the federal government has to stop running a deficit if we are to lick inflation, he says.

The new President's approach is as apple-pie and brass-band as it could get. It is not especially polished, is sometimes a little blunt and is rooted in conviction. That, perhaps, will be his key to success — conviction.

President Ford comes across as totally honest, speaking the absolute truth as he understands and believes it. He may not have the wisdom of many men but the truth, with the long background he has in public office, will certainly carry him a long way.

It is fundamental that the people cannot support something they cannot understand or that they know nothing about. They will understand Ford and, if he remains true to his present attitude, they will know what he is doing.

Ford is pied-piping down Main Street and that is the real backbone of this nation. His maiden speech was a commendable one, a most effective beginning.

King Corn Clobbered

King Corn isn't dead but sure is staggering. And when corn is staggering, the rest of us have something to worry about.

The blow to corn was delivered in the form of a federal crop report which pegs the production of this essential grain at 12% or 1.734 billion bushels less than had earlier been anticipated. At today's market price, that is an incredible loss of some $5.1 trillion — not billions but trillions.

For most of the American people, the important thing is that corn is the key to beef, hog and poultry production, as well as a food in itself. The loss of this much of the crop will translate itself into higher food prices in the grocery stores for the coming year.

Out on the farm, it will mean a lean and hard winter for a lot of people. Those farmers who staked their year on a corn crop that is now lost will find themselves in dire financial straits.

Beef, hog and poultry producers will find the price of grain for feed sky-high, making it tough to come out with a profit on the animals.

Many people in agriculture believe, also, that the government crop report is a very conservative one, that the real loss will be more than 12%. Soybeans and milo may still come through in good shape but that will not ease much the impact of the corn loss.

And even yet, milo must survive the threat of excessive heat, lack of moisture and an early frost. The crop dollar is never made until it's in the barn.

The corn harvest will have an impact upon the lives of all of us. It may well have an impact, too, upon the long-range future of agriculture. Some farmers will lose their places as a result of this situation and the high price of corn may bring a record planting in the spring of 1975.

Cries will probably be heard for the curtailment of exports but this is a questionable answer to the problem. For a great many good and valid reasons, we cannot simply turn our exports on and off like a spigot.

It may sound good on the surface but it would have a lot of consequences we would find unpleasant.

The crop report is definitely bad news but what can be done about it is not apparent.

Rockefeller Seems Slated For Veep

WASHINGTON — If President Ford is serious about choosing the best qualified man to serve as a standby president — for that is what a vice president is — then he can choose only Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Chairman George Bush of the Republican National Committee and several other political figures whose names are being floated are competent and attractive men, but in terms of experience and proven executive capacity, they are dwarfed by Rockefeller's record.

He served as assistant secretary of state for Latin America in the Roosevelt administration, as under-secretary of health, education and welfare in the first Eisenhower administration, and for 15 years as governor of New York. As governor, he introduced innovative programs, had the political courage to seek higher taxes and the political skill to persuade the legislature to adopt them, attracted able people to state government and proved that he could run an administration free of scandal.

For years at the annual governors' conferences, it was to Rockefeller that most of the other governors in both parties turned for useful advice on state problems such as paying for higher education or combatting water pollution. As organizer of the study groups that produced the Rockefeller reports in the late 1950's and of the "critical issues" inquiry now under way, he has shown that he knows how to seek out ideas and is in touch with capable people in universities, foundations and research centers. In short, Rockefeller knows how to govern as distinguished from just talking about government or manufacturing political issues.

There is much that a liberal Democrat could criticize in Rockefeller's record both in state government and in foreign policy matters such as Vietnam. But President Ford is not choosing a vice president by the standards that his liberal opposition would apply. In the search for the second-ranking member of a moderately conservative Republican administration, Rockefeller has credentials much more impressive than any one else.

His only handicap is his age. But at 66, he is no older than General Eisenhower was in 1956 when he was elected to his second term. Unlike Eisenhower, who had suffered a heart attack and major intestinal surgery, Rockefeller is apparently in excellent health.

A president can make use of a vice president in several ways, as a liaison man with the states and cities, as a legislative lobbyist with congress, as an arbitrator of inter-agency disputes, as an intermediary on political problems — or just send him around as a speech-maker. It is not decisive how an individual occupies his time while serving as vice president.

What does matter is that if anything happens to Ford during the next two years, there is a person standing by who is qualified by intellect and experience to take over the powers of the presidency.

It does seem a bit odd that President Ford should not already know his own mind on his choice of a vice president inasmuch as he had known for weeks that he would soon be president. It is impossible as yet to determine whether he is now genuinely undecided or is merely acting out a charade of "man seeking advice on big problem." Like many politicians, he may believe it is important to soothe other men's sensibilities by seeming to seek their advice whether he intends to weigh it seriously or not. This elaborate canvassing, though politically useful, does run the risk of demeaning the vice presidency since some of the names on various lists border on the ludicrous.

A strong case can be made for abolishing the vice presidency and allowing presidential vacancies to be filled in a special election with the secretary of state serving as head of an interim caretaker administration. But so long as the 25th Amendment requires a president to nominate a new vice president, it is imperative that he bear in mind that the person chosen has to be of substantial national reputation and qualified to bear the nuclear responsibility and the executive burdens of a president.

This is no time to choose a political lightweight or a regional makeweight or an old buddy from the House cloakroom or some dim, Spiro-Agnew-type surprise from the bottom of the grab bag.

New Book

Honeymoon

WASHINGTON — From Richard M. Nixon to Gerald R. Ford: The method by which presidential power was transferred — through resignation — was unique in American history, but the act itself was not. Ford, in fact, is the ninth "accidental president" of the United States. Of the 13 presidents elected in this century, five, including Nixon, failed to complete their terms.

The United States, then, has had ample experience in coming to terms with a vice president suddenly elevated to chief executive. Generally speaking, the new man in the Oval Office can count on a "honeymoon" period with the news media and the opposing political party. And he can look forward to even greater rewards: Every vice president who succeeded a president in mid-term in this century went on to win election in his own right.

Precisely the opposite pattern prevailed in the 19th Century. All four accidental presidents of that period either were deeply unpopular at the time of their succession or shortly became so. None was subsequently elected, much less nominated, to a term of his own by a major political party.

The first two accidental presidents — John Tyler and Millard Fillmore — came to power under strikingly similar circumstances. Each succeeded a Whig president who died in office. And each pursued policies that his predecessor probably would have opposed. Both made the mistake of antagonizing Sen. Henry Clay of Kentucky, one of the most powerful politicians of the time.

Andrew Johnson and Chester A. Arthur, the next two accidential presidents, came to office through the assassination of their predecessors. In addition, both suffered from political image problems of almost insurmountable magnitude. Johnson got off to a bad start by appearing drunk at his inaugural. He antagonized Congress to such a degree that he was impeached and nearly convicted. Arthur's problems were compounded by a remark made by Charles J. Guiteau, President Garfield's assassin. After firing the fatal shot, Guiteau shouted: "I did it and I want to be arrested. I am a Stalwart and Arthur is president now."

"Stalwart" was the name then applied to the conservative wing of the Republican Party; GOP moderates were known as Half-Breeds. Arthur was a dyed-in-the-wool Stalwart who had never held elective office and was a product of the New York Republican spoils system. As president, Arthur surprised both wings of his party by conducting an honest, efficient, and dignified administration.

All signs indicate that Ford will receive the same broad sympathy accorded Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge, Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson when they picked up the reins of executive power. Already a popular figure within his own party, Ford made a favorable impression on many Democratic and independent voters during his brief tenure as vice president. There is virtually no chance that he will blunder like Tyler and Fillmore and pursue policies significantly different from those of his predecessor.

Ford's quarter-century of experience in Congress will serve him as well as Lyndon Johnson's comparable experience served him. Because of public weariness after the long ordeal of Watergate, Ford's honeymoon period promises to be longer than most. But all honeymoons come to an end. Most presidents are judged according to their behavior and achievements in the more fractious period that inevitably follows. Two or perhaps six years from now, the public will have taken its true measure of President Ford.

Considers His Vote Worthless

Lincoln, Neb.

This is indeed the blackest era in the history of our country. The political party in control of Congress has forced the minority party president from office. The mighty tax dollar contributed by you and me has been used to destroy our own power to vote. It is uncanny that this happened after the most sweeping presidential election victory in history.

Our vote is now worthless. The power of politics and the press has been proven to be greater than that of the Constitution. No wonder the young people question our system. No wonder more people are refusing to pay taxes.

Neither Sad Nor Tragic

Lincoln, Neb.

When Robert E. Lee surrendered to General Grant at Appomattox on April 9, 1865, I don't think anybody in the Union referred to it as a sad or tragic event. The United States and its institutions had survived a serious threat to their existence; it was a great day for the Republic.

Yet on August 8, 1974, many people, and even many members of Congress who are supposed to uphold our Constitution and other political and legal institutions, referred to Mr. Nixon's resignation — in effect a surrender — as a sad and tragic event. How can that be? Have so many of us lost all patriotism, all love of country and its institutions? Tragic is the defeat of a blameless, courageous fighter for what is right and good by the forces of evil. Mr. Nixon, by his own admission, is not blameless; nor was he, in this instance, courageous: He was engaged in a conspiracy which he kept secret by the abuse of his office and he surrendered as soon as the jig was up. By committing, by his own admission, criminal acts, he certainly was not a fighter for what is right and good, but only a conspirator for the protection of his own skin and that of his cronies.

And he was defeated, not by any forces of evil, but by the lawful action of public office-holders reluctantly doing their duty. Although Nixon knew, by his own admission, at least since June 23, 1972, that he and his closest aides were engaged in criminal acts and violations of his oath of office, he had the American people pay horrendous sums for his own legal defense and caused equally enormous expenditures for the investigation and prosecution of a whole network of wrongdoings for more than two years.

His acts were subversive of our legal institutions and of our political ethics; he destroyed the confidence of millions of Americans in our government and political institutions; he created divisions in this nation which may take a while to heal; but now finally he had to surrender. I call that a great day for the Republic.

Martin And G.I. Bill

Alda, Neb.

Congressman David Martin has implied that he is opposed to the G.I. bill due to cost. I might point out that past G.I. bills have repaid the amount initially invested in them by return of tax dollars the veterans earn. It seems unreasonable to deny Vietnam veterans the same education that was given to their fathers after World War II.

I might also point out that I was a "hawk" during the Vietnam war controversy. I approved of Mr. Martin's votes allowing $25 billion a year for the war. It now seems ridiculous that Mr. Martin can't approve a small portion of that amount for the veterans who fought that war!

I joined the Republican Party and worked for it because I believed that it stood for the individualism that helped those who worked for what they received.

I am resigning as precinct chairman, not because of Watergate, but rather because I feel that Mr. Martin, as a representative of the Republican Party is pulling a dirty deal on the Vietnam era veterans.

Embarrassed By Curtis

Lincoln, Neb.

The performance of Nebraska Senator Carl Curtis on national television last week should be a source of embarrassment for all Nebraskans who value a working democracy. Senator Curtis's blind faith to a man who admitted lying outright to the American public was clearly the act of a man playing partisan politics.

His reference to America's becoming a "banana republic" was an insult to my intelligence. A major factor governing the ability of Mr. Curtis's "banana republics" to exist is the lack of education in these countries which allows dictators and strong-arm men to gain control. Mr. Curtis obviously believes that we in the back country of America spend all our time in the fields picking corn.

Curtis's stand on impeachment and the Nixon administration in general only reaffirms my belief that Nebraska hasn't had a senator in Washington for a long time. It is, I think, beyond Mr. Curtis's capability to look at a problem in an objective and educated manner. The sooner we elect a senator in Washington instead of a man who closes his eyes and says "yes" to the administration, the better off this state will be.

Indiana, Penn.

On July 23, the vehicle in which I was traveling was hit from behind by another automobile, causing a serious accident. This event was a very traumatic experience for both my wife and me.

However, the situation was greatly aided by those individuals who offered emergency assistance at the accident scene, the prompt medical attendants, Lincoln General Hospital, and particularly the Lincoln police.

I take this opportunity on behalf of my wife and myself to personally express my sincere appreciation to the officers of the Lincoln Police Department who assisted us and extend my gratitude to a truly professional and courteous organization whose officers went far beyond their normal responsibilities in attempting to help in a difficult situation. The department and its men are a credit to the law-enforcement profession, the residents of Lincoln, and the state of Nebraska.

Lincoln's Amnesty Policy

Lincoln, Neb.

If Gerald Ford begins his presidency with conciliatory gestures toward the deposed Nixon as recommended by Senator Edward Brooke's proposal for the executive amnesty, I hope that he is also noble enough to reconcile the situation of those Americans who were forced to flee the country during our fateful involvement in the Vietnam war.

Since removal from office is offered as adequate justice for the deeds against the nation perpetrated by Nixon, surely the long exile endured by some individuals should be adequate justice for their "crime" of conscience. Lincoln's policy of amnesty in 1865 went a long way toward binding the nation's wounds after the Civil War. Let's pray that Gerald Ford is equally courageous and strong — enough to heal and unite us in these sorely troubled times.

Ford Charts Course

President Gerald Ford, a bit unsteady at the wheel, steered the nation's ship of state into the mainstream of things Monday night. In his address to the joint session of Congress, he proved the validity of what has been written about him to date.

He is, indeed, much like the late President Harry Truman — not quite as outspoken and not as liberal but definitely straightforward and unpretentious. The new President spoke plainly, without any clever slogans or nifty nuances.

It was a completely frank speech. He will go more than halfway to come to an accommodation with Congress but he will not go all the way. Congress will have to come part way, too.

Ford prefers compromise to stalemate but he will use the veto if he has to. He is not playing cute about the future. God willing, he said, he will serve the remainder of this term and two more elected terms.

He wants to be friends with all the nations of the world but friendship is a two-way street. Ford does not envision friendship as a sacrifice of national sovereignty.

The economy is a problem. People have to quit spending so much and the federal government has to stop running a deficit if we are to lick inflation, he says.

The new President's approach is as apple-pie and brass-band as it could get. It is not especially polished, is sometimes a little blunt and is rooted in conviction. That, perhaps, will be his key to success — conviction.

President Ford comes across as totally honest, speaking the absolute truth as he understands and believes it. He may not have the wisdom of many men but the truth, with the long background he has in public office, will certainly carry him a long way.

It is fundamental that the people cannot support something they cannot understand or that they know nothing about. They will understand Ford and, if he remains true to his present attitude, they will know what he is doing.

Ford is pied-piping down Main Street and that is the real backbone of this nation. His maiden speech was a commendable one, a most effective beginning.

King Corn Clobbered

King Corn isn't dead but sure is staggering. And when corn is staggering, the rest of us have something to worry about.

The blow to corn was delivered in the form of a federal crop report which pegs the production of this essential grain at 12% or 1.734 billion bushels less than had earlier been anticipated. At today's market price, that is an incredible loss of some $5.1 trillion — not billions but trillions.

For most of the American people, the important thing is that corn is the key to beef, hog and poultry production, as well as a food in itself. The loss of this much of the crop will translate itself into higher food prices in the grocery stores for the coming year.

Out on the farm, it will mean a lean and hard winter for a lot of people. Those farmers who staked their year on a corn crop that is now lost will find themselves in dire financial straits.

Beef, hog and poultry producers will find the price of grain for feed sky-high, making it tough to come out with a profit on the animals.

Many people in agriculture believe, also, that the government crop report is a very conservative one, that the real loss will be more than 12%. Soybeans and milo may still come through in good shape but that will not ease much the impact of the corn loss.

And even yet, milo must survive the threat of excessive heat, lack of moisture and an early frost. The crop dollar is never made until it's in the barn.

The corn harvest will have an impact upon the lives of all of us. It may well have an impact, too, upon the long-range future of agriculture. Some farmers will lose their places as a result of this situation and the high price of corn may bring a record planting in the spring of 1975.

Cries will probably be heard for the curtailment of exports but this is a questionable answer to the problem. For a great many good and valid reasons, we cannot simply turn our exports on and off like a spigot.

It may sound good on the surface but it would have a lot of consequences we would find unpleasant.

The crop report is definitely bad news but what can be done about it is not apparent.

Rockefeller Seems Slated For Veep

WASHINGTON — If President Ford is serious about choosing the best qualified man to serve as a standby president — for that is what a vice president is — then he can choose only Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Chairman George Bush of the Republican National Committee and several other political figures whose names are being floated are competent and attractive men, but in terms of experience and proven executive capacity, they are dwarfed by Rockefeller's record.

He served as assistant secretary of state for Latin America in the Roosevelt administration, as under-secretary of health, education and welfare in the first Eisenhower administration, and for 15 years as governor of New York. As governor, he introduced innovative programs, had the political courage to seek higher taxes and the political skill to persuade the legislature to adopt them, attracted able people to state government and proved that he could run an administration free of scandal.

For years at the annual governors' conferences, it was to Rockefeller that most of the other governors in both parties turned for useful advice on state problems such as paying for higher education or combatting water pollution. As organizer of the study groups that produced the Rockefeller reports in the late 1950's and of the "critical issues" inquiry now under way, he has shown that he knows how to seek out ideas and is in touch with capable people in universities, foundations and research centers. In short, Rockefeller knows how to govern as distinguished from just talking about government or manufacturing political issues.

There is much that a liberal Democrat could criticize in Rockefeller's record both in state government and in foreign policy matters such as Vietnam. But President Ford is not choosing a vice president by the standards that his liberal opposition would apply. In the search for the second-ranking member of a moderately conservative Republican administration, Rockefeller has credentials much more impressive than any one else.

His only handicap is his age. But at 66, he is no older than General Eisenhower was in 1956 when he was elected to his second term. Unlike Eisenhower, who had suffered a heart attack and major intestinal surgery, Rockefeller is apparently in excellent health.

A president can make use of a vice president in several ways, as a liaison man with the states and cities, as a legislative lobbyist with congress, as an arbitrator of inter-agency disputes, as an intermediary on political problems — or just send him around as a speech-maker. It is not decisive how an individual occupies his time while serving as vice president.

What does matter is that if anything happens to Ford during the next two years, there is a person standing by who is qualified by intellect and experience to take over the powers of the presidency.

It does seem a bit odd that President Ford should not already know his own mind on his choice of a vice president inasmuch as he had known for weeks that he would soon be president. It is impossible as yet to determine whether he is now genuinely undecided or is merely acting out a charade of "man seeking advice on big problem." Like many politicians, he may believe it is important to soothe other men's sensibilities by seeming to seek their advice whether he intends to weigh it seriously or not. This elaborate canvassing, though politically useful, does run the risk of demeaning the vice presidency since some of the names on various lists border on the ludicrous.

A strong case can be made for abolishing the vice presidency and allowing presidential vacancies to be filled in a special election with the secretary of state serving as head of an interim caretaker administration. But so long as the 25th Amendment requires a president to nominate a new vice president, it is imperative that he bear in mind that the person chosen has to be of substantial national reputation and qualified to bear the nuclear responsibility and the executive burdens of a president.

This is no time to choose a political lightweight or a regional makeweight or an old buddy from the House cloakroom or some dim, Spiro-Agnew-type surprise from the bottom of the grab bag.

Honeymoon

WASHINGTON — From Richard M. Nixon to Gerald R. Ford: The method by which presidential power was transferred — through resignation — was unique in American history, but the act itself was not. Ford, in fact, is the ninth "accidental president" of the United States. Of the 13 presidents elected in this century, five, including Nixon, failed to complete their terms.

The United States, then, has had ample experience in coming to terms with a vice president suddenly elevated to chief executive. Generally speaking, the new man in the Oval Office can count on a "honeymoon" period with the news media and the opposing political party. And he can look forward to even greater rewards: Every vice president who succeeded a president in mid-term in this century went on to win election in his own right.

Precisely the opposite pattern prevailed in the 19th Century. All four accidental presidents of that period either were deeply unpopular at the time of their succession or shortly became so. None was subsequently elected, much less nominated, to a term of his own by a major political party.

The first two accidental presidents — John Tyler and Millard Fillmore — came to power under strikingly similar circumstances. Each succeeded a Whig president who died in office. And each pursued policies that his predecessor probably would have opposed. Both made the mistake of antagonizing Sen. Henry Clay of Kentucky, one of the most powerful politicians of the time.

Andrew Johnson and Chester A. Arthur, the next two accidental presidents, came to office through the assassination of their predecessors. In addition, both suffered from political image problems of almost insurmountable magnitude. Johnson got off to a bad start by appearing drunk at his inaugural. He antagonized Congress to such a degree that he was impeached and nearly convicted. Arthur's problems were compounded by a remark made by Charles J. Guiteau, President Garfield's assassin. After firing the fatal shot, Guiteau shouted: "I did it and I want to be arrested. I am a Stalwart and Arthur is president now."

"Stalwart" was the name then applied to the conservative wing of the Republican Party; GOP moderates were known as Half-Breeds. Arthur was a dyed-in-the-wool Stalwart who had never held elective office and was a product of the New York Republican spoils system. As president, Arthur surprised both wings of his party by conducting an honest, efficient, and dignified administration.

All signs indicate that Ford will receive the same broad sympathy accorded Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge, Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson when they picked up the reins of executive power. Already a popular figure within his own party, Ford made a favorable impression on many Democratic and independent voters during his brief tenure as vice president. There is virtually no chance that he will blunder like Tyler and Fillmore and pursue policies significantly different from those of his predecessor.

Ford's quarter-century of experience in Congress will serve him as well as Lyndon Johnson's comparable experience served him. Because of public weariness after the long ordeal of Watergate, Ford's honeymoon period promises to be longer than most. But all honeymoons come to an end. Most presidents are judged according to their behavior and achievements in the more fractious period that inevitably follows. Two or perhaps six years from now, the public will have taken its true measure of President Ford.

PICKLED EGGS? TRY SOME!

Almost everyone uses eggs in preparing family meals. They are very versatile and can be used in any meal. They are excellent sources of protein, iron, Vitamin A and Vitamin D. One large egg has approximately 80 calories, 60 of which come from the yolk.

Pickled eggs are different and add spice to meals and snacks. They are especially good picnic foods. Pickle some at home and see how easy it is and how many ways you can add zest to your family's meals.

Eggs for pickling should be clean and hard-boiled. They should always be cooked at low temperatures. Overcooking will make eggs tough and sometimes cause off-flavors and off-colors to develop. To boil eggs, cover the eggs with water and bring quickly to near boiling. Reduce the heat and simmer for 15 minutes. Cool quickly with running cold water. Then try this easy-to-do recipe.

DILLED EGGS

1½ cups white vinegar
1 cup water
1 tsp. dill seed
1 tsp. white pepper
1 tsp. garlic salt or 1 tsp. minced garlic
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. mustard seed
½ tsp. onion salt

Combine all ingredients; bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer for five minutes. Pour over 12 hard-boiled peeled eggs in a quart jar. Seal and refrigerate to season. The amount of time needed to season the eggs will vary. Generally, two weeks will begin to tint pale green small eggs in a strong vinegar solution. For medium or larger alike four to eight weeks.

Police Gridders Draw Fire, Praise

By IVAN TRAVNICEK
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Police Department's program of hiring "Big Red" football players as policemen for the summer has drawn both fire and praise.

One former police officer said beat officers, sometimes called "door shakers," are resentful of the fact that the football players ride around in patrol cars, getting cruiser time the beat policemen might otherwise get.

Cruiser duty is coveted by the officers.

The former policeman who declined to be identified, said beat officers get quite a bit of cruiser time during the colder months, but when summer comes all or nearly all the available cruiser time is taken up.

Police Chief Joseph Carroll said the athletes cannot be put on foot patrol because they haven't gone through the eight-week recruit training school. The athletes must be under the supervision of an experienced officer at all times, he said.

Carroll said beat officers don't get any cruiser time at all. He said newly hired men are always put on foot patrol and their next step on the promotion ladder is usually to a motorcycle or sometimes directly to a cruiser.

And beat patrolmen have many other duties besides checking doors, Carroll said, in response to the "door shaker" title. He said they make tavern checks, direct traffic and perform other duties, none of which the football players are trained for.

A member of the Lancaster County Sheriff's Department, who declined to be identified, said the football player is more visible to the public if he rides in a cruiser. He said many football players are something of a celebrity and people would be more willing to talk to him.

FOOTBALLER LEE . . . at work as summertime policeman.

"When the officer says 'I'm Willie Harper,' or 'I'm Jeff Kinney,' a witness will talk his head off," he explained.

Another former policeman said some of the football players were really good, "in particular, Jeff Kinney" during the summer of 1971.

NU football middle guard John Lee said he was glad to get the opportunity to work for the Lincoln Police this summer since his major course of study is criminal justice.

Lee said he appreciated the chance to see a part of the criminal justice system from the inside.

He said he plans to return to New Jersey after graduation and do some sort of police related work.

"Policemen athletes" are chosen by the NU Athletic Department and assistant coaches, then they undergo screening and tests by the police department.

Bob Grenfell, athletic director for the downtown YMCA, an offensive guard for the Cornhuskers in 1970, worked that summer for the police department.

He said "there wasn't much screening involved. The purpose is to try to find jobs for some of the athletes."

It was very informal, he said, "coaches just asked who is going to be needing work."

Chief Carroll says he received two free season Cornhusker football tickets. NU Ticket Office Manager Jim Pittenger said quite a few people get free tickets, but how he determines who is to get those tickets is "a very involved process."

Many other police officers are admitted to the games on complementary passes, but they are expected to assist with any law enforcement that becomes necessary during football games.

Six football players are working for the police department this summer: John Lee, Stephen Weiser, Dennis Pavelka, Timothy McGuire, Willie Thornton and Victor Young.

Also, there are three law students working for the department: Terry Wiseman, William Guest and Mary Cook.

Finding or promising work for athletes during the summer does not violate National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

Nixon Can't Use Leftover Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trustees for some $2 million left over from former President Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign say he can't use the money for any legal fees he may incur.

Leftover campaign funds are being used to pay legal expenses of former Nixon campaign officials John N. Mitchell, Maurice H. Stans and others.

But the money can't be used to pay legal fees for anyone who did not hold an official position in the campaign organization, trustees say. This includes former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and Nixon himself.

"There's no way," said Charles E. Potter, chairman of the three-man trust that oversees the money. "The trust agreement doesn't provide for that."

Another trustee, Guilford Dudley, Jr., said he also understands that Nixon could not use the money.

The third trustee, Paul Barrick, was unavailable for comment. Barrick recently replaced Stans, who resigned as a trustee.

The trust reported $3.4 million cash on hand when it filed its most recent report in June. Since then it has agreed to settle a lawsuit brought by the Democratic party for $775,000. It also reported bills outstanding of $560,000, leaving a bit more than $2 million. This is expected to be cut further when Mitchell submits his legal bills.

Nixon could find himself faced with legal bills mounting into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. He already is a defendant in one Watergate lawsuit, and conceivably could be named in other civil suits or in possible criminal cases.

Taxpayers paid for at least $382,474 in fees, salaries and expenses for the team of White House lawyers who defended him in the Watergate affair and preliminary impeachment proceedings, according to a General Accounting Office audit released in May.

That figure continues to rise. Lawyers J. Fred Buzhardt and James D. St. Clair are still on the payroll. But many of the 17-member team of Watergate lawyers were packing up this week in the wake of Nixon's resignation. Some were planning to take vacations, then start looking for new jobs.

Nobody knows how much already has been paid in legal fees by the 50 men and 14 corporations charged with Watergate crimes. Such information normally is a confidential matter between attorney and client.

However, enough information has spilled onto the public record to show that the figure runs well into the millions.

Some examples:

—Lawyer William O. Bittman testified to the House Judiciary Committee that his firm was paid $156,000 to defend Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr.

—Lawyer Henry Rothblatt is suing Nixon for $117,000 in unpaid legal fees for representing the original five Watergate burglars in the early days of the case.

—Stans submitted legal fees of $381,692 to the Nixon campaign trust after he was acquitted in the Vesco case.

—The trust said it anticipated that Mitchell would also submit a legal bill, which presumably also would approach $400,000.

4 Charged In Robbery Of Hitchhikers On I-80

Charges were filed in Seward County Court Tuesday against four people involved in the armed robbery of two hitchhikers Monday afternoon.

Seward County Atty. Curtis Evans said armed robbery charges were filed against Ray Crockett, Glendale, Ariz., and against a 17-year-old youth.

Evans said charges of aiding and abetting an armed robbery were filed against Crockett's wife, Diane M., and against a 17-year-old girl. Evans said he was witholding the identifies of the two 17-year-olds pending notification of their parents.

Evans said the boy was from Las Vegas, Nev., and the girl was from Virginia.

The charges stemmed from an incident Monday afternoon in which the four picked up Gerry Greenberg, 20, and Lori Steinberg, 18, hitchhiking on Interstate 80 near Lincoln, the York County sheriff's office said. Evans said both of the girls are from New York.

The sheriff's office said the Crockett car then traveled to a county road near Goehner where the New York girls were forced from the car at gunpoint and their personal belongings taken from them. No money was taken, the spokesman said.

The sheriff's office said the car was stopped three miles east of the Waco interchange on Interstate 80. The spokesman said the four people offered no resistance and that the gun is still being sought.

The car was stopped by units of the State Patrol and the York County sheriff's office, and sheriff's office said.

State SCS Conservation Job Filled

Russell L. Shultz, a USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS) resource conservationist at Topeka, Kan., has been promoted to Nebraska state resource conservationist, according to W. J. Parker, state conservationist.

Russell Shultz

Named To Post

Shultz, a native of Fairbury, will assume his new position on Aug. 19. He will have state-wide SCS responsibilities for resource conservation planning and technical supervision in agronomy, range, biology, woodland, recreation, and plant materials.

He began his SCS career as a student trainee at Fairbury, in 1955, while enrolled at the University of Nebraska. Upon graduation, he was moved to Kearney as a soil conservationist. In 1960, Shultz was transferred to Boise, Idaho, and spent 12 years there as district conservationist in charge of field conservation operations.

Shultz has been resource conservationist at Topeka since November, 1972, providing staff leadership in resource planning for Northeast Kansas. In that position, he received an outstanding USDA Soil Conservation Service performance rating in 1973.

Rubber Crossings Test Asked

The Nebraska Department of Roads has requested approval of the Federal Highway Administration for the proposed installation of an experimental rubber railroad crossing material in northeast Lincoln.

The proposed project would be at the intersection of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad tracks and North 56th Street near Seward Street.

A design study report is available at 302 Superior Street. Copies of the report, including an environmental impact statement, are available from the Department of Roads Main Office, P.O. Box 94759, Lincoln, NB 68509.

Blast Destroys Implement Firm At Kearney

Kearney (AP) — An explosion here shortly after midnight Tuesday morning destroyed the building housing Brodine Inc., a farm implement business.

Firemen said the blast may have been a natural gas explosion but they are uncertain of the cause.

There were no injuries and no damage to adjoining buildings, except minor damage to a small frame structure next door.

A fire which broke out after the explosion was controlled by firemen and was brought under control before 2 a.m.

Police Gridders Draw Fire, Praise

By IVAN TRAVNICEK
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Police Department's program of hiring "Big Red" football players as policemen for the summer has drawn both fire and praise.

One former police officer said beat officers, sometimes called "door shakers," are resentful of the fact that the football players ride around in patrol cars, getting cruiser time the beat policemen might otherwise get.

Cruiser duty is coveted by the officers.

The former policeman who declined to be identified, said beat officers get quite a bit of cruiser time during the colder months, but when summer comes all or nearly all the available cruiser time is taken up.

Police Chief Joseph Carroll said the athletes cannot be put on foot patrol because they haven't gone through the eight-week recruit training school. The athletes must be under the supervision of an experienced officer at all times, he said.

Carroll said beat officers don't get any cruiser time at all. He said newly hired men are always put on foot patrol and their next step on the promotion ladder is usually to a motorcycle or sometimes directly to a cruiser.

And beat patrolmen have many other duties besides checking doors, Carroll said, in response to the "door shaker" title. He said they make tavern checks, direct traffic and perform other duties, none of which the football players are trained for.

A member of the Lancaster County Sheriff's Department, who declined to be identified, said the football player is more visible to the public if he rides in a cruiser. He said many football players are something of a celebrity and people would be more willing to talk to him.

FOOTBALLER LEE . . . at work as summertime policeman.

"When the officer says 'I'm Willie Harper,' or 'I'm Jeff Kinney,' a witness will talk his head off," he explained.

Another former policeman said some of the football players were really good, "in particular, Jeff Kinney" during the summer of 1971.

NU football middle guard John Lee said he was glad to get the opportunity to work for the Lincoln Police this summer since his major course of study is criminal justice.

Lee said he appreciated the chance to see a part of the criminal justice system from the inside.

He said he plans to return to New Jersey after graduation and do some sort of police related work.

"Policemen athletes" are chosen by the NU Athletic Department and assistant coaches, then they undergo screening and tests by the police department.

Bob Grenfell, athletic director for the downtown YMCA, an offensive guard for the Cornhuskers in 1970, worked that summer for the police department.

He said "there wasn't much screening involved. The purpose is to try to find jobs for some of the athletes."

It was very informal, he said, "coaches just asked who is going to be needing work."

Chief Carroll says he received two free season Cornhusker football tickets. NU Ticket Office Manager Jim Pittenger said quite a few people get free tickets, but how he determines who is to get those tickets is "a very involved process."

Many other police officers are admitted to the games on complementary passes, but they are expected to assist with any law enforcement that becomes necessary during football games.

Six football players are working for the police department this summer: John Lee, Stephen Weiser, Dennis Pavelka, Timothy McGuire, Willie Thornton and Victor Young.

Also, there are three law students working for the department: Terry Wiseman, William Guest and Mary Cook.

Finding or promising work for athletes during the summer does not violate National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

Nixon Can't Use Leftover Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trustees for some $2 million left over from former President Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign say he can't use the money for any legal fees he may incur.

Leftover campaign funds are being used to pay legal expenses of former Nixon campaign officials John N. Mitchell, Maurice H. Stans and others.

But the money can't be used to pay legal fees for anyone who did not hold an official position in the campaign organization, trustees say. This includes former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and Nixon himself.

"There's no way," said Charles E. Potter, chairman of the three-man trust that oversees the money. "The trust agreement doesn't provide for that."

Another trustee, Guilford Dudley, Jr., said he also understands that Nixon could not use the money.

The third trustee, Paul Barrick, was unavailable for comment. Barrick recently replaced Stans, who resigned as a trustee.

The trust reported $3.4 million cash on hand when it filed its most recent report in June. Since then it has agreed to settle a lawsuit brought by the Democratic party for $775,000. It also reported bills outstanding of $560,000, leaving a bit more than $2 million. This is expected to be cut further when Mitchell submits his legal bills.

Nixon could find himself faced with legal bills mounting into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. He already is a defendant in one Watergate lawsuit, and conceivably could be named in other civil suits or in possible criminal cases.

Taxpayers paid for at least $382,474 in fees, salaries and expenses for the team of White House lawyers who defended him in the Watergate affair and preliminary impeachment proceedings, according to a General Accounting Office audit released in May.

That figure continues to rise. Lawyers J. Fred Buzhardt and James D. St. Clair are still on the payroll. But many of the 17-member team of Watergate lawyers were packing up this week in the wake of Nixon's resignation. Some were planning to take vacations, then start looking for new jobs.

Nobody knows how much already has been paid in legal fees by the 50 men and 14 corporations charged with Watergate crimes. Such information normally is a confidential matter between attorney and client.

However, enough information has spilled onto the public record to show that the figure runs well into the millions.

Some examples:

—Lawyer William O. Bittman testified to the House Judiciary Committee that his firm was paid $156,000 to defend Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr.

—Lawyer Henry Rothblatt is suing Nixon for $117,000 in unpaid legal fees for representing the original five Watergate burglars in the early days of the case.

—Stans submitted legal fees of $381,692 to the Nixon campaign trust after he was acquitted in the Vesco case.

—The trust said it anticipated that Mitchell would also submit a legal bill, which presumably also would approach $400,000.

4 Charged In Robbery Of Hitchhikers On I-80

Charges were filed in Seward County Court Tuesday against four people involved in the armed robbery of two hitchhikers Monday afternoon.

Seward County Atty. Curtis Evans said armed robbery charges were filed against Ray Crockett, Glendale, Ariz., and against a 17-year-old youth.

Evans said charges of aiding and abetting an armed robbery were filed against Crockett's wife, Diane M., and against a 17-year-old girl. Evans said he was witholding the identifies of the two 17-year-olds pending notification of their parents.

Evans said the boy was from Las Vegas, Nev., and the girl was from Virginia.

The charges stemmed from an incident Monday afternoon in which the four picked up Gerry Greenberg, 20, and Lori Steinberg, 18, hitchhiking on Interstate 80 near Lincoln, the York County sheriff's office said. Evans said both of the girls are from New York.

The sheriff's office said the Crockett car then traveled to a county road near Goehner where the New York girls were forced from the car at gunpoint and their personal belongings taken from them. No money was taken, the spokesman said.

The sheriff's office said the car was stopped three miles east of the Waco interchange on Interstate 80. The spokesman said the four people offered no resistance and that the gun is still being sought.

The car was stopped by units of the State Patrol and the York County sheriff's office, and sheriff's office said.

State SCS Conservation Job Filled

Russell L. Shultz, a USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS) resource conservationist at Topeka, Kan., has been promoted to Nebraska state resource conservationist, according to W. J. Parker, state conservationist.

Russell Shultz.

Named To Post

Shultz, a native of Fairbury, will assume his new position on Aug. 19. He will have state-wide SCS responsibilities for resource conservation planning and technical supervision in agronomy, range, biology, woodland, recreation, and plant materials.

He began his SCS career as a student trainee at Fairbury, in 1955, while enrolled at the University of Nebraska. Upon graduation, he was moved to Kearney as a soil conservationist. In 1960, Shultz was transferred to Boise, Idaho, and spent 12 years there as district conservationist in charge of field conservation operations.

Shultz has been resource conservationist at Topeka since November, 1972, providing staff leadership in resource planning for Northeast Kansas. In that position, he received an outstanding USDA Soil Conservation Service performance rating in 1973.

Rubber Crossings Test Asked

The Nebraska Department of Roads has requested approval of the Federal Highway Administration for the proposed installation of an experimental rubber railroad crossing material in northeast Lincoln.

The proposed project would be at the intersection of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad tracks and North 56th Street near Seward Street.

A design study report is available at 302 Superior Street. Copies of the report, including an environmental impact statement, are available from the Department of Roads Main Office, P.O. Box 94759, Lincoln, NB 68509.

Blast Destroys Implement Firm At Kearney

Kearney (AP) — An explosion here shortly after midnight Tuesday morning destroyed the building housing Brodine Inc., a farm implement business.

Firemen said the blast may have been a natural gas explosion but they are uncertain of the cause.

There were no injuries and no damage to adjoining buildings, except minor damage to a small frame structure next door.

A fire which broke out after the explosion was controlled by firemen and was brought under control before 2 a.m.

I'd like to donate my body after death to the University of Nebraska Medical Center. Where can I write to make formal and legal arrangements?

— XYZ, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Write the medical center anatomy department, 42nd and Dewey Sts., Omaha, 68105, for deeded body program materials. Forms signed by the donor and two witnesses who are not members of the donor's family provide a binding legal document giving the medical school permission to use your body for instruction purposes.

— Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hurst, California

ACTION LINE: Watch your mailbox. Gary Buehler promised he would send your pictures this week. He blamed the delay on the processors who printed the color pictures.

"The quality was never as good as I expected," Buehler said, "so I had to send them back three times."

What noise standards do motorcycles have to meet?

— Glenn Alleman, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Motorcycles are inspected to meet state safety standards requiring an adequate exhaust system just as automobiles, said Glenn Eppens, administrator of the inspection division, State Motor Vehicles Dept.

Nebraska does not have a specific measure for noise, he said. It's up to the law official to decide if the noise level of a specific vehicle is endangering safety standards.

June 18 my husband and I signed a contract for the purchase of an organ from Music City Inc., Omaha. I was out of town for several weeks after the instrument arrived. When I finally got to play it, it sounded cheap and raspy. It is a fun organ — I'm a church organist! Will I be forced to buy an instrument I don't like?

— Mrs. Doug Grawl, Deshler

ACTION LINE: Dick Wilson, owner of Music City Inc., said the organ you signed the contract to buy was the same instrument demonstrated to you. However, he said he would contact you and give you the option to exchange the organ for a larger model if you would like.

He added this bit of advice: "You contacted the salesman with this complaint. Always go to the owner or manager first. You'll get faster action that way."

On July 1, we licensed a pick-up truck we bought in June. We were charged for nine months instead of a half year. Why must we pay for a license we didn't even use for three months?

— A. L., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Jan Graham of the Lancaster County Motor Vehicles Dept. said that the license fee is charged from the date of purchase and is figured in quarters of a year. She said that when the title is transferred, you take ownership and it is required that you be charged for licensing the vehicle, whether you drive it or not.

Please clarify the duties of our state ombudsman. Is it possible to contact him for personal consumer problems?

— Mrs. Doug Graul, Deshler

ACTION LINE: State Ombudsman Murrell B. McNeill is the public official responsible for handling citizen complaints against state government. You can call him at 471-2035 or write him at Room 2010, Capitol Building, Lincoln 68509.

But consumer complaints, about a product purchased for example, do not fall under his jurisdiction. However, any complaint dealing directly with a state agency, such as inspections, are referred by him to the proper agency.

How can I buy foreign stock?

—Tom Payne, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: First Mid America broker Jim Allard suggests that you contact a United States domestic brokerage firm first. Often foreign stocks are in the daily quotes.

But, he warned, a major concern in buying foreign stock is the product's marketability. "Oftentimes, there is not enough liquidity in foreign stock — not marketed enough so a buyer can easily get in and out of the market," he said.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

Forecast For Wednesday

Sun in Gemini and Virgo rising can be perplexing, emotional, rational yet narrow in sense that the role must be played out, the play read and interpreted a myriad of ways. Lesser persons find this strong Mercury emphasis difficult to fathom — the Gemini-Virgo combinations are found teaching, writing reports, taking pictures, crying, laughing, murmuring, shouting and making a splash wherever and when ever waters appear calm. What should be done with them?

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Careful planning is important to immunization programs so vaccines are given at the proper times and in proper sequence.

The Nebraska Medical Association urges parents to keep an adequate record of immunizations for every family member including date and type of vaccine given.

Most Americans are immunized in childhood for five diseases: smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio. Measles vaccine is now available. Influenza and typhoid fever vaccines are available and recommended when traveling to some parts of the world.

Booster shots are recommended to prevent serveral diseases. For instance, diphtheria toxoid boosters should be given at least every three years until high school age. Whooping cough boosters are given until a child is five or six. Tetanus or lockjaw is always a threat unless a person is adequately immunized. Many physicians recommend every five years for adults.

New Laws May Kill Small Zoos

Stories By Linda Olig

Photos By Frank Varga

MARGAY CAT . . . offspring may be unmarketable because of new federal regulations.

There's a joke making the rounds in zoo circles these days.

It's about A hippopotamus that escaped from the Bronx Zoo and another that wandered from the San Diego Zoo. Taking ocean routes, they met somewhere near the Panama Canal, and began reproducing so rapidly that soon the canal was blocked; a man could cross the waters on the hippo's backs.

To Alan Bietz, director of the Lincoln Children's Zoo, neither the joke nor its underlying basis are cause for laughter.

He's a worried man.

He's concerned that, if the U.S. Department of Interior has its way, he and his staff will be buried under mountains of paper work.

He's also worried that "the wilds of America will be haven for insects and brown rats." Also, if the USDI has its way.

And he is plagued by another thought — that if federal regulations and "bureaucratic red tape" are allowed to continue as he forsees, that all zoos will be phased out of business — all except the "half-dozen or so massive zoos . . . and that will spell death for the smaller zoos, the quality zoos," he moaned.

Bietz's most recent and pressing apprehension stems from the Endangered Species Act, which took effect Dec. 28, 1973, and a new USDI interpretation of the Lacy Act. The "Injurious Wildlife" interpretation is now in its final stages. Implementation and enforcement of both acts will be the responsibility of the USDI.

The new regulations, attached to the Lacy Act, established in 1900 to prevent the importation of animals that would be harmful to the country, would, in essence block the importation of animals that could possibly upset the ecological balance of nature.

"What bothers zoo people the most, according to Bietz, is that the two lists naming high- and low-risk animals "were made seemingly without any scientific basis."

Animals named as "high risk" by the USDI are those which present potential danger to man, forestry, agriculture and commerce were they to escape and form fertile populations, the zoo director said. Among those named high-risk are the giraffe, the hippopotamus, the rhinoceros, in essence "the whole animal kingdom and reptiles, too," Bietz said.

"The thought that giraffes will escape from the Omaha Henry Doorly Zoo and reproduce to such an extent that they would take over Lincoln's 27th Street is ridiculous," he observed. "Are rhinos going to escape and start multiplying so they impede interstate traffic between Omaha and Lincoln?"

"There never has been a documented case of animals becoming established in an area as the result of escaping from a zoo," Bietz said.

Ironically, the animals considered "low-risk" by the USDI, among them the gerbil, the hamster, the guinea pig, the Monk parakeet and other related birds, rats, mice and a wide range of fish, are "some of the highest risk animals imaginable," Bietz pointed out. "These same animals . . . are perhaps the worst offenders. The Monk parakeet is taking over the country right now."

"USDI people say zoos are inhumane," Bietz said when asked why the zoos are facing such stiff regulations. "They say if the animals can't survive in the wild they're not interested in preserving them in American zoos.

"Of the millions of animals imported every year, zoos account for only four-tenths of one per cent," with the majority destined to be pets, he said.

"Zoos are the last to say some type of regulatory machinery is not needed . . . But to lump zoos desperately trying to establish breeding programs to save these animals with" those who want them for pets "is a grave injustice."

Zoo representatives are asking the department to take another look and see if the regulations must apply to zoos. They want a blanket permit to get mates for animals now in captivity.

Because it is an interpretation not a bill, no Congressional action is required for the proposed regulations to become law, he continued. And the 60 days allowed for public comment are running out.

Bietz and other zoo directors from across the country recently attended a hearing on this matter in Kansas City, Mo. They all agreed that, "if this law goes through there will be virtually no animals coming into this country without special permit."

Dick Vaughn, supervisor of the Municipal Zoo, also attended the hearing. "Some things definitely need to be ironed out," he said, adding that he doesn't expect the full impact of the controversial proposals to be felt by the Antelope Park facility. "We don't import animals. We get captive-raised animals from other zoos."

Permit applications then would require, among other things, a full statement of why the zoo wants the animal, what it is going to do with it, the feeding and medical programs, what type of exhibit is to be provided and what will be done with the animal upon its death.

"To apply for three or four animals for one season may take a year or better," Bietz said. "We can't live with having to apply separately for each and every animal.

"The Children's Zoo has a limited budget. It operates on zero tax money. It's only funding is from gate (receipts) and private donations. To field an office staff to keep up with the mountainous paperwork we would have to double our existing budget," the director said.

While the Injurious Wildlife interpretation will have a serious impact on the importation of animals, the Endangered Species Act regulates all endangered animals in captivity and their offspring through a similar permit system, as well as a prohibition on all commercial traffic of such animals.

Bietz already has felt the impact of this federal regulation.

The Children's Zoo houses a breeding pair of Margay cats, an exotic spotted jungle strain. A Florida zoo offered a female Margay cat to the local facility.

Bietz said he contacted the USDI seeking permission to acquire the animal but was refused because the rules had not as yet been interpreted. He was told that a full application, must be submitted; upon receipt of the application, his request would be considered; then it would be published in the Federal Register for 30 days after which the USDI would issue its decision.

That would take too long, he decided. "I just gave up. For all I know the cat is still in Florida.

"The same proposal causing this problem is supposed to be protecting endangered animals."

Although zoos have the obligation of providing recreation for the public, that is not their sole function, Bietz pointed out.

They also educate the public and work closely with wildlife and game personnel to provide positive conservation steps; they are research facilities; and last, but not least, they exist for the hoped-for propagation of the species.

Animals, particularly rare ones, that are reproduced in captivity often are traded or sold to other zoos so a broader spectrum of the population has the opportunity to see those species, Bietz said.

At least that's the way it used to be.

As things stand now, under the Endangered Species Act, animals reproduced in one zoo must remain there.

That has brought zoo directors face-to-face with the possibility of having such endangered animals as the Bengal tiger or the leopard literally taking over the zoos, leaving little space for other species.

They are facing the dilemma of continuing to breed those animals in an effort to save the species or halting their breeding programs and letting the species die a sad death, Bietz said.

"We will continue (a breeding program) as long as we can; our conscience won't permit us to do otherwise," he said of the Children's Zoo's stand on the issue.

Other zoos, already inundated by certain species of animals considered endangered in their natural habitats have been forced to selectively kill off animals that otherwise would have been placed in zoos waiting to obtain those species.

And symposiums on sterilization and/or birth control for rare, endangered animals are being planned across the nation.

Of the vanishing exotic, endangered animals, Bietz said. "In the next 20 years, they're going to be dead . . . dead and gone.

"Our hands are tied."

Pool Could Remain Empty

COMPLETED BUT EMPTY . . . the sea lion pool is inspected by Bietz who criticizes the "bureaucratic red tape" that has kept sea lions from Lincoln.

It was years in the planning.

All last season and part of this visitors to the Lincoln Children's Zoo were rerouted around construction workers and machinery and a pile of dirt.

After years of enthusiastic planning, the zoo's sea lion pool is a reality.

But it remains empty. A $50,000-plus facility stands idle.

"It's just another example of the same bureaucratic red tape" encountered by zoos the nation over in their struggle to wrestle rare animals from the stronghold of governmental agencies, said Alan Bietz, zoo director.

But this time the zoo's problems were with the U.S. Department of Commerce and the National Marine Fisheries Service, which enforces the Marine Mammal Protection Act, he said.

After days of preparations and paperwork, the voluminous application for sea lions was mailed, complete to the last detail, March 15. An indicator of the massive document submitted was its postal charge — nearly $10 registered mail, he said.

Despite the highest recommendations from a representative of the National Marine Fisheries Service, sent to inspect the zoo facilities, no word of approval or rejection of the request for the animals has been received to date, Bietz said.

"The U.S. government distributed permits to shoot 2,000 sea lions this year, yet we can't get them for the zoos," he said.

Recalling conversations with other zoo directors in similar predicaments, he said one zoo requested seven sea lions for breeding purposes and was rejected; they were told that was not a sufficient number for breeding stock. However, another zoo requested 17 of the animals for the same purpose and was told it was being greedy.

"We could have had sea lions on exhibit for two-thirds of the season," Bietz said.

Now they will just wait and see.

"We have to assume we have been rejected, although we haven't been told," he added.

Another application may be submitted next year.

But in the meantime, Lincoln's $50,000 sea lion pool stands idle.

"The U.S. government distributed permits to shoot 2,000 sea lions this year, yet we can't get them for the zoos," he said.

Recalling conversations with other zoo directors in similar predicaments, he said one zoo requested seven sea lions for breeding purposes and was rejected; they were told that was not a sufficient number for breeding stock. However, another zoo requested 17 of the animals for the same purpose and was told it was being greedy.

"We could have had sea lions on exhibit for two-thirds of the season," Bietz said.

Now they will just wait and see.

"We have to assume we have been rejected, although .we haven't been told," he added.

Another application may be submitted next year.

But in the meantime, Lincoln's $50,000 sea lion pool stands idle.

Allowances—No Hard, Fast Rule

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

How much of an allowance should Junior receive? Or should he, in fact, receive an allowance at all?

From the time a child is old enough to comprehend the function of money, his or her parents are faced with these and other questions concerning the nature and the benefits of allowances.

The alternatives are many, and, according to a recent article in "Business Week" magazine, "Psychologists and educators point out that there are no hard-and-fast rules."

Dr. Ron Daly, University of Nebraska-Lincoln professor of human development and the family, concurred with this opinion, saying "I don't know of anything definitive" that has been written about allowances.

The amount of an allowance; the manner in which that figure is determined; the way the allowance is to be used, all vary from household to household. And the aforementioned article goes on to state that allowance policies should simply reflect a "sensible" and "consistent" approach, in keeping with the family income level.

Few would disagree that an allowance is a potentially valuable educational tool.

Mrs. L. W. Waldo — whose two daughters, age 15 and 17, have had allowances since they were "about six years old" — said she believes that the allowances have helped the youngsters learn to budget.

And they (the allowances) "have given them an appreciation for money.

"Ever since they were old enough to know what money is," the Waldo children have been given a weekly allowance. Over the years, the amounts of those allowances have grown, in order to keep pace with the spending needs of the recipients.

"We include such things as church, savings, spending money, and, now that they're getting older, some clothing," Mrs. Waldo said.

"We encourage them to make a spending plan," she continued, indicating that, from time to time, she and her husband confer with the girls in order to determine the amount of the allowances.

"Our oldest girl has now requested a total clothes allowance, and we're thinking of giving her a checking account," Mrs. Waldo said.

Although some families require that the children perform, certain tasks around the house in return for an allowance, Mrs. Waldo explained that, in her family, allowances are not really considered payment for work.

"They have certain duties they are expected to do, with or without the allowance," she said. "Occasionally, if they do something extra, we will pay them extra for it."

The two boys and two girls (now age 16 to 21) in the D. K. Jensen family have never received an "allowance" per se.

According to Mrs. Jensen, who, with her husband, owns a local variety store, "We've had our children work in the store from the time they were small."

There have always been certain jobs the children could perform, she said, and they have been paid for their work "on an hourly basis."

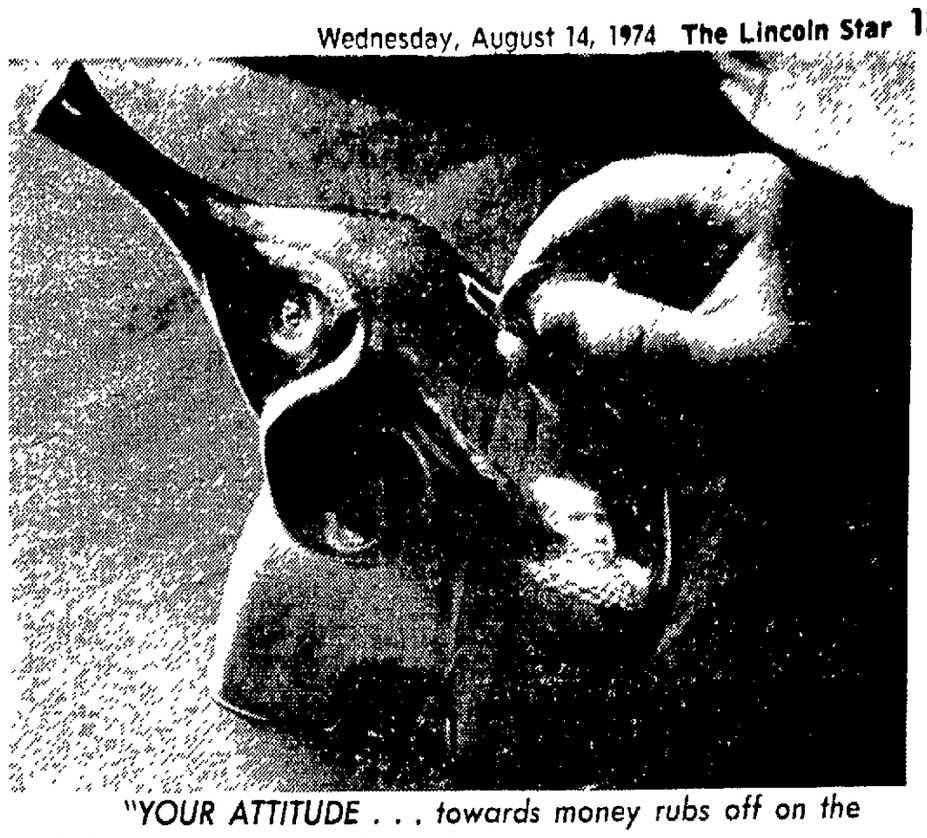
Although Mrs. Jensen noted that she and her husband have never actually helped their children plan comprehensive budgets, "We've tried to guide them along the way."

In the "Business Week" article, a New York psychologist is quoted as saying, "What's really important to understand is that your attitude towards money rubs off on the kids. They'll tend to do with pennies or a dollar what you do on a bigger scale."

Although the article does not provide any rules for allowances, the following guidelines are offered:

- A small child may be provided with a dime or two per week. However, he or she should never be given more money than can be managed easily.
- By the age of 10, when a child is better able to understand financial operations, a regular amount of money should be provided "in order to provide some spending options."
- And when a youngster reaches the age of 13 or 14, he or she should be encouraged to begin actually budgeting his or her allowance.

A child's allowance should be in line with those received by his peers, the article suggests. And, as the child grows older, it should include provision for some excess cash so that the child is given the opportunity to learn to save a portion of his or her income.



"YOUR ATTITUDE . . . towards money rubs off on the kids," says a New York psychologist.

Policeman Tricked Her

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: While I was driving my car, a traffic officer suddenly appeared, and signaled for me to pull over. I promptly obeyed and asked him what I had done wrong.

He asked me to get out of the car, and when I did, he looked me over — but good. Then he asked me for my driver's license, which I gave him. Meanwhile, I was trembling like a leaf.

I noticed that he made a note of my name and address. Then he said: "You were exceeding the 35 mile-per-hour speed limit, but if you let me see you when I'm off duty, I'll call this a "warning'." Then he smiled and told me his first name.

Abby, I was NOT going over the speed limit, and I was angry because he tricked me into stopping. Besides, I have a boyfriend and I'm not interested in seeing anyone else, but I didn't want a ticket so I said, "Okay."

Now, what if he calls me?

BLONDIE

DEAR BLONDIE: Tell him if he wants to charge you with "resisting an officer" to go ahead, because he's not all that irresistible.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, you had something in your column about people who have a misdemeanor on their record and how to get it removed.

At age 18, I was wrongly accused of being an accomplice to a minor shoplifting offense. (Ten Dollars.) Being very much upset by the whole thing, I didn't fight the charge. I just went to court, paid the fine and it was put on my record.

I am now 21, married and want to apply for employment, but the previous job (where the shoplifting incident took place) was the only one I've ever had, so I wonder if you can help me.

I don't think a person should be penalized the rest of his life for one minor mistake at an early age.

If it's possible to get this off my record, how do I go about it?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BE: If you have been in no legal difficulty for a year following the incident, go to the Probation Department and inquire about the possibility of "sealing" your records.

Once they are sealed, it is as though they never existed and you may apply for a job without mentioning the fact that at one time you had this on your record. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: So many older people grumble about how "neglected" they are. I wonder if it ever occurred to them that if they made an effort to be good company, they might attract more people. I realize that nobody can be cheerful all the time, but people who talk of nothing but illness, death, hardships present and past, will find that even close relatives give up, and pay only an occasional "duty" visit, and never stay any longer than they have to.

Take my mother: My husband and I drove 300 miles to take her out for dinner on Mother's Day. My husband has a wonderful sense of humor and he tried so hard to entertain her, but he couldn't get her to brighten up no matter how hard he tried.

She spent the whole time talking about illness, and death, and everybody's bad luck, and all the depressing subjects in the world.

We could have spent much more time with her, but four hours of her company put us both so down in the dumps we couldn't wait to leave. I was depressed for two days afterwards.

Abby, she's so much better off than many others, but she complains constantly, throwing constant digs about how nobody ever comes to see her. I wish she realized that not ALL older people are avoided. Only the crepe-hangers. Please print this. She may see it and get the hint.

HAD IT WITH MOM

DEAR HAD IT: Don't bet the rent. If she sees it, she'll probably apply it to some of her friends.

Allowances—No Hard, Fast Rule

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

How much of an allowance should Junior receive? Or should he, in fact, receive an allowance at all?

From the time a child is old enough to comprehend the function of money, his or her parents are faced with these and other questions concerning the nature and the benefits of allowances.

The alternatives are many, and, according to a recent article in "Business Week" magazine, "Psychologists and educators point out that there are no hard-and-fast rules."

Dr. Ron Daly, University of Nebraska-Lincoln professor of human development and the family, concurred with this opinion, saying "I don't know of anything definitive" that has been written about allowances.

The amount of an allowance; the manner in which that figure is determined; the way the allowance is to be used, all vary from household to household. And the aforementioned article goes on to state that allowance policies should simply reflect a "sensible" and "consistent" approach, in keeping with the family income level.

Few would disagree that an allowance is a potentially valuable educational tool.

Mrs. L. W. Waldo — whose two daughters, age 15 and 17, have had allowances since they were "about six years old" — said she believes that the allowances have helped the youngsters learn to budget.

And they (the allowances) "have given them an appreciation for money.

"Ever since they were old enough to know what money is," the Waldo children have been given a weekly allowance. Over the years, the amounts of those allowances have grown, in order to keep pace with the spending needs of the recipients.

"We include such things as church, savings, spending money, and, now that they're getting older, some clothing," Mrs. Waldo said.

"We encourage them to make a spending plan," she continued, indicating that, from time to time, she and her husband confer with the girls in order to determine the amount of the allowances.

"Our oldest girl has now requested a total clothes allowance, and we're thinking of giving her a checking account," Mrs. Waldo said.

Although some families require that the children perform certain tasks around the house in return for an allowance, Mrs. Waldo explained that, in her family, allowances are not really considered payment for work.

"They have certain duties they are expected to do, with or without the allowance," she said. "Occasionally, if they do something extra, we will pay them extra for it."

The two boys and two girls (now age 16 to 21) in the D. K. Jensen family have never received an "allowance" per se.

According to Mrs. Jensen, who, with her husband, owns a local variety store, "We've had our children work in the store from the time they were small."

There have always been certain jobs the children could perform, she said, and they have been paid for their work "on an hourly basis."

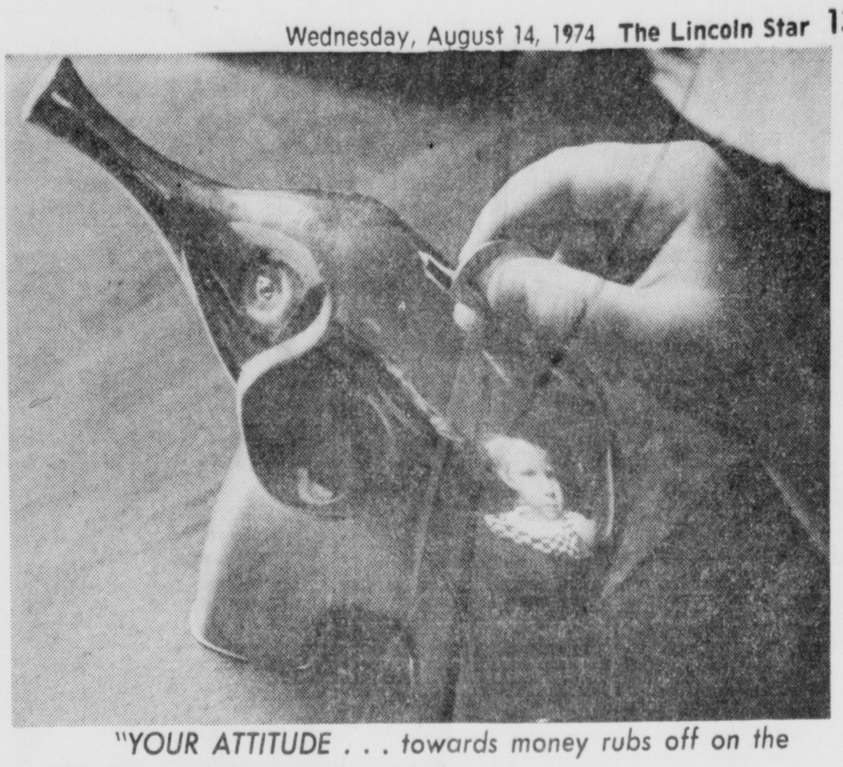
Although Mrs. Jensen noted that she and her husband have never actually helped their children plan comprehensive budgets, "We've tried to guide them along the way."

In the "Business Week" article, a New York psychologist is quoted as saying, "What's really important to understand is that your attitude towards money rubs off on the kids. They'll tend to do with pennies or a dollar what you do on a bigger scale."

Although the article does not provide any rules for allowances, the following guidelines are offered:

- A small child may be provided with a dime or two per week. However, he or she should never be given more money than can be managed easily.
- By the age of 10, when a child is better able to understand financial operations, a regular amount of money should be provided "in order to provide some spending options."
- And when a youngster reaches the age of 13 or 14, he or she should be encouraged to begin actually budgeting his or her allowance.

A child's allowance should be in line with those received by his peers, the article suggests. And, as the child grows older, it should include provision for some excess cash so that the child is given the opportunity to learn to save a portion of his or her income.



"YOUR ATTITUDE . . . towards money rubs off on the kids," says a New York psychologist.

Policeman Tricked Her

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: While I was driving my car, a traffic officer suddenly appeared, and signaled for me to pull over. I promptly obeyed and asked him what I had done wrong.

He asked me to get out of the car, and when I did, he looked me over — but good. Then he asked me for my driver's license, which I gave him. Meanwhile. I was trembling like a leaf.

I noticed that he made a note of my name and address. Then he said: "You were exceeding the 35 mile-per-hour speed limit, but if you let me see you when I'm off duty, I'll call this a "warning'." Then he smiled and told me his first name.

Abby, I was NOT going over the speed limit, and I was angry because he tricked me into stopping. Besides, I have a boyfriend and I'm not interested in seeing anyone else, but I didn't want a ticket so I said, "Okay."

Now, what if he calls me?

BLONDIE

DEAR BLONDIE: Tell him if he wants to charge you with "resisting an officer" to go ahead, because he's not all that irresistible.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, you had something in your column about people who have a misdemeanor on their record and how to get it removed.

At age 18, I was wrongly accused of being an accomplice to a minor shoplifting offense. (Ten Dollars.) Being very much upset by the whole thing, I didn't fight the charge. I just went to court, paid the fine and it was put on my record.

I am now 21, married and want to apply for employment, but the previous job (where the shoplifting incident took place) was the only one I've ever had, so I wonder if you can help me.

I don't think a person should be penalized the rest of his life for one minor mistake at an early age.

If it's possible to get this off my record, how do I go about it?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BE: If you have been in no legal difficulty for a year following the incident, go to the Probation Department and inquire about the possibility of "sealing" your records.

Once they are sealed, it is as though they never existed and you may apply for a job without mentioning the fact that at one time you had this on your record. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: So many older people grumble about how "neglected" they are. I wonder if it ever occurred to them that if they made an effort to be good company, they might attract more people. I realize that nobody can be cheerful all the time, but people who talk of nothing but illness, death, hardships present and past, will find that even close relatives give up, and pay only an occasional "duty" visit, and never stay any longer than they have to.

Take my mother: My husband and I drove 300 miles to take her out for dinner on Mother's Day. My husband has a wonderful sense of humor and he tried so hard to entertain her, but he couldn't get her to brighten up no matter how hard he tried.

She spent the whole time talking about illness, and death, and everybody's bad luck, and all the depressing subjects in the world.

We could have spent much more time with her, but four hours of her company put us both so down in the dumps we couldn't wait to leave. I was depressed for two days afterwards.

Abby, she's so much better off than many others, but she complains constantly, throwing constant digs about how nobody ever comes to see her. I wish she realized that not ALL older people are avoided. Only the crepe-hangers. Please print this. She may see it and get the hint.

Psyche Them Out With Button-Power

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

New York (UPI) — When's the last time you used a button to psyche someone out? To stop 'em cold, get in the last word, or preach?

If you say "never" — well, shame. It's time you caught up with buttonpower.

Jo Freeman, a Ph.D. and college political science teacher, says you really can make yourself heard with buttons. Your cause may be botanical, "African Violet, Don't Shrink," or it may be tied in with a movement, "Upitty Women Unite."

In an interview, Dr. Freeman, assistant professor of political science at the State University of New York in Purchase, talked addiction to buttons. To wit:

— Buttons give you the opportunity to pursue impulses you normally might repress.

— Buttons make public statements about strongly felt issues.

— Buttons help you psyche people out.

— Buttons are excellent signaling devices.

— Buttons give one a chance to say things repeatedly without being repetitive.

In a report in Ms. Magazine, Dr. Freeman analyzed the impact of buttons in the women's movement, starting from 1964 when she was a boat-rocking student at the University of California in Berkeley. She was one of 800 arrested that year for taking over the administration building.

"The Women's Liberation Movement began during the height of the contemporary button craze," she said, "consequently buttons reflect the movement's history and development with greater consistency than its political tracts."

"Since I am a feminist it was natural that my ambition would be to have the world's largest feminist button collection," Dr. Freeman said. She has about 250 feminist buttons.

The buttons proliferated in 1969 and 1970. Dr. Freeman said the two most often collected, worn and shared by movement women are those created by Robin Morgan and Cindy Cisler.

In 1969, Ms. Morgan created a feminist button depicting a clenched fist inside the biological female symbol. Dr. Freeman says that button combined the elements of defiance and revolution with that of femaleness.

Cindy Cisler created an equality pin for the First Congress to United Women in November of 1969 It was an equal sign inside a female symbol.

Dr. Freeman feels it was the simple designs that helped popularize the Morgan and Cisler buttons.

In connection with the report, "Say It With Buttons," Ms. Magazine offers a starter set of 13 feminist buttons for $2. The set includes buttons with these slogans: Sexism Is A Social Disease, Equal Partnership In Marriage, Equal Rites For Women, Don't Fly Me — Fly Yourself, Women — Make Policy Not Coffee; Child Care Centers Now, and a button with a hanger painted on. The hanger, before legalized abortion, often was used to induce illegal abortions, killing some women.

Other movement buttons carry these slogans: Womanpower Is Much Too Good to Waste, We Try Harder and Get Paid Less, You've Come A Long Way, Baby — Who's A Baby? Sisterhood Is Powerful, Call Me Ms., Disarm the Rapist, Girls Need a Future, Too, Jesus Was A Feminist, Secretaries Are More Than Typewriters, I Am Furious Female.

If you don't want to wear someone else's aphorism, Dr. Freeman suggests you wear your own. The next time you think of a perfect squelch, get it on a button.

"Look up manufacturers under 'Buttons' in the yellow pages."

She added:

"Letters to the editor are rarely printed and the chance to make public speeches is available to only a few, but anyone can wear a button.

"It's a good way to start a conversation if you're in the mood to talk and to recruit if you want to proselytize."

Remove Stains

To remove fresh perspiration stains, sponge or rinse with cool water, then neutralize the acid by applying a paste of baking soda and water. Diluted ammonia (½ water) can also be applied to neutralize acids. Rinse with cool water. Launder.

For old perspiration stains, rinse or sponge with cool water. Since old stains become alkali, neutralize by applying diluted white vinegar (½ water) or lemon juice. Rinse with cool water again. Launder.

Opening lead — four of clubs.

Situations occasionally arise during the play where your only hope of making a contract, or defeating one, lies in persuading an opponent that a condition exists which, in fact, does not exist.

It doesn't matter whether you classify this type of warfare under the heading of deception, falsecarding, or any other name; what matters is whether you succeed in selling your adversary a bill of goods.

Here is an unusual case where West very cleverly defeated a contract that declarer would normally have made. It seemed to West that a heart lead offered very little chance of collecting four tricks, so he started the ball rolling with his singleton club.

East took the A-K and returned a club which West ruffed with the king! As a result of this extraordinary play, South went down one.

Declarer won the heart return with the ace, led a spade and finessed the nine after East followed low. West took the setting trick with the ten, and that was the end of that.

If West had ruffed with the ten, as any sane person would have done, declarer would probably have made the hand. West by this time would have become firmly marked by the bidding with the king of spades, after East had shown up with the A-K of clubs, and declarer would presumably have nailed the king by playing the ace instead of trying to finesse.

Ruffing with the king was an effective way of selling South the idea that West could not have the jack or ten, and that the contract could be made only by finessing the nine. Perhaps declarer should not have fallen into the trap, but who can argue with success?

Bad Concert Year Hard On Pershing

It has been a bad year for rock concerts, Pershing Auditorium Manager Ike Hoig told auditorium directors at a board meeting Tuesday morning.

And a bad year for rock concerts, is a bad year for Pershing, he said. The concerts have traditionally made more money for the auditorium than any other program.'

Pershing hosted only one rock concert this summer, he said, Aerosmith on July 21.

The auditorium took in $191,000 by August, the end of the auditorium's fiscal year, Hoig said. Last year's total was more than $252,000, he said.

Pershing is about $50,000 in debt, he said.

Hoig said the gasoline shortage discouraged rock band tours last winter. Groups stuck to concerts in large, coastal towns, he said.

A nation-wide trend to outdoor concerts also reduced Pershing's concerts during the summer, Hoig said.

He said attendance is steady, and the board hopes cooler weather will drive concerts indoors and increase Pershing's income.

Czech Festival Runner-Up Vies For New Title

Wilber — Lu Ann Tichy, first runner-up in the annual Czech Festival Queen Pageant, has accepted an invitation to compete in the Miss Dogpatch U.S.A. contest being held this week in Dogpatch, Ark.

Miss Tichy is the first Nebraskan to enter the pageant, which will feature contestants from 30 other states.

Crowning of Miss Dogpatch is scheduled for Saturday night. The winner will receive $2,500, a $1,000 wardrobe and the use of a new car for a year.

Centrum Cost Lower Than First Thought

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The city's consultants said Tuesday it's going to cost less to build the Centrum than first estimated in June — some $1.2 million less.

Consultants Barton-Aschman have set the project's cost at $7.4 million, which consultant Jack Kerry explained was a more refined estimate than the $8.6 million figure set earlier this summer.

The consultants are recommending that the city issue $3.63 million in parking revenue bonds to help finance the parking garage portion of the building. The city is proposing to build a 1,000-car facility on the southern half of the block, from 11th to 12th, N to O.

The financial report — and particularly the method of financing — will be up for public discussion during a public hearing before the City Council. That hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

General Obligation Bonds

Earlier this year several lawmakers suggested the city should finance the entire project with general obligation bonds. Such action would require a vote of the people, and a negative vote would kill the project.

If revenue bonds are issued, however, no vote would be required.

Those bonds would be paid off with the fees collected from garage customers.

In addition to issuing $3.63 million in bonds, Barton-Aschman and the city administration is recommending the Centrum be financed with:

—$2.3 million in highway allocation funds.

—$637,000 received from the sale of land in the northern part of the block fronting O to private developers, who would build the retail outlets.

—$835,000 from revenue sharing coffers.

A break-down of the total $7,404,200 cost of the Centrum shows that:

—construction of the garage would cost $3,450,000.

—purchasing land in the block would cost $2,706,200.

—demolition of present structures would cost $260,000.

—relocating present stores would cost $200,000.

—hiring engineering and other professional services to advise the city and design the garage would cost $278,000.

—improving the sidewalk area through street furniture, ornamental lighting and installation of brick tiles would cost $160,000.

—relocating utilities would cost $150,000.

—financing the bonds would cost $200,000.

Kerry explained that the consultants have been "as liberal as possible in estimating costs and as conservative as possible in estimating revenues."

Decision Not Likely

While a City Council decision on which bonding route to follow is possible Wednesday night, it is not likely, since the lawmakers also will hear numerous citizen requests and comments on the proposed 1974-75 budget.

On Monday the council took significant steps in moving the Centrum plants off the drawing boards by declaring that downtown block blighted and by approving conceptual design plans for the complex.

That action gave the consultants and the city the green light to begin appraisals of the 20 stores in the block and to formulate a redevelopment plan.

3-Year-Old Boy Shoots Mother

Rochester, N.Y. (AP) — Three-year-old Jeffrey Cala apparently accidentally shot and killed his mother, police said.

"A .22-caliber rifle was in the house probably for family protection," a spokesman said. "It appears the child knew where the gun was and was playing with it."

Neighbors said Jeffrey's mother, Donna Cala, was pregnant.

Man Pleads Innocent To Vehicle Homicide

A 28-year-old Lincoln man pleaded innocent Tuesday to a misdemeanor offense of motor vehicle homicide filed in connection with the July 26 car-pedestrian accident which claimed the life of 65-year-old Adahbelle S. Griffis.

Darrell E. Wilson, 1410 Plum, was charged with causing Mrs. Griffis' death by failure to yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian.

Lancaster County Judge Jeffre Cheuvront set Sept. 18 for trial. Bond was set at $500.

Mrs. Griffis, 2725 South, died of injuries suffered when she was struck while walking across South Street at the intersection of South and Bradfield Dr.

According to police at the time of the mishap, Mrs. Griffis, a special education teacher at Everett Junior High School, was in the unmarked west crosswalk and was thrown some 60 feet from the point of impact.

Immanuel Plans Resuming Emergency Medical Care

Omaha (UPI) — Plans were underway to resume emergency service at Immanuel Medical Center on the city's North Side, a hospital spokesman told the Douglas County Board Tuesday.

In a letter to the board, Lloyd M. Peterson, chairman of the Immanuel board of trustees, said the center would provide 24-hour emergency service and would be staffed with licensed doctors and nurses.

The terms of the contract were being negotiated with Creighton University, Peterson said.

Douglas County filed suit in district court last month to compel the hospital to resume its emergency service.

If the service is resumed before Sept. 16, the county attorney's office would move for immediate dismissal of the suit, as specified by a stipulation filed Monday afternoon with the district court clerk.

Princess Fusako Dies In Japan

Tokyo (AP) — Princess Fusako Kitashirakawa died here, the imperial household said. She was 84.

The princess was the seventh daughter of Japanese Emperor Meiji (1852-1912). Her husband, Prince Naruhisa, died in 1927 in an automobile crash.

She became a commoner in 1947 when a postwar law limited imperial status to members of the reigning family.

School Board Invites Tuition Court Test

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"I hate to invite one," Supt. John Prasch said Tuesday, but "I almost think we need a court case to clarify" the law on free school privileges for non-resident students.

The Lincoln Board of Education responded immediately, paving the way for a legal test.

Board attorney Willis Hecht agreed with Prasch, saying, "I'd like a little more law since 1917," the year of a State Supreme Court ruling which gives the school district a basis for granting or denying tuition-free attendance.

Application Denied

The issue arose at the board meeting, after Hecht recommended denial of a non-tuition application by Arthel Eugene Crump, 2715 Torchlight Lane. Crump applied on bahalf of his brother-in-law, Patrick Cooke, 16, of New York City.

A law student with one pre-school-age child, Crump appeared before the board to appeal Hecht's recommendation. Crump said Cooke, who would be a Lincoln High senior, primarily wanted a change of environment from the crime and narcotics in the Bronx and to attend Lincoln's better schools.

He said Cooke's parents would provide three-fourths of their son's support. The amount of parental financial support would have a bearing on the tuition issue, in that such support indicates ability to pay.

Hecht explained he bases his recommendation of refusal primarily on the intent of Cooke not to become a permanent resident of Lincoln, but just to attend school. Mere presence lacks merit as an argument for free school, he said.

But in an important side issue, Hecht acknowledged, "The fact is, I'm just scared to death of Waverly students" and others outside the Lincoln district "making the same arrangements." He predicted there will be "a flood of them" if the board relaxes its policy.

Board member Louis Roper agreed, saying if the board okayed Cooke's application, "You have no defense" against any other non-resident who applies for free tuition, whatever the reasons.

Board president T. E. Dewey told Hecht that if applicants "knew how to fill out the form," supplying the "right" answers to satisfy district requirements, "you'd pass every one of them."

Noting that applicants "are under oath," Hecht nevertheless agreed.

Hecht said it would be unfair to Lincoln taxpayers to allow an influx of non-resident students into the district. By allowing Cooke's application, he said, "We may as well quit taking applications . . . because the presence of the child would be the only factor," contrary to the intent of the Legislature.

Supt. Prasch said the tuition issue will be a "growing problem because of the greater mobility of folks."

Board members asked Crump if he had considered becoming Cooke's guardian, a simple legal tool allowing approval of the application Crump said the law supports him and that seeking guardianship of Cooke would be "superfluous" to the principle involved.

Hecht also indicated a judge would be reluctant to grant a guardianship only to satisfy a child's educational needs.

The attorney said he had told Crump, "It'd be good legal experience for him" as a law student to take the issue to court. Should that happen, "We would be willing to defer" payment of tuition, Hecht said.

Suit Contemplated

The board accommodated Prasch and Hecht, unanimously voting to deny Cooke's application, and stipulating that the superintendent and board attorney meet with Crump to discuss trying the case.

The board also provided that if litigation follows and Cooke attends Lincoln High, it would not anticipate payment — if necessary — until after the case is settled.

Hecht admitted that currently if the disposition of a free-tuition student is later reversed, the district makes no tuition charge if the student withdraws from school. If the child stays in school, payment must then be made.

Current school revenues from non-tuition students are approximately $12,000 yearly, according to an administration official. The charges vary from about $600 in kindergarten to $1,400 in high school.

Offer To Sell 2 Schools To Be Drawn Up

The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday authorized school district business officials to work up an offer to sell Whittier or Bryan or both schools to the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech)

Although financing of SeTech is uncertain after the State Supreme Court ruled as unconstitutional a property tax levy for the six community college areas, Supt John Prasch said SeTech is "now ready to start making some long-term plans"

Timing will be a factor if the school district vacates Whittier Junior High, 2240 Vine, where some SeTech Lincoln campus offices and classrooms, are already located, Prasch said

'Ideal' For Handicapped

If SeTech decides it doesn't want Bryan School, 1701 S 40th, now used exclusively by the college, it would be "an ideal location" for public school programs for handicapped children, he said

Whittier Junior High School is located near a declining section of Lincoln on Vine St, east of the University of Nebraska campus and has faced both declining enrollments and discipline problems

Responding to board member Pearl Goldenstein's comment that Whittier's disposition should be considered in the Clinton area redevelopment with city planners, Prasch said he is "not minimizing those concerns."

He submitted that "having that as the main campus for the community college may be a real advantage" for the neighborhood. One SeTech board member has suggested privately that the college could investigate using UNL dorms for SeTech students.

"At the same time," Prasch said, "we don't want to further disadvantage the youngsters" attending Whittier.

Under Consideration

Southeast Community College officials said Tuesday the offer was under consideration, along with another proposal that SeTech move to the defunct Pershing College in Beatrice, offered without cost to NU.

Prasch also reviewed with board members a response to parents of children attending Prescott School, who protested the transfer of principal Bernard Nutt.

The board agreed that Prasch should meet with Prescott parents, PTA members, the principal and staff to assess parent relationships and develop plans to insure appropriate involvement in decision-making

The board also requested formation of a committee composed of Near South Neighborhood Association and PTA officers, the Prescott principal and two staff members, and the district operations and maintenance director to recommend a master plan to improve the Prescott site

In other business, the board approved a tentative policy statement regarding resident handicapped students. It stipulates that students placed in special programs will be separated from other students only as necessary to serve their special needs or to meet program requirements

Remodeling Reviewed

Prasch reviewed with board members a proposed timetable for remodeling the 60-year-old Lincoln High School, 22nd & J. He said no total cost has been determined yet, but estimates are more than $1 million.

The three-year project will begin in summer 1975, with four phases to be completed by the end of the 1976-77 school year.

The board approved preliminary plans for the addition to May Morley School, 68th & Montgomery, including a change to add a stage in the gym.

In other business, the board:

—Preliminarily approved a request for a city swimming pool on the Meadow Lane School site, 7200 Vine, indicating concern for protecting residents directly northeast from lights

—Decided to form committees to name the new elementary school in the Southwood Addition on Tipperary Trail, and to select a fall date to dedicate the new Zeman School

—Approved a contract agreement with the Operation and Maintenance Association for 1974-75, allowing 10 2% overall salary increases Negotiations for food service workers are still underway; they have requested raises of 15-17% overall

—Heard Prasch report district officials are deciding how to handle identification cards and tokens for student discount rates on city buses, pending City Council approval

—Agreed the district should seek interviews with lawyers who have access to or are members of law firms, to replace retiring board attorney Willis Hecht

The board will meet next at 7 p m. Aug. 27 in the Public Schools Administration Building, 720 S. 22nd

Writing Program Called 'Ambitious'

Without saying so directly, the Lincoln Public Schools this fall will try to relieve college English professors' headaches brought on by term papers that murder the language.

The district will launch in 11 schools a written composition project that its administrators admit is "ambitious — if not brash."

The program, for kindergarten through 12th grade, was designed after Lincoln teachers, administrators, students and parents conducted an analytic writing study during the past school year.

Shared Responsibility

All faculty members will share responsibility in developing students' writing habits.

During 1974-75, the "K-12 Composition Program" will be tried in Calvert, Meadow Lane, West Lincoln and Zeman Elementary Schools; Culler, Everett and Mickle Junior Highs, and all four senior high schools.

In a report to the Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday on the project, English consultant Dorothy Young noted that its principles even include one declaring, "Teachers need to write."

The program is organized to expose the total writing process in parts throughout the grades and to assure continuity of instruction.

Kindergarteners will write by dictation to get language experience. Through each grade, teachers will concentrate, successively, on retelling, personal story telling, creativity, fluency of words, variety of writing forms, development of greater awareness, expressing moods, ideas and feelings, clarifying, valuing and detailing, influencing by writing to a specific audience, and organization.

Electives Offered

In grades 11 and 12, students may take electives on specialized writing.

As well as providing in-service training for teachers to learn classroom methods, they must use instructional materials provided.

"Research and actual experience tell us that repetitive teaching of grammar does not improve students' writing," according to the report to the board Still, a functional knowledge about parts of speech and sentence structure will be emphasized

Instructional materials and teaching methods will be evaluated during the 1974-75 school year, Young reported. Trained teachers will assess student writings with pilot school teachers, with the information to suggest how the district should adapt the program after May 1975

Teachers will also measure how well stated goals for basic composition and individual talents and interests were met. Young said pilot testing will be done in grades four, seven and ten this school year.

EPIC Program OKd

The board approved another new program, Educational Participation in the Community (EPIC), presented Tuesday after completion of three months planning.

EPIC allows high-school age students to be involved in community service for school credit, up to 30 hours over three semesters.

The school district has committed $18,500 to EPIC if $15,340 in federal funds are approved formally. School officials have received verbal approval.

Coordinator Jim Leestma told board members volunteer placements will generally be for one semester, at least eight hours weekly. During the first quarter this fall, the staff will try to recruit 30 students and develop placements for them.

Leestma said EPIC will bring together community service agencies that need volunteers and students who may apply what they learn in the classroom.

School Board Invites Tuition Court Test

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"I hate to invite one," Supt. John Prasch said Tuesday, but "I almost think we need a court case to clarify" the law on free school privileges for non-resident students.

The Lincoln Board of Education responded immediately, paving the way for a legal test.

Board attorney Willis Hecht agreed with Prasch, saying, "I'd like a little more law since 1917," the year of a State Supreme Court ruling which gives the school district a basis for granting or denying tuition-free attendance.

Application Denied

The issue arose at the board meeting, after Hecht recommended denial of a non-tuition application by Arthel Eugene Crump, 2715 Torchlight Lane. Crump applied on bahalf of his brother-in-law, Patrick Cooke, 16, of New York City.

A law student with one pre-school-age child, Crump appeared before the board to appeal Hecht's recommendation. Crump said Cooke, who would be a Lincoln High senior, primarily wanted a change of environment from the crime and narcotics in the Bronx and to attend Lincoln's better schools.

He said Cooke's parents would provide three-fourths of their son's support. The amount of parental financial support would have a bearing on the tuition issue, in that such support indicates ability to pay.

Hecht explained he bases his recommendation of refusal primarily on the intent of Cooke not to become a permanent resident of Lincoln, but just to attend school. Mere presence lacks merit as an argument for free school, he said.

But in an important side issue, Hecht acknowledged, "The fact is, I'm just scared to death of Waverly students" and others outside the Lincoln district "making the same arrangements." He predicted there will be "a flood of them" if the board relaxes its policy.

Board member Louis Roper agreed, saying if the board okayed Cooke's application, "You have no defense" against any other non-resident who applies for free tuition, whatever the reasons.

Board president T. E. Dewey told Hecht that if applicants "knew how to fill out the form," supplying the "right" answers to satisfy district requirements, "you'd pass every one of them."

Noting that applicants "are under oath," Hecht nevertheless agreed.

Hecht said it would be unfair to Lincoln taxpayers to allow an influx of non-resident students into the district. By allowing Cooke's application, he said, "We may as well quit taking applications . . . because the presence of the child would be the only factor," contrary to the intent of the Legislature.

Supt. Prasch said the tuition issue will be a "growing problem because of the greater mobility of folks."

Board members asked Crump if he had considered becoming Cooke's guardian, a simple legal tool allowing approval of the application. Crump said the law supports him and that seeking guardianship of Cooke would be "superfluous" to the principle involved.

Hecht also indicated a judge would be reluctant to grant a guardianship only to satisfy a child's educational needs.

The attorney said he had told Crump, "It'd be good legal experience for him" as a law student to take the issue to court. Should that happen, "We would be willing to defer" payment of tuition, Hecht said.

Suit Contemplated

The board accommodated Prasch and Hecht, unanimously voting to deny Cooke's application, and stipulating that the superintendent and board attorney meet with Crump to discuss trying the case.

The board also provided that if litigation follows and Cooke attends Lincoln High, it would not anticipate payment — if necessary — until after the case is settled.

Hecht admitted that currently if the disposition of a free-tuition student is later reversed, the district makes no tuition charge if the student withdraws from school. If the child stays in school, payment must then be made.

Action Delayed On GE Request

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday delayed for one week action on a request by General Electric to move a 138-ton power terminal across county roads.

Lancaster County Engineer Walter Hoppe expressed concern that moving such heavy objects across five-inch asphalt could damage the roads and bridges.

GE representatives and representatives for the moving firm said they had moved heavier objects over four-inch asphalt without doing any damage.

They said a $500,000 bond would be posted to insure that the county would be reimbursed if damage occured.

Hoppe said that the roads involved would cost $150,000 to replace. He also said damage does not always become apparent immediately.

The Lancaster County Attorney's office said that before the county board decides whether a permit should be issued it should be determined if the object could be disassembled for moving and if it must be transported on paved roads.

Deputy County Attorney Gary Schneider also indicated that the wording of the bond guarantee would need to be changed to insure that the county would be reimbursed for any damage incurred.

In other business, the board appointed the commissioners' administrative assistant, Wayne Hart, to be the personnel officer for the county as required by the law which implements the new county personnel plan.

The commissioners also delayed an additional week the proposal for leasing property at the southwest corner of 27th and O for needed county office space.

The board has been seeking space outside the overlycrowded County-City Building for the offices of County Superintendent of Schools, Veterans' Service and the driver's license issuance station.

According to Commissioner Jan Gauger, the architect who has been looking at possible locations for the county offices, needed more time to look into costs.

The commissioners also deferred for three weeks — until the county attorney has an opportunity to study a new law — requests for county maintenance of streets in rural subdivisions.

Children Home After U.S. Vacation

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — One hundred and twenty children from Belfast's worst strife-torn areas returned home Tuesday after a six-week vacation in the United States.

As they struggled down the steps of the plane laden with baseball bats, football helmets and other gifts, their faces indicated they were pleased to see their families but worried to be back to the troubles of their native land.

"I was sorry to leave. I could go out and play and not get shot at," said Sheila Kane, 11.

"I am sad and happy," said 11-year-old Joseph Keenan, who said he will plead with his parents to move to the United States and leave Northern Ireland. "I hope to go back next year if we haven't emigrated before then."

Paul Hamilton, an 11-year-old Protestant from Belfast's tough East End, said he too would like to live in the States.

"I have not seen a soldier or a rifle nor heard a bomb in 6½ weeks," he said. "It was great."

Gerard Mcauley, a 12-year-old Roman Catholic from the Divis Flats complex on the Falls Road, described his vacation as "great over there with no fighting, no killing, all peace."

All the children were delighted with the families they stayed with in Minnesota and other states in the Upper Midwest.

Twins Stephen and Thomas Madden, 12, from the Park Road section of Belfast, a terrorist area, said it was "marvelous to find no trouble between Roman Catholic and Protestant children on the tour. Why can't everyone at home act in the same way?"

One father who waited several hours for the flight said, "We cannot thank the people of Minneapolis enough. Maybe these children will let the Americans and the rest of the world see that Ulster people can live in harmony. Let them see, too, we are not all savages."

Belfast's Lord mayor William Christie said:

"I only hope that the day is not too far distant when we can extend a similar invitation to children from the United States."

The project which took the children to America was sponsored by the Hibbing, Minn., Rotary Club. The club sponsored a similar program in 1973.

Israelis Shell Refugees

By The Associated Press

Israeli naval gunboats shelled a Palestinian refugee camp on Lebanon's Mediterranean coast in an hour-long raid Tuesday, the Israeli military command said.

Palestinian guerrillas reported one person was killed and six wounded in the attack by four gunboats supported by warplanes on the Rashidieh camp near the southern Lebanese city of Tyre. Reports from Tyre said more than 25 houses in the camp were either destroyed or damaged as well as several houses outside the camp.

The Palestine news agency Wafa said Palestinian guerrilla and Lebanese army artillery repelled the Israeli attack and the return fire set an Israeli gunboat ablaze.

The Israeli command said the gunners' hit their target — a building which served as a terrorist naval headquarters. A command spokesman said the camp was used to launch "a terrorist motorboat" Friday night which was sunk by an Israeli gunboat while attempting to reach the Israeli coast.

The spokesman said the Israeli warships returned safely to base but did not say how many ships were involved.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said in a communique that five Israeli gunboats slipped five to eight miles inside Lebanese territorial waters.

Three gunboats shelled the refugee camp while the other two clashed with Lebanese army positions for 20 minutes, it said.

One vessel was seen retreating with fire blazing on board, the the communique said.

The Palestinian sources said the Israeli gunboats came close enough to shore to be observed from vantage points around the camp. The camp has been the target of repeated Israeli air raids recently.

On Friday, Israeli warplanes hammered targets in the southeastern corner of Lebanon known as Arkoub.

Fremont Bank Heist Getaway Car Found

Fremont (AP) — A car used in a getaway from the holdup of the First State Bank Tuesday was found later in Fremont.

A lone gunman escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Fremont police said the car, owned by resident of Arlington, was stolen earlier Tuesday in Fremont and was recovered later near the Midland College campus.

A private plane was used in the search.

Police also said the Federal Bureau of Investigation had taken the case over. One suspect was questioned and released.

John Stohs, chief cashier, said the man entered the bank and produced a small pistol. He took three cash drawers.

Stohs said the man was wearing a gray baseball cap and sunglasses.

Jeff Draemel, First State assistant vice president, said he did not know if more than one person was involved in the robbery. The State Patrol and local officials issued a pickup description for a white car bearing Washington County license plates.

Officials said there may have been as many as four persons in the car.

Allen Fryer Given Life Sentence

ROCK RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Convicted murderer Allen Fryer was sentenced to the mandatory life prison term Tuesday for his part in the shotgun killings of four South Dakota teen-agers in an Iowa park.

Fryer told District Judge James P. Kelley before sentencing, "I'm not guilty." Kelley then gave him a life sentence on each of four counts of first degree murder, with the sentences to run concurrently.

Fryer and two brothers were charged with four counts of first degree murder each in the Nov. 17, 1973, killings of the four Sioux Falls boys in northwest Iowa's Gitchie Manitou State Park.

No motive has been made public for the slayings, but the prosecution has hinted that the men intended to steal marijuana from the boys.

A girl who witnessed the shootings said she and the boys were smoking marijuana around a campfire when the men appeared with shotguns

The girl, Sandra Cheskey of rural Sioux Falls, was 13 at the time. She testified she saw several of the boys shot, then was driven home by Allen.

Allen was convicted last May. He was being held in the jail here, awaiting sentencing, when he and brother James escaped June 19. They were recaptured the same day in Gillette, Wyo.

James, 21, is undergoing a psychiatric examination to determine if he is capable of standing trial.

The third brother, David, 24, pleaded guilty to one open count of murder and is serving a life sentence at the penitentiary.

Prosecutor Not Wanted Always

HONOLULU (AP) — Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Bork, who carried out former President Nixon's order to fire Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor, said Tuesday he opposes creation of a permanent special prosecutor's office.

To do so "would freeze in an institutional form the message that the executive is never to be trusted," Bork told the American Bar Association.

About 5,000 delegates of the lawyers' group opened debate on ethics, the image of lawyers in the post-Watergate era and the problem of the high cost of legal services.

Also before the ABA convention was the question of taking a position on the possible prosecution of Nixon for alleged Watergate crimes.

Bork commended as excellent the work of the two special Watergate prosecutors, Cox and Leon Jaworski. But he said if the office was made permanent future prosecutors might not produce such standards of excellence.

"I happen to be the Justice Department's resident expert on special prosecutors," Bork joked to his luncheon audience. "I've seen them come and seen them go."

On orders from Nixon, Bork fired Cox on Oct. 20, 1973, after Cox refused to give up his pursuit of White House tape recordings.

Cox, also attending the convention, told newsmen earlier he opposes any immediate decision as to whether Nixon should face prosecution for alleged Watergate crimes.

"I think we ought to let it simmer for a while. I would not be inclined to pop off as some have," he said.

A resolution went before the estimated 5,000 delegates Tuesday, dealing in general terms with the potential prosecution of Nixon.

Action Delayed On GE Request

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday delayed for one week action on a request by General Electric to move a 138-ton power terminal across county roads.

Lancaster County Engineer Walter Hoppe expressed concern that moving such heavy objects across five-inch asphalt could damage the roads and bridges.

GE representatives and representatives for the moving firm said they had moved heavier objects over four-inch asphalt without doing any damage.

They said a $500,000 bond would be posted to insure that the county would be reimbursed if damage occured.

Hoppe said that the roads involved would cost $150,000 to replace. He also said damage does not always become apparent immediately.

The Lancaster County Attorney's office said that before the county board decides whether a permit should be issued it should be determined if the object could be disassembled for moving and if it must be transported on paved roads.

Deputy County Attorney Gary Schneider also indicated that the wording of the bond guarantee would need to be changed to insure that the county would be reimbursed for any damage incurred.

In other business, the board appointed the commissioners' administrative assistant, Wayne Hart, to be the personnel officer for the county as required by the law which implements the new county personnel plan.

The commissioners also delayed an additional week the proposal for leasing property at the southwest corner of 27th and O for needed county office space.

The board has been seeking space outside the overlycrowded County-City Building for the offices of County Superintendent of Schools, Veterans' Service and the driver's license issuance station.

According to Commissioner Jan Gauger, the architect who has been looking at possible locations for the county offices, needed more time to look into costs.

The commissioners also deferred for three weeks — until the county attorney has an opportunity to study a new law — requests for county maintenance of streets in rural subdivisions.

Children Home After U.S. Vacation

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — One hundred and twenty children from Belfast's worst strife-torn areas returned home Tuesday after a six-week vacation in the United States.

As they struggled down the steps of the plane laden with baseball bats, football helmets and other gifts, their faces indicated they were pleased to see their families but worried to be back to the troubles of their native land.

"I was sorry to leave. I could go out and play and not get shot at," said Sheila Kane, 11.

"I am sad and happy." said 11-year-old Joseph Keenan, who said he will plead with his parents to move to the United States and leave Northern Ireland. "I hope to go back next year if we haven't emigrated before then."

Paul Hamilton, an 11-year-old Protestant from Belfast's tough East End, said he too would like to live in the States.

"I have not seen a soldier or a rifle nor heard a bomb in 6½ weeks," he said. "It was great."

Gerard Mcauley, a 12-year-old Roman Catholic from the Divis Flats complex on the Falls Road, described his vacation as "great over there with no fighting, no killing, all peace."

All the children were delighted with the families they stayed with in Minnesota and other states in the Upper Midwest.

Twins Stephen and Thomas Madden, 12, from the Park Road section of Belfast, a terrorist area, said it was "marvelous to find no trouble between Roman Catholic and Protestant children on the tour. Why can't everyone at home act in the same way?"

One father who waited several hours for the flight said, "We cannot thank the people of Minneapolis enough. Maybe these children will let the Americans and the rest of the world see that Ulster people can live in harmony. Let them see, too, we are not all savages."

Belfast's Lord mayor William Christie said:

"I only hope that the day is not too far distant when we can extend a similar invitation to children from the United States."

The project which took the children to America was sponsored by the Hibbing, Minn., Rotary Club. The club sponsored a similar program in 1973.

Israelis Shell Refugees

By The Associated Press

Israeli naval gunboats shelled a Palestinian refugee camp on Lebanon's Mediterranean coast in an hour-long raid Tuesday, the Israeli military command said.

Palestinian guerrillas reported one person was killed and six wounded in the attack by four gunboats supported by warplanes on the Rashidieh camp near the southern Lebanese city of Tyre. Reports from Tyre said more than 25 houses in the camp were either destroyed or damaged as well as several houses outside the camp.

The Palestine news agency Wafa said Palestinian guerrilla and Lebanese army artillery repelled the Israeli attack and the return fire set an Israeli gunboat ablaze.

The Israeli command said the gunners' hit their target — a building which served as a terrorist naval headquarters. A command spokesman said the camp was used to launch "a terrorist motorboat" Friday night which was sunk by an Israeli gunboat while attempting to reach the Israeli coast.

The spokesman said the Israeli warships returned safely to base but did not say how many ships were involved.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said in a communique that five Israeli gunboats slipped five to eight miles inside Lebanese territorial waters.

Three gunboats shelled the refugee camp while the other two clashed with Lebanese army positions for 20 minutes, it said.

One vessel was seen retreating with fire blazing on board, the the communique said.

The Palestinian sources said the Israeli gunboats came close enough to shore to be observed from vantage points around the camp. The camp has been the target of repeated Israeli air raids recently.

On Friday, Israeli warplanes hammered targets in the southeastern corner of Lebanon known as Arkoub.

Fremont Bank Heist Getaway Car Found

Fremont (AP) — A car used in a getaway from the holdup of the First State Bank Tuesday was found later in Fremont.

A lone gunman escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Fremont police said the car, owned by resident of Arlington, was stolen earlier Tuesday in Fremont and was recovered later near the Midland College campus.

A private plane was used in the search.

Police also said the Federal Bureau of Investigation had taken the case over. One suspect was questioned and released.

John Stohs, chief cashier, said the man entered the bank and produced a small pistol. He took three cash drawers.

Stohs said the man was wearing a gray baseball cap and sunglasses.

Jeff Draemel, First State assistant vice president, said he did not know if more than one person was involved in the robbery. The State Patrol and local officials issued a pickup description for a white car bearing Washington County license plates.

Officials said there may have been as many as four persons in the car.

Allen Fryer Given Life Sentence

ROCK RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Convicted murderer Allen Fryer was sentenced to the mandatory life prison term Tuesday for his part in the shotgun killings of four South Dakota teen-agers in an Iowa park.

Fryer told District Judge James P. Kelley before sentencing, "I'm not guilty." Kelley then gave him a life sentence on each of four counts of first degree murder, with the sentences to run concurrently.

Fryer and two brothers were charged with four counts of first degree murder each in the Nov. 17, 1973, killings of the four Sioux Falls boys in northwest Iowa's Gitchie Manitou State Park.

No motive has been made public for the slayings, but the prosecution has hinted that the men intended to steal marijuana from the boys.

A girl who witnessed the shootings said she and the boys were smoking marijuana around a campfire when the men appeared with shotguns.

The girl, Sandra Cheskey of rural Sioux Falls, was 13 at the time. She testified she saw several of the boys shot, then was driven home by Allen.

Allen was convicted last May. He was being held in the jail here, awaiting sentencing, when he and brother James escaped June 19. They were recaptured the same day in Gillette, Wyo.

James, 21, is undergoing a psychiatric examination to determine if he is capable of standing trial.

The third brother, David, 24, pleaded guilty to one open count of murder and is serving a life sentence at the penitentiary.

Prosecutor Not Wanted Always

HONOLULU (AP) — Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Bork, who carried out former President Nixon's order to fire Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor, said Tuesday he opposes creation of a permanent special prosecutor's office.

To do so "would freeze in an institutional form the message that the executive is never to be trusted," Bork told the American Bar Association.

About 5,000 delegates of the lawyers' group opened debate on ethics, the image of lawyers in the post-Watergate era and the problem of the high cost of legal services.

Also before the ABA convention was the question of taking a position on the possible prosecution of Nixon for alleged Watergate crimes.

Bork commended as excellent the work of the two special Watergate prosecutors, Cox and Leon Jaworski. But he said if the office was made permanent future prosecutors might not produce such standards of excellence.

"I happen to be the Justice Department's resident expert on special prosecutors," Bork joked to his luncheon audience. "I've seen them come and seen them go."

On orders from Nixon, Bork fired Cox on Oct. 20, 1973, after Cox refused to give up his pursuit of White House tape recordings.

Cox, also attending the convention, told newsmen earlier he opposes any immediate decision as to whether Nixon should face prosecution for alleged Watergate crimes.

"I think we ought to let it simmer for a while. I would not be inclined to pop off as some have," he said.

Wrong Blood Type Transfusion Survived

Gainesville, Fla. (UPI) — A 15-year-old girl who lost nearly three quarts of blood from stab wounds has become the first person to survive a severe reaction to a massive transfusion of the wrong type of blood.

The case was disclosed this week in the Journal of the American Medical Association in a report by Dr. O. Aldo Seager, assistant professor of anesthesiology at the University of Florida College of Medicine, and several colleagues at the J. Hillis Miller Health Center.

The report said the young victim, a pregnant Gainesville girl, had lost almost half the blood in her body by the time she reached the emergency room.

She had numerous stab wounds in her chest and neck, including several wounds that penetrated the jugular veins and one wound in the lung.

She reportedly received 3,000 milliliters of type "A" blood — about one half to three fourths the amount of blood normally contained in the body — and two hours later began to develop signs of acute transfusion reaction.

Doctors then learned "the wrong tube of blood had been typed," wrote Dr. Seager. The girl's blood was "O" positive.

The report said the patient has since recovered from the ordeal.

But when the transfusion reaction occurred, doctors feared for her life. Reportedly, an adverse reaction to receiving the wrong blood type occurs about once in every 12,000 transfusions and the death rate is around 40%.

Dr. Seager said transfusion of as little as 200 milliliters of incompatible blood can cause fatal kidney failure.

Dr. Seager said that although the survival rate is 60% for small transfusions of the wrong type blood, this was the first case recorded where a patient had survived such a massive transfusion involving more than 50% of the blood in the patient's body.

Blame City Code Violation For Water Supply Contamination

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

A long standing violation of the city code apparently led to a coliform contamination of the water supply during July at the Center Trailer Court at 40th and Cornhusker.

The Lincoln Lancaster County Health Board was told Tuesday night that several residents of the trailer court experienced stomach cramps, nausea, diarrhea or vomiting as a result of drinking the contaminated water.

Health Department director Dr. Ed Lyman said the water to the trailer court was provided by three private wells, a violation of the city code.

The wells also supplied water to a nearby restaurant and meat locker.

Dr. Lyman said a chlorinator had been placed in the water system and the area was scheduled to be connected to the city water system Wednesday.

Dr. Lyman said the trailer court has been in violation of the city code for a number of years and "all plumbing was installed without benefit of inspection."

The property is owned by the estate of the late Merril Reller.

Dr. Lyman said there have also been no sewer use fees paid since 1957 and the city is suing to recover the money.

The contamination was discovered on a routine monthly sampling, Dr. Lyman said, but the source of the contamination has not been found.

As soon as the contamination was discovered a team of public health nurses went to the trailer court and told the residents of the danger and instructed them on how to sterilize their water.

Nurse Mary Malm told the board there is still a danger of hepatitis developing, since the incubation period for hepatitis runs from 15 to 50 days with a 30 to 35 day average.

The nurses will be doing follow up work in the area, and the water will continue to be sampled by health department employes.

Wrong Blood Type Transfusion Survived

Gainesville, Fla. (UPI) — A 15-year-old girl who lost nearly three quarts of blood from stab wounds has become the first person to survive a severe reaction to a massive transfusion of the wrong type of blood.

The case was disclosed this week in the Journal of the American Medical Association in a report by Dr. O. Aldo Seager, assistant professor of anesthesiology at the University of Florida College of Medicine, and several colleagues at the J. Hillis Miller Health Center.

The report said the young victim, a pregnant Gainesville girl, had lost almost half the blood in her body by the time she reached the emergency room.

She had numerous stab wounds in her chest and neck, including several wounds that penetrated the jugular veins and one wound in the lung.

She reportedly received 3,000 milliliters of type "A" blood — about one half to three fourths the amount of blood normally contained in the body — and two hours later began to develop signs of acute transfusion reaction.

Doctors then learned "the wrong tube of blood had been typed," wrote Dr. Seager. The girl's blood was "O" positive.

The report said the patient has since recovered from the ordeal.

But when the transfusion reaction occurred, doctors feared for her life. Reportedly, an adverse reaction to receiving the wrong blood type occurs about once in every 12,000 transfusions and the death rate is around 40%.

Dr. Seager said transfusion of as little as 200 milliliters of incompatible blood can cause fatal kidney failure.

Dr. Seager said that although the survival rate is 60% for small transfusions of the wrong type blood, this was the first case recorded where a patient had survived such a massive transfusion involving more than 50% of the blood in the patient's body.

Blame City Code Violation For Water Supply Contamination

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

A long standing violation of the city code apparently led to a coliform contamination of the water supply during July at the Center Trailer Court at 40th and Cornhusker.

The Lincoln Lancaster County Health Board was told Tuesday night that several residents of the trailer court experienced stomach cramps, nausea, diarrhea or vomiting as a result of drinking the contaminated water.

Health Department director Dr. Ed Lyman said the water to the trailer court was provided by three private wells, a violation of the city code.

The wells also supplied water to a nearby restaurant and meat locker.

Dr. Lyman said a chlorinator had been placed in the water system and the area was scheduled to be connected to the city water system Wednesday.

Dr. Lyman said the trailer court has been in violation of the city code for a number of years and "all plumbing was installed without benefit of inspection."

The property is owned by the estate of the late Merril Reller.

Dr. Lyman said there have also been no sewer use fees paid since 1957 and the city is suing to recover the money.

The contamination was discovered on a routine monthly sampling, Dr. Lyman said, but the source of the contamination has not been found.

As soon as the contamination was discovered a team of public health nurses went to the trailer court and told the residents of the danger and instructed them on how to sterilize their water.

Nurse Mary Malm told the board there is still a danger of hepatitis developing, since the incubation period for hepatitis runs from 15 to 50 days with a 30 to 35 day average.

The nurses will be doing follow up work in the area, and the water will continue to be sampled by health department employes.

Lightning Control Is Object Of Experiments

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Lightning can be spectacular at a distance, but if you've ever been near when it struck it can be terrifying. Peter Philipps, news editor in the Washington bureau of McGraw-Hill World News, reports on some developments which may save lives and property.)

By Peter Philipps

Washington, — Lightning rods may save the consumer's home, but what about people who are out-of-doors, crops and other unprotected property and objects?

The problem is serious enough to have captured the attention of top scientists and engineers determined to make the physical world safer in the future.

For example, during a recent two-week period, lightning

— Killed a 25-year-old art student as he stood outside his home in Irwin, Pa.

— Knocked out power lines in the southeastern Ohio county of Belmont.

— Set off flash floods and triggered numerous traffic accidents in Pittsburgh.

— And, halfway around the world, toppled an estimated 20,000 trees, cutting a two-mile long, half-mile wide gash in a forest in central Finland.

Scattered as these incidents were, lightning storms are no trifling matter. Globally, lightning strikes the earth 100 times every second. In the United States alone, it kills an average of 150 people each year, more than are killed by tornadoes and hurricanes combined.

In the Pacific Northwest, it causes an estimated 70% of the forest fires. All told, property loss in damaged buildings and vehicles, livestock deaths, forest fires and disrupted communications caused by lightning is estimated at more than $100-million a year.

This heavy toll in lives and property lends special urgency to experiments by the U.S. Interior Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) to suppress lighting and make it less unpredictable and destructive.

Key to the experiment are millions of tiny aluminum-coated nylon fibers that are spewed into a budding thundercloud by two planes on loan from the Air Force. NOAA scientists have found that seeding the cloud with chaff can apparently convert the more violent discharge of a lightning bolt into a harmless discharge known as St. Elmo's Fire, the glowing halo around aircraft wings, ship masts, and high-voltage transmission lines during electrical storms.

To understand how the chaff works it is necessary to understand what causes lightning. In a thunderstorm an enormous electrical potential builds up between a cloud and another oppositely charged cloud or object on the ground. Air, a poor conductor of electricity, acts as an insulator between them. If the charges continue to grow until they are sufficiently large to over come the insulating effect of the air, an electrical channel bridges the gap between them — to wit, a gigantic spark.

The chaff — several millions of ten-centimeter long needles dispersed through the storm along a line several miles long — increases the conductivity of the air and sets off a continous flow of current too weak to force a spark to jump the gap.

Dr. Heinz W. Kasemir, director of the project, says the object of the experiments is not to suppress all lightning, but to develop a way of controlling it. The fact, he notes, lightning is beneficial in that it adds nitrogen to rain and thus the soil. "We want to be able to suppress lightning that comes when it is least welcome," Kasemir says, "for example, during very dry periods in forest areas, and during spacecraft loading and launching operations."

Though NOAA's lightning project is now in its third summer, the experiment is still in its infancy.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Deauville — I was sitting in the bracing sun on the boardwalk at Deauville when a pretty blonde French girl got stung by a yellow jacket. (This is the apple country of France. It swarms with fruit wasps.)

She got stung right at "The String" line — way up yonder. Or way down yonder, however you want to lok at it. Anyway, it was painful and she let out a pretty little yip.

The effect was startling. Waiters dropped their trays. And from all over the beach, gentlemen rushed up to help. They examined that girl in a way to make a medical school envious.

They extracted the sting. At least, that is what I think they did. I could hardly see. Even mechanics were crowding around with pipe wrenches.

☆ ☆ ☆

As you may know, The String comes from the beaches of Rio de Janeiro. A modest patch held on by a string — perhaps the lady ties the string on to remind her of something. Like you tie a string around your finger.

I have been checking The String action — I have the waiter on the boardwalk fixed. He saves me a front-row table.

I checked it out. This is not hard. For the Deauville beach is covered with The String. I mean there are a lot of strings. Actually the string hardly covers anything.

☆ ☆ ☆

The best String wearers are on the beach marked "Privee" and roped off. They sit under umbrellas with little tent sides. However, they do not fix these sides so they can look out to sea.

No, everything faces the boardwalk. From my table I look right at the String wearers. And they look right at me. It makes reporting like this easier.

The boardwalk scene at Deauville is not bad either. We have one antique gentleman who wears baggy, blue shorts. He also wears a double-breasted blue coat with a handkerchief pointing out of the breast pocket.

He wears a polka dot Ascot tie. But no shirt!

On top of his head he wears a white sailor hat. The same kind of sailor hat they issue in the American Navy. He is a gaudy sight on the boardwalk.

We also have a gentleman who looks like Maurice Chevalier. He wears an expensive gray suit. His tie is lifted from the shirt collar by a gold clasp. He wears an English derby and carries a furled umbrella.

He is a picture of splendid dress. Until you get down to his knees.

He rolls his pants up to the knee and walks around barefoot.

Jockey Files Suit Against Nebraska For $1,000,000

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Officials and jockeys expressed surprise Tuesday at a $1 million claim that has been filed against the State of Nebraska by a 23-year-old Albuquerque, N.M., man.

United Press International reported that Eddie Andres Salazar is seeking the money for injuries received in an accident at the State Fairgrounds' race track on Aug. 23, 1972.

An apprentice jockey at the time, he was riding M. A. and R. W. Cole's Prize Wagon in the second running of the Freshman Stakes. That was the feature on the closing-day's program two years ago.

UPI reported that "during the race, the claims unit was told in a statement from his attorney, 'another jockey intentionally, or in flagrant violation of the rules, tripped Mr. Salazar up.'

The result, the statement said, was a broken back. The claims board was told he is now paralyzed from the waist down, UPI said.

"Yes, it surprises me that he filed a suit," said state steward Jack Fickler. "There was no penalty assessed at the time and the rider (Weldon Armstrong on the eventual winner of the race, Rideruron) was held blameless.

"I went to see him in the hospital and it was one of the worst experiences I've ever had," Fickler continued. "As I remember, I talked to the jockeys at Columbus (the next stop on the Nebraska horse racing circuit) and I made that statement that if anything like that was ever done intentionally, I would try to rule them off for life. It was a very emotional thing. I had been told that he (Salazar) would never ride again. Nobody likes to see things like that happen."

Fickler said that Armstrong, a rider with more than 25 years experience, felt as "bad as everyone else." Armstrong, now retired as a jockey, is working as a racing official at Park Jefferson in Jefferson, S.D.

Fickler added that he and other stewards Irv Anderson and Jim Hall looked at the films of the race at least 20 times and the three stewards were convinced the incident was not done intentionally nor was Armstrong at fault for the accident.

State Fairgrounds general manager Henry Brandt said he was unaware of the suit filed by Salazar and was taken by surprise at the action.

"I don't know anything about it and no one from either the state or from the jockey has spoken to me about it," he said.

Fred Ecoffey, who was riding Frank Silik's Funny Nickel (who finished third in the 6-furlong Freshman Stakes), said he only remembered looking at the films of the race once.

"No, I don't think it was done intentionally," he said. "I don't know anything about a lawsuit."

Wayne Anderson, who was aboard Paul Kemling's Whirl A Miss, was back in the pack when the spill occurred on the last turn. But he was quick to defend Armstrong, one of the most popular jockeys to ride in Nebraska.

"Weldon didn't intentionally hurt him," Anderson said. "He's ridden long enough. There was no way he'd hurt someone. There was no penalty at the time and I think that was the right move.

"Weldon was coming around and it looked like maybe his (Armstrong's) horse came in a little and maybe the other horse came out a little, but he felt as bad about what happened as anyone," he said. "Nobody likes to see someone get hurt like that."

According to press reports of the incident, Prize Wagon tumbled, throwing Salazar, who was then knocked down again when Amies Supreme dumped the chestnut colt on top of him.

Amies Supreme then fell, throwing jockey Don Stauffer, who escaped with only minor bruises.

The State claims board is scheduled to hear the case next Tuesday if investigations have been completed by that time, or at its October meeting, UPI reported.

North Cagers Pick Novak As Captain

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Wayne — For recently elected North basketball captain Terry Novak, Friday's upcoming Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star game scheduled at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium carries more significance than a chance for the North to extend its current win skein to four.

For the two-year Sunday Journal and Star Super-State selection, the contest represents a last chance for revenge over cross-town rival Curt Hedberg as both will become teammates for University of Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano this fall.

Hedberg and his East High teammates edged Novak's Rockets three times enroute to the 1974 state basketball tournament.

Unlike the three previous encounters, both Novak and Hedberg will be without the members of their respective high school squads, however, each will be backed by 11 of the best graduated high school basketball players in the state.

"It'll be the last time we're on opposing teams," the 6-3 Novak noted. "Except for scrimmaging at the University. It's definitely a factor in the way I feel about the game. It really makes me look forward to playing."

According to Novak, it appears he has once again drawn the assignment of covering Hedberg offensively, and the easy-going ex-Rocket is confident of his ability to handle the 6-9 Hedberg

"Whether he's inside or outside this game," Novak predicted, "I think I can get to him either way. But I doubt if he'll be guarding me on offense, because of our style."

He was referring to North coach Al Bahe's plans on running a 1-2-2 offense, an offense that might put the Husker bound Novak on the wing. "We only have a one-guard setup," he said. "And I might be playing either underneath or on the wing. If I'm underneath, Hedberg might cover me."

Like the Novak-Hedberg situation, the North has already had a chance for revenge since the camp opened Thursday, and the Yankee squad came through like champions.

Sunday, a team composed of Wayne area college basketball players including Husker forward Steve Erwin dealt the all-stars their first defeat in a game-style scrimmage.

Marc Sparling of Lincoln East shows toll of working out Tuesday morning at Memorial Stadium.

Sparling Eying Wildlife Career

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Crete — Marc Sparling's football future may be an uncertainty, but his career plans are solidly fixed.

"I just want to concentrate on college. If it comes down to that and football, I'll put football out of my mind," says Sparling, the Lincoln East all-state tackle who's training for the South team here for Saturday's 16th annual Shrine Bowl at Memorial Stadium.

"I love to hunt and fish. That's why I want to pursue wildlife management at Nebraska," he says. "I'd like to work with the Game Commission or something . . . just as long as I'm around animals and the outdoors. That's what I love most."

Football used to be Sparling's first and only love. He was a 3-year starter on East teams, which suffered only three losses in three years.

Although his competitive desire remained strong, Sparling admits at least some loss of enthusiasm along the way.

"When I was a sophomore, it was so much fun just to practice," he explains. "Now it's harder for me. I don't know what it is. I guess I just like to enjoy what I do. I'm a carefree type."

If Sparling's lesser desire to compete in football has hindered his effort, the South Shrine coaching staff has been unable to detect it.

"Marc has been as impressive as any tackle we've got," South head coach Milt Tenopir said Tuesday morning after his squad worked out on Memorial Stadium's AstroTurf.

"He's very definitely been well-coached. His technique is very good. He gets his head on you and that's a crucial part of offensive blocking," adds Tenopir.

"Since Pat Gibbons has been hurt, we've worked Marc some on defense, too, and he reacts equally well there," according to Tenopir. "He's exceeded our expectations as far as comparing him with others who were supposed to be better."

Sparling, a B-average high school student, admits "I wanted to prove I was better than I might have been given credit for. I think I'm faster than what some people might have thought."

He also believes necessity forces him to be faster in Shrine Bowl camp.

"We have a lot of talent," declares Sparling. "Darrell (Walton) and Monte (Anthony) are something else. I've never had to block for guys who scatter like they do.

"They're so quick, you have to keep an edge on the block because you don't know which side they're going to," relates Sparling. "If one side's plugged, they'll head the other way. I have to be quicker."

Sparling believes "if I don't try football at Nebraska some people are bound to call me a quitter. Right now, I'm leaning more toward just going to school and concentrating on my studies. I can't see much wrong with that."

Congressmen Enter Strike

By Associated Press

A thorough inspection of pro football's antitrust status was threatened Tuesday by 12 members of the House of Representatives if a fair contract compromise with the striking players' association is not reached or if the union is injured as a result of the 44-day labor dispute.

"We are today calling on both the owners and the players — but . . . particularly the owners, to sit down again Thursday and this time reach a fair compromise agreement," said Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., whose subcommittee on commerce has jurisdiction over restraints of trade. Joining Moss were Congresswoman Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y. and 10 other House members.

Moss said there are now about a half-dozen bills pending that would affect the National Football League's antitrust exemptions.

In a letter to John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, the congressional group said that "if the union is significantly injured, we want it known we will undertake a complete review of the National Football League's antitrust status, and if the facts warrant, introduce appropriate legislation."

Negotiations in the strike resume Thursday in Washington under the auspices of W. J. Usery Jr., the government's chief federal mediator.

Meanwhile, it was learned that at least two NFL teams — the Los Angeles Rams and the Houston Oilers — were asking all veteran players who report if they plan to stay, regardless of what happens after the 14-day cooling-off period.

The 26 owners, or their representatives, were huddled in a New York hotel Tuesday, getting a report from Thompson on the negotiations.

Told of the letter from Moss and his House colleagues, Terry Bledsoe, a spokesman for the NFLMC, said: "We know that the record of these negotiations will show that we bargained in good faith. We will invite Congressman Moss or any others to examine the record."

Bledsoe said the owners "reaffirmed the policy of declaring camps open to all players as they have been since the outset and to play all games, pre-season and regular with whatever players we have. This stance has nothing to do with the cooling-off period announced by the union. We were not a party to any such agreement. We were not asked to participate in it."

Bledsoe added, "We know we have a long and difficult road ahead of us in negotiations, for we are far apart."

He said the NFLMC's policy of permitting refunds on tickets, if applied for not later than 48 hours before the games, will be continued this weekend.

In Chicago, Usery expressed optimism the dispute will be settled quickly.

Speaking to newsmen prior to addressing the American Health Congress, Usery said, "With the NFL players dispute there is more involved than just 1,400 players and 26 teams. There's also 30 or 40 million people waiting to see pro football this season."

"I thought it to be in the best interest of not only the players and the owners, but the fans as well that I enter the dispute and work for a settlement."

Gray, Schoepf Snare Double

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Trainer John Gray and jockey Doug Schoepf went to work in a hurry Tuesday at the State Fairgrounds.

The duo combined for both halves of the daily double, setting the pattern for the meet's 22nd day — South Dakota day at the races. Well, officially, it was Columbus Races day, but South Dakotans seemed the dominant influence.

Schoepf piloted Gray's Effective Honor to an upset $26.60 win in the first race. Then he rode Harold Kleinschmidt's Hidden Rex to a $6.40 return in the second race.

"That's the first time I ever rode both halves of the double here," said Schoepf. "I've done it about five times before at Park Jefferson (at Jefferson, S.D.) and at Atokad but never here."

The 25-year-old rider has only been campaigning here for two years as he rode basically at Park Jefferson before starting to ride on the Nebraska circuit last season.

"I live in South Sioux City, so I ride at PJ on Saturdays and Sundays and here during the weekdays," he said. "That way I get to spend more time at home. I ride all of John Gray's horses (Gray trains Hidden Rex). I thought I had a chance to win on both of them today."

Schoepf, a seven-year veteran rider, is a native of Mitchell, S.D.

His riding mates who have campaigned previously in South Dakota won four of the last six races giving northern riders wins in six of the eight races.

Jim Compton steered Ralph Mettenbrink's Charleydonto to a $37.80 triumph in the third race, Jim Cuddie prevailed on Herb Riecken's Cactus Cal ($22.60) in the fourth race and Wayne Anderson, who began his riding career in South Dakota, won with Edward Brandt's Super Date ($8.60) in the eighth race.

Mike Phelps captured the featured seventh race aboard Charles Mettenbrink's Nail Bluff who scored by four lengths over seven foes in the 6-furlong scamper.

Results, graded entries page 23.

Denny's Champlin Rips Fremont

By BOB MOYER

Denny's Champlin of Lincoln opened the State AAA Fast Pitch Softball Tournament with a bang Tuesday night at Ballard Field by smashing Fremont Koglin Oil, 12-2.

In the evening's other two games, Falstaff defeated Meginnis Ford 10-0 in a six inning game and Citizens State Bank drubbed Goehner Red Barn 26-6.

Scoring in every frame of a five-inning game, Denny's was never seriously threatened in the lid-lifter for the tournament which concludes Sunday.

Denny's continued its late-season torrid hitting pace in the game called after five innings because of a 10-run rule.

Pacing the 12-hit attack were Steve Moser, who had a double, triple and homer, scoring three runs and Rick Waldrop, who knocked in three runs with two doubles and a single.

"We got off to a bad start," said Denny's manager Stan Kaltenberger. "But in the last round we started hitting." Denny's won seven of its last eight games in regular-season play.

Kaltenberger cited mid-season acquisition Moser (from Apothecary) and Jerry Motz (from Falstaff) as helping his team.

"Rick Waldrop and Dave Lebsack also started hitting late in the season and that helped us.

"We also moved Jim Krause to shortstop from the outfield and when Mark Saulnier came back as a pitcher that allowed us to move Steve Butts to third base. These changes have really shored up our defense."

Kaltenberger, who played city softball for 27 years and is in his first year as a coach, said Denny's faces a stiff assignment in its next tourney tilt.

"We've got to play Scottsbluff, the defending champions, Friday night," he said. "They'll be really tough but it's like anything else, they'll have to hit the ball to beat us."

Kaltenberger is hoping to stop Scottsbluff's bats with hurler Saulnier, who pitched the final two innings Tuesday night in shutout fashion.

"Saulnier has beaten them before," said Kaltenberger. "He injured his Achilles tendon last year coming off the rubber and he had a mental problem about it.

"But he's over that now and has been pitching real good ball," he said.

Regardless of how Denny's ends up in the tourney, Kaltenberger is pleased with his team. "When weren't going well, nobody got down, everybody stayed up and that has really helped us."

In the second game Tuesday night Falstaff pounded ten hits to give pitcher Lefty Sheary all the support he needed.

Sheary only allowed two hits in the game which went only six innings because of the ten run rule. The 41-year-old lefthander struck out seven, walking none in his shutout.

Bill Slaughter paced Falstaff's hitting attack hitting a solo home run and knocking in another run on a single in a 3-4 showing.

Citizens capped off the evening's strong hitting performances by drilling out 20 hits including two home runs by Scott Votava in crushing the Red Barn team. Citizens scored 15 times in the final frame.

Votava knocked in six runs for Citizens while Roger Noxon went 5-5, including an inside-the-park homer and scored four runs: Steve McKelvey knocked in four runs on two hits and Lyle Hiatt scored five runs though only getting two hits.

Jockey Files Suit Against Nebraska For $1,000,000

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Officials and jockeys expressed surprise Tuesday at a $1 million claim that has been filed against the State of Nebraska by a 23-year-old Albuquerque, N.M., man.

United Press International reported that Eddie Andres Salazar is seeking the money for injuries received in an accident at the State Fairgrounds' race track on Aug. 23, 1972.

An apprentice jockey at the time, he was riding M. A. and R. W. Cole's Prize Wagon in the second running of the Freshman Stakes. That was the feature on the closing-day's program two years ago.

UPI reported that "during the race, the claims unit was told in a statement from his attorney, 'another jockey intentionally, or in flagrant violation of the rules, tripped Mr. Salazar up.'

The result, the statement said, was a broken back. The claims board was told he is now paralyzed from the waist down, UPI said.

"Yes, it surprises me that he filed a suit," said state steward Jack Fickler. "There was no penalty assessed at the time and the rider (Weldon Armstrong on the eventual winner of the race, Rideniron) was held blameless.

"I went to see him in the hospital and it was one of the worst experiences I've ever had," Fickler continued. "As I remember, I talked to the jockeys at Columbus (the next stop on the Nebraska horse racing circuit) and I made that statement that if anything like that was ever done intentionally, I would try to rule them off for life. It was a very emotional thing. I had been told that he (Salazar) would never ride again. Nobody likes to see things like that happen."

Fickler said that Armstrong, a rider with more than 25 years experience, felt as "bad as everyone else." Armstrong, now retired as a jockey, is working as a racing official at Park Jefferson in Jefferson, S.D.

Fickler added that he and other stewards Irv Anderson and Jim Hall looked at the films of the race at least 20 times and the three stewards were convinced the incident was not done intentionally nor was Armstrong at fault for the accident.

State Fairgrounds general manager Henry Brandt said he was unaware of the suit filed by Salazar and was taken by surprise at the action.

"I don't know anything about it and no one from either the state or from the jockey has spoken to me about it," he said.

Fred Ecoffey, who was riding Frank Silik's Funny Nickel (who finished third in the 6-furlong Freshman Stakes), said he only remembered looking at the films of the race once.

"No, I don't think it was done intentionally," he said. "I don't know anything about a lawsuit."

Wayne Anderson, who was aboard Paul Kemling's Whirl A Miss, was back in the pack when the spill occurred on the last turn. But he was quick to defend Armstrong, one of the most popular jockeys to ride in Nebraska.

"Weldon didn't intentionally hurt him," Anderson said. "He's ridden long enough. There was no way he'd hurt someone. There was no penalty at the time and I think that was the right move.

"Weldon was coming around and it looked like maybe his (Armstrong's) horse came in a little and maybe the other horse came out a little, but he felt as bad about what happened as anyone," he said. "Nobody likes to see someone get hurt like that."

According to press reports of the incident, Prize Wagon tumbled, throwing Salazar, who was then knocked down again when Amies Supreme dumped the chestnut colt on top of him.

Amies Supreme then fell, throwing jockey Don Stauffer, who escaped with only minor bruises.

The State claims board is scheduled to hear the case next Tuesday if investigations have been completed by that time, or at its October meeting, UPI reported.

North Cagers Pick Novak As Captain

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Wayne — For recently elected North basketball captain Terry Novak, Friday's upcoming Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star game scheduled at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium carries more significance than a chance for the North to extend its current win skein to four.

For the two-year Sunday Journal and Star Super-State selection, the contest represents a last chance for revenge over cross-town rival Curt Hedberg as both will become teammates for University of Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano this fall.

Hedberg and his East High teammates edged Novak's Rockets three times enroute to the 1974 state basketball tournament.

Unlike the three previous encounters, both Novak and Hedberg will be without the members of their respective high school squads, however, each will be backed by 11 of the best graduated high school basketball players in the state.

"It'll be the last time we're on opposing teams," the 6-3 Novak noted. "Except for scrimmaging at the University. It's definitely a factor in the way I feel about the game. It really makes me look forward to playing."

According to Novak, it appears he has once again drawn the assignment of covering Hedberg offensively, and the easy-going ex-Rocket is confident of his ability to handle the 6-9 Hedberg.

"Whether he's inside or outside this game," Novak predicted, "I think I can get to him either way. But I doubt if he'll be guarding me on offense, because of our style."

He was referring to North coach Al Bahe's plans on running a 1-2-2 offense, an offense that might put the Husker bound Novak on the wing. "We only have a one-guard setup," he said. "And I might be playing either underneath or on the wing. If I'm underneath, Hedberg might cover me."

Like the Novak-Hedberg situation, the North has already had a chance for revenge since the camp opened Thursday, and the Yankee squad came through like champions.

Sunday, a team composed of Wayne area college basketball players including Husker forward Steve Erwin dealt the all-stars their first defeat in a game-style scrimmage.

Marc Sparling of Lincoln East shows toil of working out Tuesday morning at Memorial Stadium.

Sparling Eying Wildlife Career

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Crete — Marc Sparling's football future may be an uncertainty, but his career plans are solidly fixed.

"I just want to concentrate on college. If it comes down to that and football, I'll put football out of my mind," says Sparling, the Lincoln East all-state tackle who's training for the South team here for Saturday's 16th annual Shrine Bowl at Memorial Stadium.

"I love to hunt and fish. That's why I want to pursue wildlife management at Nebraska," he says. "I'd like to work with the Game Commission or something . . . just as long as I'm around animals and the outdoors. That's what I love most."

Football used to be Sparling's first and only love. He was a 3-year starter on East teams, which suffered only three losses in three years.

Although his competitive desire remained strong, Sparling admits at least some loss of enthusiasm along the way.

"When I was a sophomore, it was so much fun just to practice," he explains. "Now it's harder for me. I don't know what it is. I guess I just like to enjoy what I do. I'm a carefree type."

If Sparling's lesser desire to compete in football has hindered his effort, the South Shrine coaching staff has been unable to detect it.

"Marc has been as impressive as any tackle we've got," South head coach Milt Tenopir said Tuesday morning after his squad worked out on Memorial Stadium's AstroTurf.

"He's very definitely been well-coached. His technique is very good. He gets his head on you and that's a crucial part of offensive blocking," adds Tenopir.

"Since Pat Gibbons has been hurt, we've worked Marc some on defense, too, and he reacts equally well there," according to Tenopir. "He's exceeded our expectations as far as comparing him with others who were supposed to be better."

Sparling, a B-average high school student, admits "I wanted to prove I was better than I might have been given credit for. I think I'm faster than what some people might have thought."

He also believes necessity forces him to be faster in Shrine Bowl camp.

"We have a lot of talent," declares Sparling. "Darrell (Walton) and Monte (Anthony) are something else. I've never had to block for guys who scatter like they do.

"They're so quick, you have to keep an edge on the block because you don't know which side they're going to," relates Sparling. "If one side's plugged, they'll head the other way. I have to be quicker."

Sparling believes "if I don't try football at Nebraska some people are bound to call me a quitter. Right now, I'm leaning more toward just going to school and concentrating on my studies. I can't see much wrong with that."

Congressmen Enter Strike

By Associated Press

A thorough inspection of pro football's antitrust status was threatened Tuesday by 12 members of the House of Representatives if a fair contract compromise with the striking players' association is not reached or if the union is injured as a result of the 44-day labor dispute.

"We are today calling on both the owners and the players — but . . . particularly the owners, to sit down again Thursday and this time reach a fair compromise agreement," said Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., whose subcommittee on commerce has jurisdiction over restraints of trade. Joining Moss were Congresswoman Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y. and 10 other House members.

Moss said there are now about a half-dozen bills pending that would affect the National Football League's antitrust exemptions.

In a letter to John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, the congressional group said that "if the union is significantly injured, we want it known we will undertake a complete review of the National Football League's antitrust status, and if the facts warrant, introduce appropriate legislation."

Negotiations in the strike resume Thursday in Washington under the auspices of W. J. Usery Jr., the government's chief federal mediator.

Meanwhile, it was learned that at least two NFL teams — the Los Angeles Rams and the Houston Oilers — were asking all veteran players who report if they plan to stay, regardless of what happens after the 14-day cooling-off period.

The 26 owners, or their representatives, were huddled in a New York hotel Tuesday, getting a report from Thompson on the negotiations.

Told of the letter from Moss and his House colleagues, Terry Bledsoe, a spokesman for the NFLMC, said: "We know that the record of these negotiations will show that we bargained in good faith. We will invite Congressman Moss or any others to examine the record."

Bledsoe said the owners "reaffirmed the policy of declaring camps open to all players as they have been since the outset and to play all games, pre-season and regular with whatever players we have. This stance has nothing to do with the cooling-off period announced by the union. We were not a party to any such agreement. We were not asked to participate in it."

Bledsoe added, "We know we have a long and difficult road ahead of us in negotiations, for we are far apart."

He said the NFLMC's policy of permitting refunds on tickets, if applied for not later than 48 hours before the games, will be continued this weekend.

In Chicago, Usery expressed optimism the dispute will be settled quickly.

Speaking to newsmen prior to addressing the American Health Congress, Usery said, "With the NFL players dispute there is more involved than just 1,400 players and 26 teams. There's also 30 or 40 million people waiting to see pro football this season."

"I thought it to be in the best interest of not only the players and the owners, but the fans as well that I enter the dispute and work for a settlement."

Gray, Schoepf Snare Double

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Trainer John Gray and jockey Doug Schoepf went to work in a hurry Tuesday at the State Fairgrounds.

The duo combined for both halves of the daily double, setting the pattern for the meet's 22nd day — South Dakota day at the races. Well, officially, it was Columbus Races day, but South Dakotans seemed the dominant influence.

Schoepf piloted Gray's Effective Honor to an upset $26.60 win in the first race. Then he rode Harold Kleinschmidt's Hidden Rex to a $6.40 return in the second race.

"That's the first time I ever rode both halves of the double here," said Schoepf. "I've done it about five times before at Park Jefferson (at Jefferson, S.D.) and at Atokad but never here."

The 25-year-old rider has only been campaigning here for two years as he rode basically at Park Jefferson before starting to ride on the Nebraska circuit last season.

"I live in South Sioux City, so I ride at PJ on Saturdays and Sundays and here during the weekdays," he said. "That way I get to spend more time at home. I ride all of John Gray's horses (Gray trains Hidden Rex). I thought I had a chance to win on both of them today."

Schoepf, a seven-year veteran rider, is a native of Mitchell, S.D.

His riding mates who have campaigned previously in South Dakota won four of the last six races giving northern riders wins in six of the eight races.

Jim Compton steered Ralph Mettenbrink's Charleydonto to a $37.80 triumph in the third race, Jim Cuddie prevailed on Herb Riecken's Cactus Cal ($22.60) in the fourth race and Wayne Anderson, who began his riding career in South Dakota, won with Edward Brandt's Super Date ($8.60) in the eighth race.

Mike Phelps captured the featured seventh race aboard Charles Mettenbrink's Nail Bluff who scored by four lengths over seven foes in the 6-furlong scamper.

Pat On The Back For Lincoln

A lot of people in Lincoln deserve a pat on the back for a job well done in staging the National AAU Junior Olympic Multisport Championships over the past weekend.

There are too many names to mention, so I'll just say it was a classic demonstration of what a city can do when everyone works together for a common cause.

Even the fans deserve a hand for turning out in goodly numbers, hopefully enough to put the project in the black.

Dr. Richard W. Hammer headed up the entire show as general chairman and had invaluable assistance from the Midwestern Association of the AAU, the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, the Lincoln Jaycees, the University of Nebraska, and the City of Lincoln.

Also assisting were officials from the National AAU office and the national sponsor the Chevrolet Motor Division.

Nebraska athletes represented the state well in the competitions, headed by Lincoln's Barb Harris, who won three gold medals and a silver medal in swimming. Other golds to Nebraskans were won by Mary Lou Jasnoch of Oshkosh in the 100-yard dash, Roye Oliver of Omaha in wrestling and Dave Goodwin of Omaha in diving.

Catching Up On Sports

Iowa State has started the process of finding a replacement for basketball coach Maury John. Gus Guydon and Tom Smith, two of John's assistants, have said they're interested. A report out of Oklahoma says Ken Trickey, who posted a 164-78 record at Oral Roberts and now is an assistant at Colorado State, might be considered.

Sportswriters and broadcasters who cover Missouri Valley football have picked Tulsa to beat out North Texas State for the title this fall. They tied for first a year ago.

A preview of the college football season will be shown Saturday night Aug. 31 over ABC. It'll be called "The Quest To Be Number One," profiling coaches and players from Notre Dame, Ohio State, Southern California, Oklahoma, Alabama and Penn State . . . . . I imagine TV again will try to influence the nation's sportswriters on who should win the Heisman Trophy.

President Gerald Ford says the first thing he does every morning is read the sports pages. "I read it before I do the front page because at least on the sports page you have a 50-50 chance of being right," he said.

Sam Snead, who is a legend in his own time, amazes everyone around the golf tour with his continued good play despite his age. "He is the most amazing athlete of our time," says Gary Player. "In any sport. They should perpetuate him in stone."

Jim Ross, NU assistant athletic director, has kept busy this summer with projects to tidy up the athletic facilities. Among them was taking up the AstroTurf carpet and re-glueing the pad on the stadium field.

He's also supervised water-proofing of the stadium walls, installation of new lights in the fieldhouse, and redecorating the athletic dining hall at Sellick Quadrangle.

Here's another new professional sports league: Filmmaker David L. Wolper has formed a 12-team International Volleyball Association. It will operate during three months in the summer. One rule will require at least one or two female players to be on the court at all times.

Phillies, Pirates Win; Close Gap On Cards

By The Associated Press

The Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates both won Tuesday night and zeroed in on the front-running St. Louis Cardinals in the tight National League East baseball race.

The second-place Phillies beat San Francisco 6-5 to climb within a half-game of St. Louis, which lost a 2-1 decision to San Diego, while the third-place Pirates routed Cincinnati 14-3 to move within 1½ games.

Mike Schmidt ripped a pair of towering home runs and drove in three runs, powering Philadelphia past San Francisco. Schmidt hit a two-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the third as the Phillies built a 6-1 lead against San Francisco starter Jim Barr, who had won six straight.

Richie Zisk and Ed Kirkpatrick each drove in two runs during a five-run Pittsburgh first inning and the Pirates went on to rout Cincinnati. The victory pushed Pittsburgh over the .500 mark for the first time this season and gave them eight victories in their last nine games and 22 in their last 31. Since June 14, they have come from 14 games under .500.

Dave Winfield drove in two runs with a single and double to power San Diego's victory over St. Louis. Lou Brock stole his 80th base of the year for the Cardinals.

In the other National League games, the Houston Astros tripped the Chicago Cubs 3-1; the Atlanta Braves nipped the Montreal Expos 6-5 and the New York Mets whipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0.

In the American League, the Baltimore Orioles stopped the Chicago White Sox 8-2; the Kansas City Royals topped the Detroit Tigers 6-2 and the Milwaukee Brewers turned back the Texas Rangers 5-1.

On the West Coast, the Oakland A's entertained the New York Yankees and the California Angels hosted the Boston Red Sox.

Cesar Cedeno's leadoff triple sparked a two-run ninth inning that carried Houston over Chicago. Milt May followed Cedeno's triple with a single to snap a 1-1 tie.

Dusty Baker belted his 14th home run of the season and an RBI single that highlighted a three-run fourth inning, leading Atlanta over Montreal.

Jim Palmer, making his first start for Baltimore after 54 days on the disabled list, went six innings and beat Chicago with the help of Boog Powell's grand slam home run; Amos Otis drove in two runs with a pair of sacrifice flies to lead Kansas City's victory and Johnny Briggs' two-run single helped Milwaukee beat Texas.

Omahan Upsets Nastase

TORONTO (AP) — Bill Brown of Omaha, Neb., ranked 44th in the United States, turned in a stunning victory Tuesday night, upsetting Ilie Nastase of Romania 6-1, 6-1 in the opening round of the $130,000 Canadian Open Tennis Championships.

Nastase, seeded third here and the Canadian Open winner two years ago, said he was tired after playing a late doubles match Monday night in Indianapolis, Ind.

Brown, a 29-year-old Notre Dame graduate, lost in the first round when he last played in this tournament in 1969.

Omahan Leading Tourney

Hastings (AP) — Harry Lockwood of Omaha fired a brilliant one under par 143 in the 36-hole opening round of the Nebraska State Boy's Junior Golf Championship at Lochland Country Club in Hastings Tuesday.

Lockwood, who will be a senior at Omaha Westside this fall, used only 60 putts in the opening round of action which saw competitors participating in both Class A and B. The tournament will conclude with an 18-hole final round Wednesday.

Dave Donachie, of Grand Island, held second place after the first day's action with a 75-73, 148 score, five strokes behind Lockwood.

Defending champion Jerry Ficke, of Lincoln, was in third place after first round action with a score of 150.

In the B division of the tournament, Harris Frankel, of Omaha, and Mike Schuchart, of Lincoln, are tied for the lead after one round with scores of 151.

Scott Fredstrom, of Papillion, was in third place after Tuesday's round with a score of 152.

The B division will also conclude play at the Lochland Country Club with an 18-hole final round Wednesday.

Broken Bow Pair Leading

Kearney (UPI) — A team from Broken Bow was in the lead after completion of the second round Tuesday of the Nebraska State Ladies Best-Ball Golf Tournament being played on the Kearney Country Club course.

Lois Ruff and Peg Arnold led the field of 92 ladies with a 116 after 36 holes.

In a three-way tie for second with 122s were Esther Rohs and Rosemary Schultz of McCook, Jane Deeter and Kathy Hughett of Lincoln, and Debbie Reed of Norfolk and Mary Larsen of Wahoo.

Tied at 124 are the teams of Pat Sim and Beverly Ward of Lincoln and the mother-daughter duo of Dorothy Schwartzkopf and Christie Schwartzkopf Travnechek of Wilber.

The final 18 holes were scheduled for Wednesday morning with an awards luncheon capping off the three-day tournament.

Winstrom Amateur Qualifier

Mark Winstrom, a 20-year-old sophomore at Oklahoma State, easily won the only spot allotted to Nebraska for the 74th United States Amateur Golf Championship in a qualifying round Tuesday at the Lincoln Country Club.

Winstrom, who is from Omaha, shot 144 over the 36-hole route, including a 3-under-par 69 in the afternoon.

Only six golfers attempted to qualify for the tournament which will be played at the Ridgewood Country Club in Ridgewood, N.J., Aug. 26-31.

First alternate will be Samuel L. Beechner, a former resident of Lincoln who now lives in Seattle, Wash. His score was 153.

The scores:

Mark Winstrom, Omaha ..... 75-69—144
Samuel Beechner, Seattle ..... 74-79—153
Ing Maurstad, Beatrice ..... 73-82—156
Robert Howe, Omaha ..... 80-76—156
Fred Gacek, Hooper ..... 80-79—159
Jerry Summaf
Bella Vista, Ark ..... 82-82—164
Withdrew — Tom Sieckmann, Omaha, and Jeff DeHaan, Alton, Ia.

National Rating To Lincolnites

Lincoln Swim Club youngsters produced four times good enough for national ranking in the Region Seven swimming and diving age group competition at Mason City, Ia., over the weekend.

They included: Boys 11 and 12 — Bob Gustafson, :28.5 in 50 meter freestyle; Jack Perry, :35.36 in 50 backstroke; 200 medley relay team of Perry, Gustafson, Phil Hayman and Mark Stanard, 2:16.29; and 200 freestyle relay team (same swimmers) in 2:02.23.

In boys 10 and under, Aaron Drake had a time of 2:51.36 in the 200 individual medley.

Pat On The Back For Lincoln

A lot of people in Lincoln deserve a pat on the back for a job well done in staging the National AAU Junior Olympic Multisport Championships over the past weekend.

There are too many names to mention, so I'll just say it was a classic demonstration of what a city can do when everyone works together for a common cause.

Even the fans deserve a hand for turning out in goodly numbers, hopefully enough to put the project in the black.

Dr. Richard W. Hammer headed up the entire show as general chairman and had invaluable assistance from the Midwestern Association of the AAU, the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, the Lincoln Jaycees, the University of Nebraska, and the City of Lincoln.

Also assisting were officials from the National AAU office and the national sponsor the Chevrolet Motor Division.

Nebraska athletes represented the state well in the competitions, headed by Lincoln's Barb Harris, who won three gold medals and a silver medal in swimming. Other golds to Nebraskans were won by Mary Lou Jasnoch of Oshkosh in the 100-yard dash, Roye Oliver of Omaha in wrestling and Dave Goodwin of Omaha in diving.

Catching Up On Sports

Iowa State has started the process of finding a replacement for basketball coach Maury John. Gus Guydon and Tom Smith, two of John's assistants, have said they're interested. A report out of Oklahoma says Ken Trickey, who posted a 164-78 record at Oral Roberts and now is an assistant at Colorado State, might be considered.

Sportswriters and broadcasters who cover Missouri Valley football have picked Tulsa to beat out North Texas State for the title this fall. They tied for first a year ago.

A preview of the college football season will be shown Saturday night Aug. 31 over ABC. It'll be called "The Quest To Be Number One," profiling coaches and players from Notre Dame, Ohio State, Southern California, Oklahoma, Alabama and Penn State . . . . . I imagine TV again will try to influence the nation's sportswriters on who should win the Heisman Trophy.

President Gerald Ford says the first thing he does every morning is read the sports pages. "I read it before I do the front page because at least on the sports page you have a 50-50 chance of being right," he said.

Sam Snead, who is a legend in his own time, amazes everyone around the golf tour with his continued good play despite his age. "He is the most amazing athlete of our time," says Gary Player. "In any sport. They should perpetuate him in stone."

Jim Ross, NU assistant athletic director, has kept busy this summer with projects to tidy up the athletic facilities. Among them was taking up the AstroTurf carpet and re-glueing the pad on the stadium field.

He's also supervised water-proofing of the stadium walls, installation of new lights in the fieldhouse, and redecorating the athletic dining hall at Sellick Quadrangle.

Here's another new professional sports league: Filmmaker David L. Wolper has formed a 12-team International Volleyball Association. It will operate during three months in the summer. One rule will require at least one or two female players to be on the court at all times.

Phillies, Pirates Win; Close Gap On Cards

By The Associated Press

The Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates both won Tuesday night and zeroed in on the front-running St. Louis Cardinals in the tight National League East baseball race.

The second-place Phillies beat San Francisco 6-5 to climb within a half-game of St. Louis, which lost a 2-1 decision to San Diego, while the third-place Pirates routed Cincinnati 14-3 to move within 1½ games.

Mike Schmidt ripped a pair of towering home runs and drove in three runs, powering Philadelphia past San Francisco. Schmidt hit a two-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the third as the Phillies built a 6-1 lead against San Francisco starter Jim Barr, who had won six straight.

Richie Zisk and Ed Kirkpatrick each drove in two runs during a five-run Pittsburgh first inning and the Pirates went on to rout Cincinnati. The victory pushed Pittsburgh over the .500 mark for the first time this season and gave them eight victories in their last nine games and 22 in their last 31. Since June 14, they have come from 14 games under .500.

Dave Winfield drove in two runs with a single and double to power San Diego's victory over St. Louis. Lou Brock stole his 80th base of the year for the Cardinals.

In the other National League games, the Houston Astros tripped the Chicago Cubs 3-1; the Atlanta Braves nipped the Montreal Expos 6-5 and the New York Mets whipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0.

In the American League, the Baltimore Orioles stopped the Chicago White Sox 8-2; the Kansas City Royals topped the Detroit Tigers 6-2 and the Milwaukee Brewers turned back the Texas Rangers 5-1.

On the West Coast, the Oakland A's entertained the New York Yankees and the California Angels hosted the Boston Red Sox.

Cesar Cedeno's leadoff triple sparked a two-run ninth inning that carried Houston over Chicago. Milt May followed Cedeno's triple with a single to snap a 1-1 tie.

Dusty Baker belted his 14th home run of the season and an RBI single that highlighted a three-run fourth inning, leading Atlanta over Montreal.

Jim Palmer, making his first start for Baltimore after 54 days on the disabled list, went six innings and beat Chicago with the help of Boog Powell's grand slam home run; Amos Otis drove in two runs with a pair of sacrifice flies to lead Kansas City's victory and Johnny Briggs' two-run single helped Milwaukee beat Texas.

Omahan Upsets Nastase

TORONTO (AP) — Bill Brown of Omaha, Neb., ranked 44th in the United States, turned in a stunning victory Tuesday night, upsetting Ilie Nastase of Romania 6-1, 6-1 in the opening round of the $130,000 Canadian Open Tennis Championships.

Nastase, seeded third here and the Canadian Open winner two years ago, said he was tired after playing a late doubles match Monday night in Indianapolis, Ind.

Brown, a 29-year-old Notre Dame graduate, lost in the first round when he last played in this tournament in 1969.

Omahan Leading Tourney

Hastings (AP) — Harry Lockwood of Omaha fired a brilliant one under par 143 in the 36-hole opening round of the Nebraska State Boy's Junior Golf Championship at Lochland Country Club in Hastings Tuesday.

Lockwood, who will be a senior at Omaha Westside this fall, used only 60 putts in the opening round of action which saw competitors participating in both Class A and B. The tournament will conclude with an 18-hole final round Wednesday.

Dave Donachie, of Grand Island, held second place after the first day's action with a 75-73, 148 score, five strokes behind Lockwood.

Defending champion Jerry Ficke, of Lincoln, was in third place after first round action with a score of 150.

In the B division of the tournament, Harris Frankel, of Omaha, and Mike Schuchart, of Lincoln, are tied for the lead after one round with scores of 151.

Scott Fredstrom, of Papillion, was in third place after Tuesday's round with a score of 152.

The B division will also conclude play at the Lochland Country Club with an 18-hole final round Wednesday.

Results Tuesday in Class A:

Broken Bow Pair Leading

Kearney (UPI) — A team from Broken Bow was in the lead after completion of the second round Tuesday of the Nebraska State Ladies Best-Ball Golf Tournament being played on the Kearney Country Club course.

Lois Ruff and Peg Arnold led the field of 92 ladies with a 116 after 36 holes.

In a three-way tie for second with 122s were Esther Rohs and Rosemary Schultz of McCook, Jane Deeter and Kathy Hughett of Lincoln, and Debbie Reed of Norfolk and Mary Larsen of Wahoo.

Tied at 124 are the teams of Pat Sim and Beverly Ward of Lincoln and the mother-daughter duo of Dorothy Schwartzkopf and Christie Schwartzkopf Travnechek of Wilber.

The final 18 holes were scheduled for Wednesday morning with an awards luncheon capping off the three-day tournament.

THE PADDOCK

By Mark Gordon
Star Sports Writer

Best Racing Ever

As the State Fairgrounds nears the end of its most successful horse racing season, it seems safe to say that racing secretary Bob Pollock has been a major influence in the upgraded quality of racing in Lincoln.

He's not one to take the credit himself. The former Lincoln assistant racing secretary is quick to praise the horsemen, general manager Henry Brandt and his staff.

"The cool weather has helped us after all that heat in the beginning," he noted. "And the raise in purses always makes it easier to attract better horses. The horsemen have cooperated. They'll be willing to take a chance at entering their horses for a $3,000 purse rather than a lower purse. Once in a while they'll enter horses that might be 30-1 or so to go for that higher purse."

Wednesday's minimum purse is $2,500-$1,000 higher than the $1,500 minimum purse the Fairgrounds started with back in the latter stages of July. That $2,500 figure is higher than Denver's Centenntial Track and on a comparable level to Detroit.

Those are two racing centers that always seem to attract the better horses from Ak-Sar-Ben after the Omaha season concludes in mid-July. With the increases in purses here, it seems ironic that horsemen always give the excuse that the track is poor and the purses lower here.

One year from now, the Fairgrounds will, if Brandt's schedule is followed, have a rebuilt racing surface and new facilities for the horsemen, which should certainly make Lincoln competitive with those much larger population centers for quality horses.

Improved Cards

Pollock's efforts have certainly been noticed by the wagering public. For three straight Saturdays, an all-time one-day mutuel handle record has been set.

In fact, one racing veteran told us that his nine-race card two weeks ago would have held up at any track in the country. On that card was the President's Cup as the feature and an eighth race that featured Felix Beda's Neb. Harvest and Paul Kemling's Queen Turn for 6 furlongs.

In past years, that eighth race was good enough to be the meet's featured attraction. But not this year as Pollock seemed to out do himself with each weekend's program.

"The people of Lincoln and the surrounding areas deserve a lot of credit," Pollock modestly said. "The Lincoln people like to come out and bet on good horses. Of course, the good horses run because of the higher purses. It all goes back to the same thing, but you can certainly say that Lincoln appreciates the better horses. It shows in the mutuel handle totals."

Obviously, not every race on each of the 26-day meeting can be labeled outstanding. But it's time for the constant complainers to look at the total picture rather than one or two races each day which admittedly would not be run at Hollywood Park.

Lincoln has the best racing it has ever had. The purses this week will undoubtedly be the highest in history of the outstate Nebraska race tracks.

All of which indicates that Lincoln is the second-best racing center in Nebraska as it should be since it's the second-largest population center.

And when this city opens its remodeled race track, hopefully by the 1976 season, it will take a backseat to no other area in the country comparable population dentsity and racing conditions.

The future is bright, but the city of Lincoln owes a "thank you" to Pollock, his assistant racing secretary Richard Crockett and his entire staff for bringing what must rank as the best racing ever in Nebraska (outside of Ak-Sar-Ben) to Lincoln.

The State Fairgrounds staff from Brandt, assistant general manager John Skold and on down can take pride in the figures this year that should indicate to the Nebraska State Racing Commission that Lincoln can support and is entitled to more than 26 days in 1975.

Pardee Primes Team For Jacksonville Tilt

By United Press International

It's not hard to tell Florida Blazer coach Jack Pardee is a graduate of George Allen U.

Pardee has spent the week whipping his squad into a frenzy, he hopes, for Wednesday night's game with the Jacksonville Sharks.

In other, less bitter World Football League meetings Wednesday, Portland is at New York, Memphis at Detroit, Philadelphia at Chicago and the Hawaiians at Birmingham.

But, it's in Florida that the psychological warfare outshines the on-field combat.

Pardee, who played under Allen at Los Angeles and Washington, has told his 4-1 squad that the Sharks are saying bad things about them.

Working himself into a properly aggrieved tone, Pardee said, "From the start Jacksonville has been slapping Orlando (home of the Blazers and Disneyworld) in the face, saying they are ahead of us in everything — a better stadium, more support. They've treated us like a stepchild.

"I've seen statements made and heard things on the grapevine that simply say they have a better team. I haven't forgotten those kind of things."

Bud Asher, the coach of the bad guys, the Sharks, is a bit mystified by Pardee's charges.

"The only statement I've ever made about the Blazers is that I think they are well-coached and Pardee has done an excellent job," said Asher, whose team is 3-2. "Frankly, I'm disappointed to see this high school stuff being used to fire him team up."

Asher may be caught unawares by Pardee's George Allen-ploy, but he knows high school tactics when he sees them, having coached at that level last year.

Chicago Fire quarterback Virgil Carter is not shy about putting the ball in the air, while Philadelphia Bell signal-caller King Corcoran never has been accused of timidity of any sort.

Carter is the WFL's leading passer in leadint ehf Fire to a 4-1 record and tops the league in touchdown passes with 11.

But Corcoran, the brash former minor-league hotshot, is second in TD tosses with 10 and has the top completion percentage in the league at .562. The Bell are 3-2.

Unable to win in five attempts in the light, the Portland Storm will have a go at it in the dark of New York's Downing Stadium.

The Stars (3-2) are trying to improve the lighting in the Randall's Island Stadium, but efforts so far have been stymied and the two previous WFL games there have been played in a twilight zone aura.

Birmingham, the league's only undefeated entry, plays host to the Hawaiians, who have struggled to a 1-4 mark with rookie quarterback Norris Weese the team's only bright spot so far.

Quarterback George Mira should be ready for action after being sidelined for two games by an injury, but may have trouble reclaiming his starting job from Grambling graduate Matthew Reed.

At Detroit, the Wheels still are seeking their first victory of the season, going against the Memphis Southmen (3-2).

In the season opener, the Southmen drubbed Detroit 34-15.

In Thursday night's nationally televised contest, Southern California meets Houston in the Astrodome.

Ceresco Native Eyes Pro Career

Wilmington, Ohio (AP) — When Evan Jolitz grew up playing neighborhood football on a weed-covered field in tiny Ceresco, Neb., he dreamed of big crowds, autograph-seekers and winning.

It's been a long wait. The Cincinnati Bengals rookie hopes his dues-paying days are over.

Jolitz is a football "dropout" who salvaged his career through academic achievement — then decided to give the game another chance.

"I was confident throughout college that I could play in the pros, but I wasn't sure anyone else knew," said Jolitz.

The 6-foot-3, 225-pound hitter was the biggest surprise of the Bengal draft last January. He was a third round choice.

He is an unheralded prospect from the University of Cincinnati joining a National Football League team already rich in linebacking talent.

Furthermore, he had been buried on losers.

"Even though I only played for bad teams, I think it helped me gain a professional attitude. I never got discouraged.

"I'd take my lumps, then get up and go at it again," said Jolitz.

His career began taking shape at Ceresco, a small community of 400.

Football was fun in those days. "My best friend was Steve Runty. He was always the quarterback and I was the pass rusher. He was a starting quarterback for Nebraska last year," said Jolitz.

When his family moved to St. Mary's, Ohio, Jolitz began taking the sport seriously. He started at tight end, then was switched to defensive back.

He won a full-ride scholarship to Xavier University where he bacame a starter as a sophomore.

Then, suddenly, school and football became meaningless. He dropped out.

Months passed aganizingly slow. The future was a blur. Jolitz had had enough. He decided to transfer to crosstown rival Cincinnati.

He enrolled in pre-med and drew a B average. He tried out for football but had grown too much to remain a defensive back.

"I wanted to play, so I started weight lifting. They switched me to linebacker. I had to get big to survive," he said.

As the only linebacker drafted by the Bengals, he's confident he can make the cut.

"I may have played in only seven winning games in four years of college, but football saved my life," he said.

Warner Wins Golf Tourney

Curly Warner won the championship flight of the Hidden Valley Women's Golf Association Tournament with a 44.

The results:

Championship flight — Curly Warner, 44; Mary Ann Kosner, 47; Jeanie Frederichs, 44; Betty Arnold, 46.
First Flight — Louise Rung, 53; Connie Price, 53; Kay Pomajzel, 53.
Second flight — Ruby Genrich, 57; Linda Elzey, 57, Vicky Bromm, 58.
Third flight — Phil Brierly, 63; Lizz Jettner, 64; Elma Hastie, 65.

Bukata Gets ABA Position

New York (UPI) — Jim Bukata was named Tuesday to replace Mike Recht as director of public relations for the American Basketball Association.

Bukata, a 32-year-old native of Pittsburgh, Pa., joins the ABA after a six-year tenure with Publicity Enterprises, a New York based sports publicity firm.

An author and magazine writer, Bukata has published seven books on basketball and edited last year's New York Knicks' program, selected as the best in the National Basketball Association.

Three Jets Report To Training Camp

Hempstead, L.I. (UPI) — Wide receiver Ed Bell, tight end Rich Caster and safety Chris Farasopoulous reported Tuesday to the Jets training camp at Hofstra University.

With the addition of the three veterans, the Jets now have had 21 strikers showing up in the last two days, and a total of 32 experienced players in camp. However, 14 more veterans have yet to show, including quarterback Joe Namath.

Crown May Be Decided At Nebraska State Fair

The three days of International Motor Contest Association (IMCA) sanctioned sprint car races at the Nebraska State Fair, Aug. 31-Sept. 2, could be the turning point for four drivers with aspirations for capturing the 1974 championship crown.

Larry Kirkpatrick, Wood River, Ill., the current leader in the official point totals, didn't finish in the top five on any of the three outings last year and he's confident about improving on this record.

Bill Utz, Sedalia, Mo., trailing Kirkpatrick by 20 points, won two features in Lincoln last year, and finished fifth on the third day.

Not out of striking distance of the leaders are Ralph Blackett, Des Moines, Iowa, and Gene Gennetten, Gladstone, Mo. Blackett captured a third and fouth on the last two days respectively.

Gennetten was the most steady competitor for the three days of racing finishing third the first day and taking second place in the feature on the next two days. He closed out the 1973 sprint car campaign with a second-place finish in the official point totals.

A demolition derby comes to the Nebraska State Fair Sept. 6.

Modified stock car, sprint-style races, for Nebraska drivers only, is scheduled for Sept. 7. Top drivers from throughout the state will be converging on the half-mile dirt oval attempting to capture the lion's share of the large cash purse and the distinction of being the 1974 Nebraska State Fair Champion.

IMCA sanctioned new-model stock car races close out the Fair's racing activities, Sept. 8, when they do battle in a series of heat races and a 50-lap feature.

Current point leader in the IMCA, Bill Schwader, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa., is ready and anxious to go racing and fulfill his hopes of capturing the 1974 new-model division crown.

Gordon Blankenship, Keokuk, Iowa, the 1973 champion, is anxious to race, get a shot at the front-running Schwader, and hold his No. 1 spot for one more year.

Williams Signs Kings' Contract

Kansas City (AP) — The Kings announced Tuesday they signed Nate Williams, their third leading scorer, to a two-year contract to play for them in the National Basketball Association.

Williams is from Utah State and will be starting his fourth season in the NBA.

He played at forward and guard in 82 games for the Kings last season, averaging 15.5 points a game and getting 182 assists.

On both counts, it was his best season so far. Terms of the two-year-contract were not announced.

Best Racing Ever

As the State Fairgrounds nears the end of its most successful horse racing season, it seems safe to say that racing secretary Bob Pollock has been a major influence in the upgraded quality of racing in Lincoln.

He's not one to take the credit himself. The former Lincoln assistant racing secretary is quick to praise the horsemen, general manager Henry Brandt and his staff.

"The cool weather has helped us after all that heat in the beginning," he noted. "And the raise in purses always makes it easier to attract better horses. The horsemen have cooperated. They'll be willing to take a chance at entering their horses for a $3,000 purse rather than a lower purse. Once in a while they'll enter horses that might be 30-1 or so to go for that higher purse."

Wednesday's minimum purse is $2,500-$1,000 higher than the $1,500 minimum purse the Fairgrounds started with back in the latter stages of July. That $2,500 figure is higher than Denver's Centenntial Track and on a comparable level to Detroit.

Those are two racing centers that always seem to attract the better horses from Ak-Sar-Ben after the Omaha season concludes in mid-July. With the increases in purses here, it seems ironic that horsemen always give the excuse that the track is poor and the purses lower here.

One year from now, the Fairgrounds will, if Brandt's schedule is followed, have a rebuilt racing surface and new facilities for the horsemen, which should certainly make Lincoln competitive with those much larger population centers for quality horses.

Improved Cards

Pollock's efforts have certainly been noticed by the wagering public. For three straight Saturdays, an all-time one-day mutuel handle record has been set.

In fact, one racing veteran told us that his nine-race card two weeks ago would have held up at any track in the country. On that card was the President's Cup as the feature and an eighth race that featured Felix Beda's Neb. Harvest and Paul Kemling's Queen Turn for 6 furlongs.

In past years, that eighth race was good enough to be the meet's featured attraction. But not this year as Pollock seemed to out do himself with each weekend's program.

"The people of Lincoln and the surrounding areas deserve a lot of credit," Pollock modestly said. "The Lincoln people like to come out and bet on good horses. Of course, the good horses run because of the higher purses. It all goes back to the same thing, but you can certainly say that Lincoln appreciates the better horses. It shows in the mutuel handle totals."

Obviously, not every race on each of the 26-day meeting can be labeled outstanding. But it's time for the constant complainers to look at the total picture rather than one or two races each day which admittedly would not be run at Hollywood Park.

Lincoln has the best racing it has ever had. The purses this week will undoubtedly be the highest in history of the outstate Nebraska race tracks.

All of which indicates that Lincoln is the second-best racing center in Nebraska as it should be since it's the second-largest population center.

And when this city opens its remodeled race track, hopefully by the 1976 season, it will take a backseat to no other area in the country comparable population dentsity and racing conditions.

The future is bright, but the city of Lincoln owes a "thank you" to Pollock, his assistant racing secretary Richard Crockett and his entire staff for bringing what must rank as the best racing ever in Nebraska (outside of Ak-Sar-Ben) to Lincoln.

The State Fairgrounds staff from Brandt, assistant general manager John Skold and on down can take pride in the figures this year that should indicate to the Nebraska State Racing Commission that Lincoln can support and is entitled to more than 26 days in 1975.

"I've seen statements made and heard things on the grapevine that simply say they have a better team. I haven't forgotten those kind of things."

Bud Asher, the coach of the bad guys, the Sharks, is a bit mystified by Pardee's charges.

"The only statement I've ever made about the Blazers is that I think they are well-coached and Pardee has done an excellent job," said Asher, whose team is 3-2. "Frankly, I'm disappointed to see this high school stuff being used to fire him team up."

Asher may be caught unawares by Pardee's George Allen-ploy, but he knows high school tactics when he sees them, having coached at that level last year.

Chicago Fire quarterback Virgil Carter is not shy about putting the ball in the air, while Philadelphia Bell signal-caller King Corcoran never has been accused of timidity of any sort.

Carter is the WFL's leading passer in leadint ehf Fire to a 4-1 record and tops the league in touchdown passes with 11.

But Corcoran, the brash former minor-league hotshot, is second in TD tosses with 10 and has the top completion percentage in the league at .562. The Bell are 3-2.

Unable to win in five attempts in the light, the Portland Storm will have a go at it in the dark of New York's Downing Stadium.

The .Stars (3-2) are trying to improve the lighting in the Randall's Island Stadium, but efforts so far have been stymied and the two previous WFL games there have been played in a twilight zone aura.

Birmingham, the league's only undefeated entry, plays host to the Hawaiians, who have struggled to a 1-4 mark with rookie quarterback Norris Weese the team's only bright spot so far.

Quarterback George Mira should be ready for action after being sidelined for two games by an injury, but may have trouble reclaiming his starting job from Grambling graduate Matthew Reed.

At Detroit, the Wheels still are seeking their first victory of the season, going against the Memphis Southmen (3-2).

In the season opener, the Southmen drubbed Detroit 34-15.

In Thursday night's nationally televised contest, Southern California meets Houston in the Astrodome.

Ceresco Native Eyes Pro Career

Wilmington, Ohio (AP) — When Evan Jolitz grew up playing neighborhood football on a weed-covered field in tiny Ceresco, Neb., he dreamed of big crowds, autograph-seekers and winning.

It's been a long wait. The Cincinnati Bengals rookie hopes his dues-paying days are over.

Jolitz is a football "dropout" who salvaged his career through academic achievement — then decided to give the game another chance.

"I was confident throughout college that I could play in the pros, but I wasn't sure anyone else knew," said Jolitz.

The 6-foot-3, 225-pound hitter was the biggest surprise of the Bengal draft last January. He was a third round choice.

He is an unheralded prospect from the University of Cincinnati joining a National Football League team already rich in linebacking talent.

Furthermore, he had been buried on losers.

"Even though I only played for bad teams, I think it helped me gain a professional attitude. I never got discouraged.

"I'd take my lumps, then get up and go at it again," said Jolitz.

His career began taking shape at Ceresco, a small community of 400.

Football was fun in those days. "My best friend was Steve Runty. He was always the quarterback and I was the pass rusher. He was a starting quarterback for Nebraska last year," said Jolitz.

When his family moved to St. Mary's, Ohio, Jolitz began taking the sport seriously. He started at tight end, then was switched to defensive back.

He won a full-ride scholarship to Xavier University where he bacame a starter as a sophomore.

Then, suddenly, school and football became meaningless. He dropped out.

Months passed aganizingly slow. The future was a blur. Jolitz had had enough. He decided to transfer to crosstown rival Cincinnati.

He enrolled in pre-med and drew a B average. He tried out for football but had grown too much to remain a defensive back.

"I wanted to play, so I started weight lifting. They switched me to linebacker. I had to get big to survive," he said.

As the only linebacker drafted by the Bengals, he's confident he can make the cut.

"I may have played in only seven winning games in four years of college, but football saved my life," he said.

Warner Wins Golf Tourney

Curly Warner won the championship flight of the Hidden Valley Women's Golf Association Tournament with a 44.

The results:

Championship flight — Curly Warner, 44; Mary Ann Kosner, 47; Jeanie Frederichs, 44; Betty Arnold, 46.
First Flight — Louise Rung, 53; Connie Price, 53; Kay Pomajzel, 53.
Second flight — Ruby Genrich, 57; Linda Elzey, 57; Vicky Bromm, 58.
Third flight — Phil Brierly, 63; Lizz Jettner, 64; Elma Hastie, 65.

Bukata Gets ABA Position

New York (UPI) — Jim Bukata was named Tuesday to replace Mike Recht as director of public relations for the American Basketball Association.

Bukata, a 32-year-old native of Pittsburgh, Pa., joins the ABA after a six-year tenure with Publicity Enterprises, a New York based sports publicity firm.

An author and magazine writer, Bukata has published seven books on basketball and edited last year's New York Knicks' program, selected as the best in the National Basketball Association.

Three Jets Report To Training Camp

Hempstead, L.I. (UPI) — Wide receiver Ed Bell, tight end Rich Caster and safety Chris Farasopoulous reported Tuesday to the Jets training camp at Hofstra University.

With the addition of the three veterans, the Jets now have had 21 strikers showing up in the last two days, and a total of 32 experienced players in camp. However, 14 more veterans have yet to show, including quarterback Joe Namath.

Crown May Be Decided At Nebraska State Fair

The three days of International Motor Contest Association (IMCA) sanctioned sprint car races at the Nebraska State Fair, Aug. 31-Sept. 2, could be the turning point for four drivers with aspirations for capturing the 1974 championship crown.

Larry Kirkpatrick, Wood River, Ill., the current leader in the official point totals, didn't finish in the top five on any of the three outings last year and he's confident about improving on this record.

Bill Utz, Sedalia, Mo., trailing Kirkpatrick by 20 points, won two features in Lincoln last year, and finished fifth on the third day.

Not out of striking distance of the leaders are Ralph Blackett, Des Moines, Iowa, and Gene Gennetten, Gladstone, Mo. Blackett captured a third and fouth on the last two days respectively.

Gennetten was the most steady competitor for the three days of racing finishing third the first day and taking second place in the feature on the next two days. He closed out the 1973 sprint car campaign with a second-place finish in the official point totals.

A demolition derby comes to the Nebraska State Fair Sept. 6.

Modified stock car, sprint-style races, for Nebraska drivers only, is scheduled for Sept. 7. Top drivers from throughout the state will be converging on the half-mile dirt oval attempting to capture the lion's share of the large cash purse and the distinction of being the 1974 Nebraska State Fair Champion.

IMCA sanctioned new-model stock car races close out the Fair's racing activities, Sept. 8, when they do battle in a series of heat races and a 50-lap feature.

Current point leader in the IMCA, Bill Schwader, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa., is ready and anxious to go racing and fulfill his hopes of capturing the 1974 new-model division crown.

Gordon Blankenship, Keokuk, Iowa, the 1973 champion, is anxious to race, get a shot at the front-running Schwader, and hold his No. 1 spot for one more year.

Williams Signs Kings' Contract

Kansas City (AP) — The Kings announced Tuesday they signed Nate Williams, their third leading scorer, to a two-year contract to play for them in the National Basketball Association.

Williams is from Utah State and will be starting his fourth season in the NBA.

He played at forward and guard in 82 games for the Kings last season, averaging 15.5 points a game and getting 182 assists.

On both counts, it was his best season so far. Terms of the two-year-contract were not announced.

Mini's Death Fought

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

Devotees of the miniskirt Tuesday vowed to fight to the end against the pronouncement of London's largest clothing retailer that the mini — this time — is really dead.

But the winds of autumn were not blowing in their favor.

London, the fashion center which 10 years ago gave birth to the mini, Monday wrote what many say may be its epitaph.

The mini is dead, said the C and A chain, Britain's biggest retailer, which sold 18,000 minis a day at the height of the fashion.

"No way," said a representative male, Mike Timko, 20, in San Francisco.

Mini Alive In U.S.

In U.S. cities, the mini seemed very much alive, at least for the summer. Maybe it was last year's mini, but for hot days it was out in the cities and at resorts.

However, this year's fall and winter collections from Paris, Rome and New York definitely drop the hemlines below the knee. In Paris, UPI correspondent Aline Mosby reported French girls hardly ever wear minis now, although Scandinavian and German girls do.

Paris designers stopped doing minis two or three years ago. So far, the only designer bucking the longer hemline trend is Andre Courreges.

"I always have liked the short look," said Courreges, whose hemlines rest at the top of the knee in his new collection. "It's younger."

Courreges doesn't have any minis for fall and winter but he does not include midcalf hemlines either.

Long Skirts Here

"Long skirts are here but actually this doesn't mean the mini is dead," said Patricia McColl, who is based in Paris with Women's Wear Daily. "That's old-fashioned thinking, to say that one thing is in or out. Women are liberated now and they can wear what they want to when they want to . . . you can hardly say a fashion is dead."

"I don't believe hemlines will go down," said Sharon Alwart, 30, of Appleton, Wisc., a secretary visiting New York. "Too many American women are too free in their ideas. They'll wear what they like. American women are more liberated than other women."

Lucille Richards, a clothing store owner in New York, said she doubted the longer skirts would be popular because they are "just not a flattering length for most women. They're ugly . . ."

Muriel Sinclair, of Joseph Magnin Co., a chain of popular women's stores in San Francisco, said even young people now "have definitely swung to longer skirts.

"But miniskirts are still available and are still sold (although) not the real mini-mini, short-shortie skirts of the 60's."

Bad Time For Lengths

Edith Gillespie, a housewife on Manhattan's East Side, figured now was a bad time to tamper with lengths anyway.

"With inflation so bad, not many women will want to invest a lot of money in a whole new set of clothes," she said.

But other comments around the U.S. indicated the mini's future at the end of summer seemed uncertain.

"I haven't been able to sell a mini in over a year," said the operator of a Chicago women's apparel shop which caters to working girls and "Lake Shore Drive types" from 18 to 85.

"The length now is right around the knees. I bought some calf-length (midcalf) for fashion items only, but I expect they will be shortened to the knee before they sell."

In Dallas, Cynthia Doss, 20, whose fashion house sells French label ready-to-wear, said the mini doesn't look good on women — I don't care how good a pair of legs you have."

Senate OKs Housing Compromise

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday approved 84 to 0 a compromise $11.1 billion Housing and Community Development bill to replace existing urban aid programs.

The bill, worked out by a House-Senate conference committee, would also establish a new housing subsidy program and raise the dollar ceilings on FHA-insured home mortgages.

Final approval on the measure is expected by the House later this week.

The $8.6 billion community block grant program, which would require no local matching funds, would largely give local communities control over how the money is spent.

However, the program would establish certain mandatory federal goals which would have to be given priority, including lower income housing and elimination of slums or blight.

The grant program was drawn up to replace model cities, urban renewal, rehabilitation loans, open space and urban beautification, neighborhood facilities, advance acquisition of land, and the basic water and sewer facilities programs.

Funds would be distributed on the basis of population, overcrowding and poverty, with poverty given double weight in the formula.

A new $1.25 billion rent subsidy program would pay the difference between local fair market rents and 15 to 25% of the gross income of eligible lower income families.

The present controversial housing subsidy program would be maintained one year, and the rental assistance program would be extended two years with an additional $75 million in funds.

The bill also would increase the present mortgage limit on FHA-insured loans from $33,000 to $45,000.

The maximum amount a savings and loan association can lend would be increased from $45,000 to $55,000.

Republicans Urge Cut In House Transit Bill

Washington (UPI) — Republican leaders, hinting at a possible presidential veto, said Tuesday a pending $20 billion mass transit aid bill would be inflationary and should be cut in half.

The measure is tentatively scheduled for House floor action Wednesday, when Republicans will offer a series of amendments to cut the total federal grant money to $11.2 billion.

But Republican leader John Rhodes, COP Policy Committee chairman Barber Conable, N.Y., and ranking Public Works Committee Republican William H. Harsha, Ohio, said they supported a section of the bill to allow greater truck weights and wider buses on the country's Interstate highways.

The American Automobile Association condemned the proposed truck weight increases, calling this "a grave threat to the safety of all drivers."

Meanwhile, the Senate Public Works committee prepared to report a separate big-truck bill that would allow maximum truck weights to increase from 73,280 pounds to 80,000 pounds. This still would be less than the 90,000-pound maximum in the House bill.

Episcopal House Of Bishops Considers Disciplinary Action

Chicago (UPI) — The 200-member House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church meets in emergency session Wednesday to consider disciplinary action against four bishops who ordained 11 women as priests in defiance of church laws.

Order and discipline were to be the topics of the two-day meeting, expected to be closed, said the Rev. Erwin M. Soukup of Chicago.

The status of the women priests and any action against them also could form part of the discussions, Soukup said.

The Rt. Rev. John M. Allin of New York, presiding bishop of the 2.1-million-member church, will open the meeting with a statement.

The 11 women, all church deacons, were ordained July 29 in a Philadelphia church by the four bishops facing possible action by the church's ruling body.

The ceremony was performed by the Rt. Rev. Robert L. DeWitt, former bishop of Pennsylvania; the Rt. Rev. Edward R. Welles II, former bishop of West Missouri; the Rev. Daniel Corrigan, former head of domestic missions for the church's National Executive Council, and the Rt. Rev. Antonio Ramos, bishop of Costa Rica.

Bishop Lyman C. Ogilby, of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, said at the time the bishops had violated the "constitution and canons of the church" and could face disciplinary action ranging "from censure or suspension to deposition."

Women ordained and their dioceses were the Revs. Suzanne Hiatt, 28, Philadelphia; Constantine Hatch Wittig, 28, New Jersey; Marie Moorefield, 30, New York; Alison Cheek, 47, Virginia; Carter Heyward, 28, New York; Betty Bone Schiess, 50, Central New York; Emily Hewitt, 30, New York; Katrina Swanson, 39, West Missouri; Merrill Bittner, 27, Rochester, N.Y.; Jeannette Ridlon Piccard, 79, Minnesota, and Sister Alla Rennee Bozarth-Campbell, 27, Minneapolis.

Suspension Upheld

Cedar Rapids, Iowa (UPI) — The suspensions of five police officers has been upheld by the Cedar Rapids Civil Service Commission.

Fords To Attend Alexandria Church

Washington (UPI) — President Ford plans to continue worshipping at his church in Alexandria, Va., even after he moves into the White House.

The announcement Tuesday apparently means Ford will not continue the practice of former President Nixon of holding Sunday worship services in the East Room of the White House.

Ford and his family are Episcopalians and long-time members of Immanuel Church-on-the-Hill in Alexandria. Press Secretary Jerry terHorst said they will continue to go there.

Mini's Death Fought

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

Devotees of the miniskirt Tuesday vowed to fight to the end against the pronouncement of London's largest clothing retailer that the mini — this time — is really dead.

But the winds of autumn were not blowing in their favor.

London, the fashion center which 10 years ago gave birth to the mini, Monday wrote what many say may be its epitaph.

The mini is dead, said the C and A chain, Britain's biggest retailer, which sold 18,000 minis a day at the height of the fashion.

"No way," said a representative male, Mike Timko, 20, in San Francisco.

Mini Alive In U.S.

In U.S. cities, the mini seemed very much alive, at least for the summer. Maybe it was last year's mini, but for hot days it was out in the cities and at resorts.

However, this year's fall and winter collections from Paris, Rome and New York definitely drop the hemlines below the knee. In Paris, UPI correspondent Aline Mosby reported French girls hardly ever wear minis now, although Scandinavian and German girls do.

Paris designers stopped doing minis two or three years ago. So far, the only designer bucking the longer hemline trend is Andre Courreges.

"I always have liked the short look," said Courreges, whose hemlines rest at the top of the knee in his new collection. "It's younger."

Courreges doesn't have any minis for fall and winter but he does not include midcalf hemlines either.

Long Skirts Here

"Long skirts are here but actually this doesn't mean the mini is dead," said Patricia McColl, who is based in Paris with Women's Wear Daily. "That's old-fashioned thinking, to say that one thing is in or out. Women are liberated now and they can wear what they want to when they want to . . . you can hardly say a fashion is dead."

"I don't believe hemlines will go down," said Sharon Alwart, 30, of Appleton, Wisc., a secretary visiting New York. "Too many American women are too free in their ideas. They'll wear what they like. American women are more liberated than other women."

Lucille Richards, a clothing store owner in New York, said she doubted the longer skirts would be popular because they are "just not a flattering length for most women. They're ugly . . ."

Muriel Sinclair, of Joseph Magnin Co., a chain of popular women's stores in San Francisco, said even young people now "have definitely swung to longer skirts.

"But miniskirts are still available and are still sold (although) not the real mini-mini, short-shortie skirts of the 60's."

Bad Time For Lengths

Edith Gillespie, a housewife on Manhattan's East Side, figured now was a bad time to tamper with lengths anyway.

"With inflation so bad, not many women will want to invest a lot of money in a whole new set of clothes," she said.

But other comments around the U.S. indicated the mini's future at the end of summer seemed uncertain.

"I haven't been able to sell a mini in over a year," said the operator of a Chicago women's apparel shop which caters to working girls and "Lake Shore Drive types" from 18 to 85.

"The length now is right around the knees. I bought some calf-length (midcalf) for fashion items only, but I expect they will be shortened to the knee before they sell."

In Dallas, Cynthia Doss, 20, whose fashion house sells French label ready-to-wear, said the mini doesn't look good on women — I don't care how good a pair of legs you have."

Senate OKs Housing Compromise

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday approved 84 to 0 a compromise $11.1 billion Housing and Community Development bill to replace existing urban aid programs.

The bill, worked out by a House-Senate conference committee, would also establish a new housing subsidy program and raise the dollar ceilings on FHA-insured home mortgages.

Final approval on the measure is expected by the House later this week.

The $8.6 billion community block grant program, which would require no local matching funds, would largely give local communities control over how the money is spent.

However, the program would establish certain mandatory federal goals which would have to be given priority, including lower income housing and elimination of slums or blight.

The grant program was drawn up to replace model cities, urban renewal, rehabilitation loans, open space and urban beautification, neighborhood facilities, advance acquisition of land, and the basic water and sewer facilities programs.

Funds would be distributed on the basis of population, overcrowding and poverty, with poverty given double weight in the formula.

A new $1.25 billion rent subsidy program would pay the difference between local fair market rents and 15 to 25% of the gross income of eligible lower income families.

The present controversial housing subsidy program would be maintained one year, and the rental assistance program would be extended two years with an additional $75 million in funds.

The bill also would increase the present mortgage limit on FHA-insured loans from $33,000 to $45,000.

The maximum amount a savings and loan association can lend would be increased from $45,000 to $55,000.

Republicans Urge Cut In House Transit Bill

Washington (UPI) — Republican leaders, hinting at a possible presidential veto, said Tuesday a pending $20 billion mass transit aid bill would be inflationary and should be cut in half.

The measure is tentatively scheduled for House floor action Wednesday, when Republicans will offer a series of amendments to cut the total federal grant money to $11.2 billion.

But Republican leader John Rhodes, COP Policy Committee chairman Barber Conable, N.Y., and ranking Public Works Committee Republican William H. Harsha, Ohio, said they supported a section of the bill to allow greater truck weights and wider buses on the country's Interstate highways.

The American Automobile Association condemned the proposed truck weight increases, calling this "a grave threat to the safety of all drivers."

Meanwhile, the Senate Public Works committee prepared to report a separate big-truck bill that would allow maximum truck weights to increase from 73,280 pounds to 80,000 pounds. This still would be less than the 90,000-pound maximum in the House bill.

Episcopal House Of Bishops Considers Disciplinary Action

Chicago (UPI) — The 200-member House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church meets in emergency session Wednesday to consider disciplinary action against four bishops who ordained 11 women as priests in defiance of church laws.

Order and discipline were to be the topics of the two-day meeting, expected to be closed, said the Rev. Erwin M. Soukup of Chicago.

The status of the women priests and any action against them also could form part of the discussions, Soukup said.

The Rt. Rev. John M. Allin of New York, presiding bishop of the 2.1-million-member church, will open the meeting with a statement.

The 11 women, all church deacons, were ordained July 29 in a Philadelphia church by the four bishops facing possible action by the church's ruling body.

The ceremony was performed by the Rt. Rev. Robert L. DeWitt, former bishop of Pennsylvania; the Rt. Rev. Edward R. Welles II, former bishop of West Missouri; the Rev. Daniel Corrigan, former head of domestic missions for the church's National Executive Council, and the Rt. Rev. Antonio Ramos, bishop of Costa Rica.

Bishop Lyman C. Ogilby, of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, said at the time the bishops had violated the "constitution and canons of the church" and could face disciplinary action ranging "from censure or suspension to deposition."

Women ordained and their dioceses were the Revs. Suzanne Hiatt, 28, Philadelphia; Constantine Hatch Wittig, 28, New Jersey; Marie Moorefield, 30, New York; Alison Cheek, 47, Virginia; Carter Heyward, 28, New York; Betty Bone Schiess, 50, Central New York; Emily Hewitt, 30, New York; Katrina Swanson, 39, West Missouri; Merrill Bittner, 27, Rochester, N.Y.; Jeannette Ridlon Piccard, 79, Minnesota, and Sister Alla Rennee Bozarth-Campbell, 27, Minneapolis.

Suspension Upheld

Cedar Rapids, Iowa (UPI) — The suspensions of five police officers has been upheld by the Cedar Rapids Civil Service Commission.

Fords To Attend Alexandria Church

Washington (UPI) — President Ford plans to continue worshipping at his church in Alexandria, Va., even after he moves into the White House.

The announcement Tuesday apparently means Ford will not continue the practice of former President Nixon of holding Sunday worship services in the East Room of the White House.

Ford and his family are Episcopalians and long-time members of Immanuel Church-on-the-Hill in Alexandria. Press Secretary Jerry terHorst said they will continue to go there.

City Jail, Penal Complex Escapees Being Sought

Two escapees from the City Jail and one escapee from the State Penal Complex were being sought by law enforcement officials Tuesday.

Police said the latest escapee is Russell Roy Krantz, 42, from Sterling. He was lodged in the City Jail early Tuesday morning for public intoxication, police said.

Police said he was taken to Municipal Court Tuesday morning and apparently walked out.

Not Dangerous

Krantz is 5-8, 175 pounds. He was wearing light-colored pants and a light green sweat shirt. He is not considered dangerous.

Penal Complex officials said John Charles Zalme, 27, escaped from a work detail on the dairy farm just south of the complex about 8:15 a.m. Tuesday morning.

Zalme is six feet tall, 160 pounds and has brown hair and green eyes, the complex said. He was wearing a dark green prison uniform, the complex said.

The complex said he was jailed in August, 1973, to serve a three-year term for forgery from Douglas County. He is not considered dangerous.

Lewis Slipped Away

Police are still seeking Jeffrey Lewis, 29, who apparently slipped out of the City Jail around noon Monday. Police said his disappearance wasn't discovered until Monday night.

Lewis was being held on two counts of forgery in Lancaster County and as a fugitive from justice from Colorado where he is wanted for burglary.

Lewis is described as a white male, 5-8, 140 pounds, with brown eyes and long brown hair. He was wearing a white T-shirt and light-colored pants.

Police Inspector Bob Myers said Lewis is not considered dangerous.

Stock Market Continues Losing Streak

New York (AP) — The stock market ran its latest losing streak to four days Tuesday, pulling back substantially in the grip of continuing gloom over the inflation outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slumped 10.88 to 756.41 to extend its loss since last Wednesday's close to 41.19 points.

That left the widely watched indicator with virtually nothing to show for the sharp three-day rally it staged in advance of the transfer of the presidency from Richard M. Nixon to President Ford.

Gainers overran losers 1,084 to 283 among the 1,736 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume picked up a bit from Monday's depressed pace but was still light at 10.14 million shares.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .66 to 41.19.

Both the Dow and the NYSE stood just above the four-year lows they reached early this month as Wall Street closed the books on another dismal day.

Analysts said Tuesday's losses were spurred in part by a buying wave in the commodity futures markets following the issuance of the Agriculture Department estimate Monday that 1974 corn and soybean crops would be well below previous expectations because of drought in the Midwest.

That news came against the background of a dramatic rise in wholesale prices reported last week by the government for July.

"These things are an indication that inflation is not going to be cured without a lot of time and effort," observed Robert Colin at Faulkner, Dawkins & Sullivan.

Brokers said some selling might have been prompted by disappointment that the market gave no strong positive response at the opening to President Ford's address to Congress Monday night.

LBE Stock To Be Offered

Forecasts Push Grain Futures To Limit Gains

Chicago (AP) — Pessimistic crop forecasts pushed grain futures to limit gains Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Trading virtually ceased after most contracts opened at limit advances and remained there throughout the session.

The surge reversed a three-day decline during which corn lost 26 cents a bushel and soybeans fell 70 cents. Because of the decline soybean trading limits were increased Tuesday to 30 cents a bushel.

But Tuesday's session was a different scenario.

Only the December corn futures were traded briefly at the 10 cent limit because no sellers parted with their contracts. The unrestricted August futures for soybean meal soared nearly $40 a ton and nearly 550 points for soybean oil.

Other limit gains included soybeans at 30 cents a bushel; soy meal $10 a ton; soy oil 100 points; wheat 20 cents a bushel; corn 10 cents; oats 6 cents and iced broilers 2 cents a pound.

City Jail, Penal Complex Escapees Being Sought

Two escapees from the City Jail and one escapee from the State Penal Complex were being sought by law enforcement officials Tuesday.

Police said the latest escapee is Russell Roy Krantz, 42, from Sterling. He was lodged in the City Jail early Tuesday morning for public intoxication, police said.

Police said he was taken to Municipal Court Tuesday morning and apparently walked out.

Not Dangerous

Krantz is 5-8, 175 pounds. He was wearing light-colored pants and a light green sweat shirt. He is not considered dangerous.

Penal Complex officials said John Charles Zalme, 27, escaped from a work detail on the dairy farm just south of the complex about 8:15 a.m. Tuesday morning.

Zalme is six feet tall, 160 pounds and has brown hair and green eyes, the complex said. He was wearing a dark green prison uniform, the complex said.

The complex said he was jailed in August, 1973, to serve a three-year term for forgery from Douglas County. He is not considered dangerous.

Lewis Slipped Away

Police are still seeking Jeffrey Lewis, 29, who apparently slipped out of the City Jail around noon Monday. Police said his disappearance wasn't discovered until Monday night.

Lewis was being held on two counts of forgery in Lancaster County and as a fugitive from justice from Colorado where he is wanted for burglary.

Lewis is described as a white male, 5-8, 140 pounds, with brown eyes and long brown hair. He was wearing a white T-shirt and light-colored pants.

Police Inspector Bob Myers said Lewis is not considered dangerous.

Stock Market Continues Losing Streak

New York (AP) — The stock market ran its latest losing streak to four days Tuesday, pulling back substantially in the grip of continuing gloom over the inflation outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slumped 10.88 to 756.41 to extend its loss since last Wednesday's close to 41.19 points.

That left the widely watched indicator with virtually nothing to show for the sharp three-day rally it staged in advance of the transfer of the presidency from Richard M. Nixon to President Ford.

Gainers overran losers 1,084 to 283 among the 1,736 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume picked up a bit from Monday's depressed pace but was still light at 10.14 million shares.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .66 to 41.19.

Both the Dow and the NYSE stood just above the four-year lows they reached early this month as Wall Street closed the books on another dismal day.

Analysts said Tuesday's losses were spurred in part by a buying wave in the commodity futures markets following the issuance of the Agriculture Department estimate Monday that 1974 corn and soybean crops would be well below previous expectations because of drought in the Midwest.

That news came against the background of a dramatic rise in wholesale prices reported last week by the government for July.

"These things are an indication that inflation is not going to be cured without a lot of time and effort," observed Robert Colin at Faulkner, Dawkins & Sullivan.

Brokers said some selling might have been prompted by disappointment that the market gave no strong positive response at the opening to President Ford's address to Congress Monday night.

LBE Stock To Be Offered

Forecasts Push Grain Futures To Limit Gains

Chicago (AP) — Pessimistic crop forecasts pushed grain futures to limit gains Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Trading virtually ceased after most contracts opened at limit advances and remained there throughout the session.

The surge reversed a three-day decline during which corn lost 26 cents a bushel and soybeans fell 70 cents. Because of the decline soybean trading limits were increased Tuesday to 30 cents a bushel.

But Tuesday's session was a different scenario.

Only the December corn futures were traded briefly at the 10 cent limit because no sellers parted with their contracts. The unrestricted August futures for soybean meal soared nearly $40 a ton and nearly 550 points for soybean oil.

Other limit gains included soybeans at 30 cents a bushel; soy meal $10 a ton; soy oil 100 points; wheat 20 cents a bushel; corn 10 cents; oats 6 cents and iced broilers 2 cents a pound.

Silversmith Advocates Recognition Of Poncas

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Spokane, Wash. — You won't find the Free Ponca Nation anywhere in your road atlas. But its most vocal exponent is alive and doing well at Spokane's Expo '74.

Ponca silversmith Wayne Small Bear of Niobrara can be found in a longhouse in the native American section of Expo's giant Folklife Festival, demonstrating his traditional Indian craft and selling silver rings and bracelets billed as "some of the finest jewelry made by a native artist anywhere."

And if you're interested, he'll gladly pause to talk — because he wants people to understand the importance of nurturing the traditional Indian crafts, the importance of the American Indian Movement (AIM) and the work it's doing to perpetuate them, the importance of regaining government recognition of the terminated Ponca tribe.

The Ponca people lost their reservation on the Niobrara River in 1877, despite guarantees in an 1858 treaty that it would remain theirs. They were sent by force to Indian Territory (Oklahoma), where a third of the small tribe succumbed to hardship and disease.

Some Returned

Some, led by Small Bear's great-great-grandfather Chief Standing Bear, returned and were allowed to stay after a court fight.

But the Nebraska Poncas, who number in the hundreds, have never been recognized as a tribe or granted a new reservation — although their Oklahoma cousins live on "designated land."

"I was appointed by my people to be permanent chief of the Ponca people in Nebraska," says Small Bear, a former Lincoln resident. "We're going for our statutes back. We're going to get the government to recognize the Ponca people in Nebraska."

Small Bear also hopes for a "traditional camp" for Ponca people somewhere in Nebraska, similar to those in Canada and on the Navajo and Papago reservations. There Ponca people could gather to practice their native religion and revive their vanishing culture.

Working closely with AIM leaders, Small Bear says he plans soon to call a meeting of Ponca people in either Lincoln or Omaha and "raise hell if necessary" to call attention to the Poncas' mistreatment.

Very Successful

"I like to spend most of my time at this stage of my life to help my people," Small Bear says. But for the last 15 years he has been a very successful professional silversmith, selling his wares all over the country. "The first piece I made I sold four hours later," he says.

As if to demonstrate the point, an Anglo tourist interrupts to sign $120 worth of travelers checks in payment for a Small Bear bracelet.

Small Bear spent two years learning his craft from an old Navajo man, who taught him to work without a torch, using "charcoal and bellows and all the old hand tools" instead. Silver shavings and borax are used instead of solder "so the thing fuses together all in one piece."

"We don't do anything that's fake, so when a person buys a $150 bracelet, he's getting the real thing," Small Bear says.

SILVERWORK . . . 'nothing that's fake.'

TRADITION . . . kept alive by Small Bear, right, and son Wayne.

Although he also works with South Dakota agate, Small Bear gets his main materials — silver and turquoise — from "my mines in Arizona . . . I was down there last winter and picked up enough to last me a year or so."

Although silver is more characteristic of Southwestern tribes, Small Bear uses Plains Indian designs. "We want to stay with our own locale, our own customs," he explains. "We're not portraying the Indian the way he was 100 years ago. We're trying to show what the Indians are today."

An AIM member, Small Bear spent last winter with the Wounded Knee defendants, teaching silversmithing at the AIM survival school in Rapid City.

"The main thing is teaching," he explains, "so the customs, the culture, the traditions, the identity won't be forgotten."

And besides keeping the culture alive, he says, silversmithing gives young Indians a skill they can use to "compete with the white man on his own level."

"All my children are skilled craftsmen," Small Bear says: daughter Cheri is a basketweaver and beadworker, sons Wayne Jr. and John are silversmiths. Four-year-old Sammy, son of Small Bear's young Oglala Sioux wife Linda, is getting acquainted with silver work as well.

Wayne Small Bear Jr. is accomplished enough to work side by side with his father at his Folklife workbench. He represents a unique amalgamation of Indian culture. Son of a Papago mother, he considers himself a Papago; but he learned the Navajo craft from his Ponca father.

It was the traditional Plains religion of prayer, sweat lodges, ceremony and medicine which led him to AIM, the elder Small Bear says. AIM in turn led him to his niche in the Expo Folklife Festival.

AIM was recruiting characteristic Indian craftsmen, he says, and "I was the only one who was able to come out" from the Midwest. He will be at Expo for the duration of the fair, which runs through Nov. 3.

His advice for Indian people: "Hold onto your heritage."

Exon: U.S. Needs Energy Of Youth

By K. STEINBRUEGGE
Star Staff Writer

America needs the involvement and idealism of youth now more than ever, Gov. J. James Exon told about 200 delegates to the 14th annual Nebraska Conference on Youth Tuesday.

"You young people have more enthusiasm, more dedication to doing what is right, than those of us that are a little bit older," Exon said at the conference's closing luncheon.

Referring to the Watergate affair and its aftermath, Exon urged the mostly high school-age delegates to not automatically distrust politicians.

Stressing that "most people involved in politics are people like you," Exon told delegates to get involved constructively in the political arena.

Exon said the American political system of checks and balances works and asked the youth to keep faith in that system. The protection of the American two-party system helps the U.S. to "glow and grow," he said.

"For every (politician) that may do things off color, I can give you 100" that don't, Exon added.

He said youth should work for the people who vote consistently with the way they want them to, regardless of political party or ideology.

Saluting President Gerald Ford as "a shot in the arm for America," Exon said he was proud of Ford's concern with fiscal responsiblity.

Exon also told the delegates to try and involve their home towns in the Community Improvement Award contest, an annual community betterment event.

Following the conference's baseball theme, "NCY Hitting Home," he told the youth "the score will be counted up next year" by totalling the projects and goals accomplished.

In other closing ceremonies, the conference executive committee for 1975 was elected. Chosen as co-chairmen were Doug Andreesen and Diana Whitcomb. Also selected were Mary Hughes, vice-chairman; Jayne Norenberg and Shelley Bursik, co-secretaries; and Jana Norquest, treasurer.

Mark Stortvedt of Norfolk was chosen chairman of the Nebraska Council of Youth, which co-sponsors the conference.

Urbom Rejects Drug Offender's Bail Request

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom has rejected a petition for bail filed by Billy R. Torrence, an Omaha man sentenced to 15 years in prison for drug offenses.

Torrence was sentenced June 15, 1973 in Douglas County District Court for possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

Urbom said Torrence could not seek relief in the federal courts until he exhausted all possible appeals in state courts.

Five Added To State's Death Toll

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents in Nebraska Monday claimed three lives, and another person died Monday night of injuries he received in a motorcycle-car mishap last Saturday.

In addition, authorities in Lincoln released a final report showing that a Firth man died of injuries he suffered in a traffic accident July 24.

The reports upped the state's 1974 traffic toll to 234, compared with 244 on this date last year.

A car-truck collision at a busy Omaha intersection Monday night took the lives of two persons and injured three others.

The victims were identified as Major James F. Kohler, 33, a Strategic Air Command intelligence officer stationed at Offutt Air Force Base for the past four years, and his wife, Carolyn R., 28.

Offutt officials said Kohler's parents live in Neenah, Wis., and that Mrs. Kohler's parents live in Danville, Ohio.

Their three sons were hospitalized, Scott, 5, listed in serious condition; Keith 7, and Cris, 3, both listed in good condition.

The driver of the truck, Michael L. Hawkins, 22, of Omaha, was apparently not injured.

Police said the accident occurred when Hawkins' truck slammed into the Kohler car, which was attempting a left hand turn in front of the truck.

A Gering woman, Margaret Johns, 76, was killed earlier Monday when a car driven by her husband, Ernest, collided with a van at the intersection of Highway 29 and the South Belt Line in Scottsbluff.

The driver of the van, Daley Harsin, also of Gering, told police that the Johns' car pulled into his path.

Both Harsin and Johns sustained minor injuries, as did two other passengers in the Johns' car.

An Omaha man died Monday night of injuries he suffered last Saturday.

The victim was identified as Keith Lea, 21, and police said he was a passenger on a motorcycle being operated by William Werth, 21, also of Omaha.

According to police reports, the cycle collided with a car driven by William Pavey, 60, Omaha, as Pavey attempted to make a left hand turn.

Werth was hospitalized, and is listed in fair condition.

Pavey was not injured.

Police say the accident is still under investigation.

The Nebraska Accident Records Bureau reported Tuesday morning that the Aug. 1 death of Albert Smice, 75, of Firth, will be listed as a traffic fatality.

Smice was injured July 24 when his pickup truck ran off a Lancaster County road about 18 miles southeast of Lincoln, went into a ditch, and struck a power pole.

Crash Kills North Platte Marine

North Platte (AP) — Funeral services are pending here for Marine Sgt. John H. Foster Jr., 23, of North Platte, who was killed in a traffic accident in Oceanside, Calif., last Saturday.

Oceanside investigators said Foster lost control of his car, which ran off the road.

Foster, who was stationed at Camp Pendleton, was thrown from the car, and died several hours later at an Oceanside hospital.

Aid To Education Bill Goes On Ballot

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Allen Beermann signed an order Tuesday placing the new state-aid-to-schools bill on the November ballot, but a spokesman for the Nebraska State School Boards Association said efforts to get the measure removed from the ballot will be in the courts by the end of the week.

Beermann said opponents of the bill have gathered 34,259 valid signatures. They needed 23,081.

Beermann said 4,045 of the signature originally submitted in opposition to the bill were not found to be valid, mainly because the signers were not registered voters.

The bill would sharply increase the amount of state money spent to support local schools from the present amount of $55 million to $155 million within two years.

Ross Rasmussen, a lobbyist for the School Boards Association, said a suit will probably be filed in Lancaster County District Court later this week. However, Rasmussen declined to discuss the specific nature of the suit.

The bill, LB772, passed over the veto of Gov. J. James Exon last spring, will appear on the ballot as measure No. 300.

A description of the bill, written by Atty. Gen. Clarence A. J. Meyer, will also appear on the ballot:

"A vote 'for' will provide increase financial support from the state to the public schools of the State of Nebraska. A vote 'against' will retain the present basis of determining financial support from the state to the public schools.

"Shall legislative bill No. 722, enacted by the 83rd Legislature of the State of Nebraska in its second session, the purpose of which is to adopt the Public School Support Act of 1974, to change the basis for determining the non-resident high school tuition rate, and to provide for increased financial support from the state to the public schools of the State of Nebraska, be retained?"

Court Refuses Appeal Of Dairy Law Ruling

By United Press International

The State Supreme Court has refused to reconsider its decision that Nebraska's dairy products pricing law is unconstitutional, court records showed Tuesday.

The High court ruled earlier this year the law was invalid because it was designed to do away with predatory practices in competition, it actually created some.

That led a dissenting judge to write, "It appears to me that the majority opinion judges not the constitutionality of the legislation but its wisdom."

On that basis in part, the Kimball Dairy asked for a reconsideration by the Supreme Court.

The attorneys for the dairy said they felt the majority decision "clearly demonstrates judicial encroachment into economic policy determinations which, under our form of government, the judicial branch is both incompetent and unauthorized to make."

The Supreme Court Clerk's Office said the rejection of the reconsideration motion was handed down and recorded Aug. 1. without comment.

The law in question was set up to prohibit the sale of dairy products below a "minimum basic cost," which was determined by a special board.

Carriers Criticized

Montreux, Switzerland (AP) — Knut Hammarskjold, director general of the International Air Transport Association — OATA — criticized air carriers for failing to agree on next year's North Atlantic charter fares.

Across Nebraska

York Student Receives $500 Grant

Syracuse, N.Y. — A York County, Nebraska student was included on a list of 20 college and university students to receive a $500 Ray Y. Gildea Scholarship in conservation for 1974-75 from the Soil Conservation Society of America. The announcement came at the society's annual meeting here. The Nebraska recipient is Keith Johnson of York, a junior in agronomy at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Battle Creek Store Closing Ends Era

Battle Creek — The closing of the Doering Sundries has brought to a close an era of a family drug business in Battle Creek. When Ruth and Elmer Doering recently closed the doors to the store, due to ill health, it ended 65 years of ownership by the Doering family of a drug store on Main Street here.

Rare Instrument Returns Home

Chadron — A rare musical instrument returned home recently when the daughters of the late E. P. Scott presented Chadron State College with a harmonium. The instrument, resembling a small organ, was given to the sisters by their grandfather in 1904 and had been in the Scott family since 1865. The CSC gift will be displayed in Memorial Hall, which stands at the initial site of the Scott home. E. P. Scott, who was a shoemaker and shoe store operator, came to Chadron in 1885 from southeastern Iowa.

Kerr, Woerth To Share Barber Prize

Two students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln have been selected to receive the Barber Classical Prize, an award established about 50 years ago by the late Prof. Grove E. Barber of the Department of Classics. Winners of the prize, Joni Kerr of Lincoln and Warren Woerth of Scribner, will share $160. They were selected on the basis of scoring highest in special written examinations given students in Latin and Greek. Miss Kerr was highest in the Latin competition and Woerth was tops in Greek.

Haarberg Heads Wheat Advisory Group

Elton Haarberg of Imperial has been elected chairman of the Nebraska Wheat Advisory Committee, succeeding Arlee Phillips of Hemingford, who is retiring from the committee after serving a five-year term, three years as chairman. Ray Davis of Potter, who will complete two years as president of the National Association of Wheat Growers next January, was chosen to succeed Haarberg as vice chairman of the committee.

Cook Case Said Not Bar Concern

It is not the Nebraska Bar Association, but the State Supreme Court, which will determine whether disciplinary action is taken against G. Bradford Cook, according to an NBA official.

"That is a function of the Supreme Court," NBA executive director Burton Berger said.

State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha has been critical of the bar for failing to take any action against Cook, the former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, who admitted he lied to a federal grand jury investigating the Robert Vesco case.

Cook is a member of the Nebraska Bar.

"Though shot through with cowardice and self-interest, the NBA should now be emboldened to move against Cook by the upsurge in public sentiment to root out all vestiges of the Watergate malady," Chambers wrote the NBA last month.

"Not to act decisively immediately is to say that perjury is not inconsistent with good standing in the NBA."

The bar, Chambers wrote, is "a closed fraternity . . . peopled by some fearful, insecure buck-hustlers who will pounce on and make a scapegoat of a little fish, but who have no skillet large enough to fry one the size of G. Bradford Cook.

"If any attorney deserves to be disbarred," he said, "it is one who violates the most sacred trust he has — to be honest in his public dealings."

Berger said he has read the Chambers letter, "but this is not a matter for the bar."

If there were any complaints filed in regard to Cook — and Berger said the court forbids any acknowledgment of a complaint in such cases — it would be forwarded to a committee on inquiry in the appropriate District Court judicial district, Berger said.

Such committees are composed of attorneys appointed by the Supreme Court.

The committee would investigate the case and, if it finds merit in the complaint, send it on to the Supreme Court's advisory committee composed of seven senior lawyers.

If they find such a complaint is justified, they would file it with the court. At that stage, for the first time, such a complaint would become public record.

Then it would be for the court to determine what, if any, disciplinary action is justified, Berger said.

Ex-Attorney General Walter Johnson Dies

Walter Johnson

Former Nebraska Atty. Gen. Walter R. Johnson died Monday night in his home in Arlington, Va. He was 76.

Johnson served five terms as attorney general, 1939-49. He was a congressional lobbyist and president of the National Association of Attorney Generals.

He entered the Nebraska Legislature in 1924 and served four terms, including the first session of the Unicameral.

At 61, he became an administrative law judge with the Federal Trade Commission. He retired at age 75.

While in private practice in Washington, D.C., in 1958, he served on the Federal Board of Paroles.

Johnson was born Oct. 30, 1897, in Omaha. He held degrees from the University of Nebraska and Creighton Law School.

He served in the Air Force during World War I.

Johnson and his wife celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary June 17 in Arlington.

Survivors include his wife, Mary; two sons; two daughters; one sister, and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services are scheduled in Arlington Thursday, with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

NFO Credited With Price Hikes

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Crete — "They called it a spontaneous demonstration, that meat boycott. Baloney, it was organized, not spontaneous, I ought to know because I have organized quite a few spontaneous demonstrations myself," said Erhard Phingston, assistant to the president of the National Farmers Organization (NFO).

Phingston was speaking to the annual joint convention of Nebraska NFO members from the First and Second Congressional Districts.

Phingston made an impassioned plea to NFO members to go out and collect dues from nonpaying members in order to head off action by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) that would force the NFO to either pay off members' loans to it or to collect the dues it says it is using for security on the loans.

"Unless we get this money in, it is all over. This isn't a job your staff can do. You must do it yourself or it will be too late to do anything," he warned.

Phingston gave NFO the sole credit for raising farm prices on milk, meat and grains. "It wasn't the Russian grain sale. We shipped more grain to India under the Johnson administration than we shipped to Russia. It wasn't inflation or anything other than the sacrifices you people in NFO made," he said.

Farmers at the convention seemed to approve of the change in presidents but are waiting to see what President Gerald Ford does before praising or complaining about him.

Milo Barteck of Ithaca suggested that Ford might do well to get rid of Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz and replace him with Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter, who owns a farm in Nebraska.

Clarence Black of Fairbury said: "I think Ford is the right guy to have in there now. We have forgotten how to govern ourselves as a people, lost our faith in our ability to govern ourselves. Perhaps he can bring back some self confidence."

Ralph Williams of Roca said he is a Democrat but "I am satisfied with Ford but he ought to get rid of Butz."

Stanley Fehringer of Bloomfield wants Ford to get rid of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Butz. "Kissinger gave away our food for a peace that is no real peace," he explained.

Joe Haba of Wahoo suggested that "Ford's voting record doesn't look any better than Nixon's, but as an individual he apparently is an honest and sincere man."

NFO members are not generally in favor of anyone issuing a crop report but tend to feel the one issued Monday night might improve grain prices.

T. J. McPherrin of Tecumseh had taken a drive through Iowa, Missouri and southeast Nebraska which made him think the estimates might be high. "We might get half a crop of milo, but 95% of the corn I saw is shot. There is no way this will produce any 29 bushels of corn. If we get an early frost, there won't be any milo either," he said.

Barteck displayed results of a survey by U.S. Department of Agriculture officials on his farmland near Ithaca. None of the fields promised to yield more than three bushels of corn.

"The payment program is full of problems. If I cut my corn for silage, I will get no payment at all, so I am plowing or disking it under and am going to sell my cattle. There is no payment for soybeans, and what you do doesn't come close to meeting expenses," he said.

Williams said he thinks 15 bushels of corn per acre on dryland is a lot closer to what farmers will get than the estimated 29 bushels. "Soybeans might make 15 bushels and milo a third of a normal crop," he said.

Joe Haba said the statistical reporting service put out a good enough report, but he added: "The way they do it is confusing — 12% below what they are talking about. They put out information in such a way that it is very difficult to understand. They need to learn how to communicate with people or the report isn't worth much to farmers," he said.

Haba thinks farmers ought to learn how to read the crop reports and had ought to spend as much time thinking and working on legislation as they do on the tractor.

"You can't just go out there and plant corn. You ought to think some too," he said.

Budget Is $45.5 Million

Omaha (UPI) — The Douglas County Board Tuesday approved a record $45.5 million budget.

The $250,000 increase over last year's budget, largely the result of salary increases, would not result in a tax hike, county officials said. The increase amounted to a one-half of one per cent increase over last year's budget.

The budget was based on the county's 14.28 mills, the maximum county levy under law.

The budget provides raises to county employes ranging from 9 to 14%. It does not provide for any of the 22 additional employes requested by department heads.

The raises, scheduled for Sept. 1, would cost about $1.2 million, according to Budget Director Adrian Jaworski.

Silversmith Advocates Recognition Of Poncas

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Spokane, Wash. — You won't find the Free Ponca Nation anywhere in your road atlas. But its most vocal exponent is alive and doing well at Spokane's Expo '74.

Ponca silversmith Wayne Small Bear of Niobrara can be found in a longhouse in the native American section of Expo's giant Folklife Festival, demonstrating his traditional Indian craft and selling silver rings and bracelets billed as "some of the finest jewelry made by a native artist anywhere."

And if you're interested, he'll gladly pause to talk — because he wants people to understand the importance of nurturing the traditional Indian crafts, the importance of the American Indian Movement (AIM) and the work it's doing to perpetuate them, the importance of regaining government recognition of the terminated Ponca tribe.

The Ponca people lost their reservation on the Niobrara River in 1877, despite guarantees in an 1858 treaty that it would remain theirs. They were sent by force to Indian Territory (Oklahoma), where a third of the small tribe succumbed to hardship and disease.

Some Returned

Some, led by Small Bear's great-great-grandfather Chief Standing Bear, returned and were allowed to stay after a court fight.

But the Nebraska Poncas, who number in the hundreds, have never been recognized as a tribe or granted a new reservation — although their Oklahoma cousins live on "designated land."

"I was appointed by my people to be permanent chief of the Ponca people in Nebraska," says Small Bear, a former Lincoln resident. "We're going for our statutes back. We're going to get the government to recognize the Ponca people in Nebraska."

Small Bear also hopes for a "traditional camp" for Ponca people somewhere in Nebraska, similar to those in Canada and on the Navajo and Papago reservations. There Ponca people could gather to practice their native religion and revive their vanishing culture.

Working closely with AIM leaders, Small Bear says he plans soon to call a meeting of Ponca people in either Lincoln or Omaha and "raise hell if necessary" to call attention to the Poncas' mistreatment.

Very Successful

"I like to spend most of my time at this stage of my life to help my people," Small Bear says. But for the last 15 years he has been a very successful professional silversmith, selling his wares all over the country. "The first piece I made I sold four hours later," he says.

As if to demonstrate the point, an Anglo tourist interrupts to sign $120 worth of travelers checks in payment for a Small Bear bracelet.

Small Bear spent two years learning his craft from an old Navajo man, who taught him to work without a torch, using "charcoal and bellows and all the old hand tools" instead. Silver shavings and borax are used instead of solder "so the thing fuses together all in one piece."

"We don't do anything that's fake, so when a person buys a $150 bracelet, he's getting the real thing," Small Bear says.

TRADITION . . . kept alive by Small Bear, right, and son Wayne.

Although he also works with South Dakota agate, Small Bear gets his main materials — silver and turquoise — from "my mines in Arizona . . . I was down there last winter and picked up enough to last me a year or so."

Although silver is more characteristic of Southwestern tribes, Small Bear uses Plains Indian designs. "We want to stay with our own locale, our own customs," he explains. "We're not portraying the Indian the way he was 100 years ago. We're trying to show what the Indians are today."

An AIM member, Small Bear spent last winter with the Wounded Knee defendants, teaching silversmithing at the AIM survival school in Rapid City.

"The main thing is teaching," he explains, "so the customs, the culture, the traditions, the identity won't be forgotten."

And besides keeping the culture alive, he says, silversmithing gives young Indians a skill they can use to "compete with the white man on his own level."

"All my children are skilled craftsmen," Small Bear says: daughter Cheri is a basketweaver and beadworker, sons Wayne Jr. and John are silversmiths. Four-year-old Sammy, son of Small Bear's young Oglala Sioux wife Linda, is getting acquainted with silver work as well.

Wayne Small Bear Jr. is accomplished enough to work side by side with his father at his Folklife workbench. He represents a unique amalgamation of Indian culture. Son of a Papago mother, he considers himself a Papago; but he learned the Navajo craft from his Ponca father.

It was the traditional Plains religion of prayer, sweat lodges, ceremony and medicine which led him to AIM, the elder Small Bear says. AIM in turn led him to his niche in the Expo Folklife Festival.

AIM was recruiting characteristic Indian craftsmen, he says, and "I was the only one who was able to come out" from the Midwest. He will be at Expo for the duration of the fair, which runs through Nov. 3.

His advice for Indian people: "Hold onto your heritage."

Exon: U.S. Needs Energy Of Youth

By K. STEINBRUEGGE
Star Staff Writer

America needs the involvement and idealism of youth now more than ever, Gov. J. James Exon told about 200 delegates to the 14th annual Nebraska Conference on Youth Tuesday.

"You young people have more enthusiasm, more dedication to doing what is right, than those of us that are a little bit older," Exon said at the conference's closing luncheon.

Referring to the Watergate affair and its aftermath, Exon urged the mostly high school-age delegates to not automatically distrust politicians.

Stressing that "most people involved in politics are people like you," Exon told delegates to get involved constructively in the political arena.

Exon said the American political system of checks and balances works and asked the youth to keep faith in that system. The protection of the American two-party system helps the U.S. to "glow and grow," he said.

"For every (politician) that may do things off color, I can give you 100" that don't, Exon added.

He said youth should work for the people who vote consistently with the way they want them to, regardless of political party or ideology.

Saluting President Gerald Ford as "a shot in the arm for America," Exon said he was proud of Ford's concern with fiscal responsiblity.

Exon also told the delegates to try and involve their home towns in the Community Improvement Award contest, an annual community betterment event.

Following the conference's baseball theme, "NCY Hitting Home," he told the youth "the score will be counted up next year" by totalling the projects and goals accomplished.

In other closing ceremonies, the conference executive committee for 1975 was elected. Chosen as co-chairmen were Doug Andreesen and Diana Whitcomb. Also selected were Mary Hughes, vice-chairman; Jayne Norenberg and Shelley Bursik, co-secretaries; and Jana Norquest, treasurer.

Mark Stortvedt of Norfolk was chosen chairman of the Nebraska Council of Youth, which co-sponsors the conference.

Urbom Rejects Drug Offender's Bail Request

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom has rejected a petition for bail filed by Billy R. Torrence, an Omaha man sentenced to 15 years in prison for drug offenses.

Torrence was sentenced June 15, 1973 in Douglas County District Court for possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

Urbom said Torrence could not seek relief in the federal courts until he exhausted all possible appeals in state courts.

Five Added To State's Death Toll

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents in Nebraska Monday claimed three lives, and another person died Monday night of injuries he received in a motorcycle-car mishap last Saturday.

In addition, authorities in Lincoln released a final report showing that a Firth man died of injuries he suffered in a traffic accident July 24.

The reports upped the state's 1974 traffic toll to 234, compared with 244 on this date last year.

A car-truck collision at a busy Omaha intersection Monday night took the lives of two persons and injured three others.

The victims were identified as Major James F. Kohler, 33, a Strategic Air Command intelligence officer stationed at Offutt Air Force Base for the past four years, and his wife, Carolyn R., 28.

Offutt officials said Kohler's parents live in Neenah, Wis., and that Mrs. Kohler's parents live in Danville, Ohio.

Their three sons were hospitalized, Scott, 5, listed in serious condition; Keith 7, and Cris, 3, both listed in good condition.

The driver of the truck, Michael L. Hawkins, 22, of Omaha, was apparently not injured.

Police said the accident occurred when Hawkins' truck slammed into the Kohler car, which was attempting a left hand turn in front of the truck.

A Gering woman, Margaret Johns, 76, was killed earlier Monday when a car driven by her husband, Ernest, collided with a van at the intersection of Highway 29 and the South Belt Line in Scottsbluff.

The driver of the van, Daley Harsin, also of Gering, told police that the Johns' car pulled into his path.

Both Harsin and Johns sustained minor injuries, as did two other passengers in the Johns' car.

An Omaha man died Monday night of injuries he suffered last Saturday.

The victim was identified as Keith Lea, 21, and police said he was a passenger on a motorcycle being operated by William Werth, 21, also of Omaha.

According to police reports, the cycle collided with a car driven by William Pavey, 60, Omaha, as Pavey attempted to make a left hand turn.

Werth was hospitalized, and is listed in fair condition.

Pavey was not injured

Police say the accident is still under investigation.

The Nebraska Accident Records Bureau reported Tuesday morning that the Aug. 1 death of Albert Smice, 75, of Firth, will be listed as a traffic fatality.

Smice was injured July 24 when his pickup truck ran off a Lancaster County road about 18 miles southeast of Lincoln, went into a ditch, and struck a power pole.

Crash Kills North Platte Marine

North Platte (AP) — Funeral services are pending here for Marine Sgt. John H. Foster Jr., 23, of North Platte, who was killed in a traffic accident in Oceanside, Calif., last Saturday.

Oceanside investigators said Foster lost control of his car, which ran off the road.

Foster, who was stationed at Camp Pendleton, was thrown from the car, and died several hours later at an Oceanside hospital.

Aid To Education Bill Goes On Ballot

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Allen Beermann signed an order Tuesday placing the new state-aid-to-schools bill on the November ballot, but a spokesman for the Nebraska State School Boards Association said efforts to get the measure removed from the ballot will be in the courts by the end of the week.

Beermann said opponents of the bill have gathered 34,259 valid signatures. They needed 23,081.

Beermann said 4,045 of the signature originally submitted in opposition to the bill were not found to be valid, mainly because the signers were not registered voters.

The bill would sharply increase the amount of state money spent to support local schools from the present amount of $55 million to $155 million within two years.

Ross Rasmussen, a lobbyist for the School Boards Association, said a suit will probably be filed in Lancaster County District Court later this week. However, Rasmussen declined to discuss the specific nature of the suit.

The bill, LB772, passed over the veto of Gov. J. James Exon last spring, will appear on the ballot as measure No. 300.

A description of the bill, written by Atty. Gen. Clarence A. J. Meyer, will also appear on the ballot:

"A vote 'for' will provide increase financial support from the state to the public schools of the State of Nebraska. A vote 'against' will retain the present basis of determining financial support from the state to the public schools.

"Shall legislative bill No. 722, enacted by the 83rd Legislature of the State of Nebraska in its second session, the purpose of which is to adopt the Public School Support Act of 1974, to change the basis for determining the non-resident high school tuition rate, and to provide for increased financial support from the state to the public schools of the State of Nebraska, be retained?"

Court Refuses Appeal Of Dairy Law Ruling

By United Press International

The State Supreme Court has refused to reconsider its decision that Nebraska's dairy products pricing law is unconstitutional, court records showed Tuesday.

The High court ruled earlier this year the law was invalid because it was designed to do away with predatory practices in competition, it actually created some.

That led a dissenting judge to write, "It appears to me that the majority opinion judges not the constitutionality of the legislation but its wisdom."

On that basis in part, the Kimball Dairy asked for a reconsideration by the Supreme Court.

The attorneys for the dairy said they felt the majority decision "clearly demonstrates judicial encroachment into economic policy determinations which, under our form of government, the judicial branch is both incompetent and unauthorized to make."

The Supreme Court Clerk's Office said the rejection of the reconsideration motion was handed down and recorded Aug. 1. without comment.

The law in question was set up to prohibit the sale of dairy products below a "minimum basic cost," which was determined by a special board.

The Nebraska recipient is Keith Johnson of York, a junior in agronomy at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Battle Creek Store Closing Ends Era

Battle Creek — The closing of the Doering Sundries has brought to a close an era of a family drug business in Battle Creek. When Ruth and Elmer Doering recently closed the doors to the store, due to ill health, it ended 65 years of ownership by the Doering family of a drug store on Main Street here.

Rare Instrument Returns Home

Chadron — A rare musical instrument returned home recently when the daughters of the late E. P. Scott presented Chadron State College with a harmonium. The instrument, resembling a small organ, was given to the sisters by their grandfather in 1904 and had been in the Scott family since 1865. The CSC gift will be displayed in Memorial Hall, which stands at the initial site of the Scott home. E. P. Scott, who was a shoemaker and shoe store operator, came to Chadron in 1885 from southeastern Iowa.

Two students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln have been selected to receive the Barber Classical Prize, an award established about 50 years ago by the late Prof. Grove E. Barber of the Department of Classics. Winners of the prize, Joni Kerr of Lincoln and Warren Woerth of Scribner, will share $160. They were selected on the basis of scoring highest in special written examinations given students in Latin and Greek. Miss Kerr was highest in the Latin competition and Woerth was tops in Greek.

Elton Haarberg of Imperial has been elected chairman of the Nebraska Wheat Advisory Committee, succeeding Arlee Phillips of Hemingford, who is retiring from the committee after serving a five-year term, three years as chairman. Ray Davis of Potter, who will complete two years as president of the National Association of Wheat Growers next January, was chosen to succeed Haarberg as vice chairman of the committee.

Cook Case Said Not Bar Concern

It is not the Nebraska Bar Association, but the State Supreme Court, which will determine whether disciplinary action is taken against G. Bradford Cook, according to an NBA official.

"That is a function of the Supreme Court," NBA executive director Burton Berger said.

State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha has been critical of the bar for failing to take any action against Cook, the former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, who admitted he lied to a federal grand jury investigating the Robert Vesco case.

Cook is a member of the Nebraska Bar.

"Though shot through with cowardice and self-interest, the NBA should now be emboldened to move against Cook by the upsurge in public sentiment to root out all vestiges of the Watergate malady," Chambers wrote the NBA last month.

"Not to act decisively immediately is to say that perjury is not inconsistent with good standing in the NBA."

The bar, Chambers wrote, is "a closed fraternity . . . peopled by some fearful, insecure buckhustlers who will pounce on and make a scapegoat of a little fish, but who have no skillet large enough to fry one the size of G. Bradford Cook.

"If any attorney deserves to be disbarred," he said, "it is one who violates the most sacred trust he has — to be honest in his public dealings."

Berger said he has read the Chambers letter, "but this is not a matter for the bar."

If there were any complaints filed in regard to Cook — and Berger said the court forbids any acknowledgment of a complaint in such cases — it would be forwarded to a committee on inquiry in the appropriate District Court judicial district, Berger said.

Such committees are composed of attorneys appointed by the Supreme Court.

The committee would investigate the case and, if it finds merit in the complaint, send it on to the Supreme Court's advisory committee composed of seven senior lawyers.

If they find such a complaint is justified, they would file it with the court. At that stage, for the first time, such a complaint would become public record.

Then it would be for the court to determine what, if any, disciplinary action is justified, Berger said.

Ex-Attorney General Walter Johnson Dies

Walter Johnson

Former Nebraska Atty. Gen. Walter R. Johnson died Monday night in his home in Arlington, Va. He was 76.

Johnson served five terms as attorney general, 1939-49. He was a congressional lobbyist and president of the National Association of Attorney Generals.

He entered the Nebraska Legislature in 1924 and served four terms, including the first session of the Unicameral.

At 61, he became an administrative law judge with the Federal Trade Commission. He retired at age 75.

While in private practice in Washington, D.C., in 1958, he served on the Federal Board of Paroles.

Johnson was born Oct. 30, 1897, in Omaha. He held degrees from the University of Nebraska and Creighton Law School.

He served in the Air Force during World War I.

Johnson and his wife celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary June 17 in Arlington.

Survivors include his wife, Mary; two sons; two daughters; one sister, and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services are scheduled in Arlington Thursday, with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

NFO Credited With Price Hikes

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Crete — "They called it a spontaneous demonstration, that meat boycott. Baloney, it was organized, not spontaneous, I ought to know because I have organized quite a few spontaneous demonstrations myself," said Erhard Phingston, assistant to the president of the National Farmers Organization (NFO).

Phingston was speaking to the annual joint convention of Nebraska NFO members from the First and Second Congressional Districts.

Phingston made an impassioned plea to NFO members to go out and collect dues from nonpaying members in order to head off action by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) that would force the NFO to either pay off members' loans to it or to collect the dues it says it is using for security on the loans.

"Unless we get this money in, it is all over. This isn't a job your staff can do. You must do it yourself or it will be too late to do anything," he warned.

Phingston gave NFO the sole credit for raising farm prices on milk, meat and grains. "It wasn't the Russian grain sale. We shipped more grain to India under the Johnson administration than we shipped to Russia. It wasn't inflation or anything other than the sacrifices you people in NFO made," he said.

Farmers at the convention seemed to approve of the change in presidents but are waiting to see what President Gerald Ford does before praising or complaining about him.

Milo Barteck of Ithaca suggested that Ford might do well to get rid of Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz and replace him with Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter, who owns a farm in Nebraska.

Clarence Black of Fairbury said: "I think Ford is the right guy to have in there now. We have forgotten how to govern ourselves as a people, lost our faith in our ability to govern ourselves. Perhaps he can bring back some self confidence."

Ralph Williams of Roca said he is a Democrat but "I am satisfied with Ford but he ought to get rid of Butz."

Stanley Fehringer of Bloomfield wants Ford to get rid of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Butz. "Kissinger gave away our food for a peace that is no real peace," he explained.

Joe Haba of Wahoo suggested that "Ford's voting record doesn't look any better than Nixon's, but as an individual he apparently is an honest and sincere man."

NFO members are not generally in favor of anyone issuing a crop report but tend to feel the one issued Monday night might improve grain prices.

Dairy Co-op Tentatively Agrees To Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's biggest dairy cooperative agreed tentatively Tuesday to settle a government antitrust suit that has its roots in the milk-fund affair.

The co-op, Associated Milk Producers, Inc., agreed to refrain from using threats, coercion and a number of specific practices which the Justice Department had attacked as illegal.

The antitrust division had accused the $1-billion-a-year co-op of using predatory practices to gain a hold on milk production in 14 Midwestern and Southwestern states from Texas to Minnesota. The co-op controls about 12.5% of the nation's milk.

The proposed settlement was filed with U.S. District Court Judge John W. Oliver in Kansas City, Mo. A copy was made available in Washington. Interested parties have 60 days to comment.

The government's handling of the suit has come under investigation by the Senate Watergate Committee, the Watergate Special Prosecution Force and the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry.

Former President Nixon, who had been promised $2 million in campaign donations by the co-op leaders, privately ruled out any antitrust prosecution of the co-op on the same day he raised federal milk price supports in March, 1971, according to a Judiciary Committee transcript of a White House tape recording.

Later the antitrust division repeatedly asked for a grand jury investigation of the co-op's alleged monopoly practices, but then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell vetoed the requests for a criminal probe and directed that a civil lawsuit be brought instead.

The suit was filed Feb. 1, 1972. On April 4, according to Watergate testimony, the co-op's general manager George L. Mehren offered $150,000 in campaign donations to Nixon fund raiser Herbert W. Kalmbach and asked that the antitrust suit be reduced to a "slap on the wrist."

Kalmbach has said he refused. Mehren has denied offering donations to Kalmbach, but says he is unable to explain why he signed $150,000 worth of campaign checks that day, or why he later ordered them voided.

For a time, the milk producers' lawyers contended in court that the Nixon administration had sued them only to extort campaign donations. The lawyers dropped the extortion allegation after Judge Oliver demanded some evidence to back it up.

During the ensuing settlement negotiations, Justice Department lawyers appeared to win concessions on virtually every point at issue in the suit. Lawyers for the co-op have said privately that their bargaining position was weakened by the disclosures in the milk-fund affairs. They feel the government might have been willing to settle for less if the case had been outside the glare of Watergate publicity.

As part of the proposed consent decree the co-op agreed:

— To refrain from using threats, coercion or undue influence to induce milk haulers or processors to discriminate against farmers who are not members of the co-op.

— Not to enter into certain restrictive contracts with processors or haulers.

— Not to buy any milk hauler who is the sole means of getting a non-members' milk to market.

— To refrain from a number of practices designed to discriminate against processors who buy milk from non-members.

— To give members at least one opportunity each year to get out, and to refrain from using threats or coercion to get farmers to join or to keep members from quitting.

— To refrain from selling cheap milk in some areas to punish non-members by driving down their prices.

— To refrain for 10 years from buying any milk plant without advance approval of the Justice Department.

— To file reports with the Justice Department each year for the next 10 years, and to allow government enforcers to inspect the co-op's books, ledgers, accounts, correspondence, memoranda and other documents on request.

Decision On Nixon Up To Prosecutors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said Tuesday he told President Ford that it is up to special Watergate prosecutors to decide whether to bring criminal charges against former President Richard M. Nixon.

Saxbe said Ford made no direct response at their hour-long meeting Tuesday but "I got the feeling that it will just run its course, that he has no intention of intervening one way or the other."

The special Watergate prosecutor has made no decision on the matter and is not expected to in the near future, a spokesman said later.

John Barker, responding to news stories that Prosecutor Leon Jaworski seems to be moving toward getting a grand jury indictment, said there was "nothing in the reports that's very accurate."

Saxbe said he told Ford the decision "was in Mr. Jaworski's arena, and this would just have to run its course."

Saxbe also said Ford asked him to continue as head of the Justice Department, presumably through the remainder of the current administration. He said he agreed to do so.

"The President wanted me to understand he wants me to stay, he wants me to run the department as it had been, he wants it clean and fair," Saxbe said. "I told him I would."

Dairy Co-op Tentatively Agrees To Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's biggest dairy cooperative agreed tentatively Tuesday to settle a government antitrust suit that has its roots in the milk-fund affair.

The co-op, Associated Milk Producers, Inc., agreed to refrain from using threats, coercion and a number of specific practices which the Justice Department had attacked as illegal.

The antitrust division had accused the $1-billion-a-year co-op of using predatory practices to gain a hold on milk production in 14 Midwestern and Southwestern states from Texas to Minnesota. The co-op controls about 12.5% of the nation's milk.

The proposed settlement was filed with U.S. District Court Judge John W. Oliver in Kansas City, Mo. A copy was made available in Washington. Interested parties have 60 days to comment.

The government's handling of the suit has come under investigation by the Senate Watergate Committee, the Watergate Special Prosecution Force and the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry.

Former President Nixon, who had been promised $2 million in campaign donations by the co-op leaders, privately ruled out any antitrust prosecution of the co-op on the same day he raised federal milk price supports in March, 1971, according to a Judiciary Committee transcript of a White House tape recording.

Later the antitrust division repeatedly asked for a grand jury investigation of the co-op's alleged monopoly practices, but then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell vetoed the requests for a criminal probe and directed that a civil lawsuit be brought instead.

The suit was filed Feb. 1, 1972. On April 4, according to Watergate testimony, the co-op's general manager George L. Mehren offered $150,000 in campaign donations to Nixon fund raiser Herbert W. Kalmbach and asked that the antitrust suit be reduced to a "slap on the wrist."

Kalmbach has said he refused. Mehren has denied offering donations to Kalmbach, but says he is unable to explain why he signed $150,000 worth of campaign checks that day, or why he later ordered them voided.

For a time, the milk producers' lawyers contended in court that the Nixon administration had sued them only to extort campaign donations. The lawyers dropped the extortion allegation after Judge Oliver demanded some evidence to back it up.

During the ensuing settlement negotiations, Justice Department lawyers appeared to win concessions on virtually every point at issue in the suit. Lawyers for the co-op have said privately that their bargaining position was weakened by the disclosures in the milk-fund affairs. They feel the government might have been willing to settle for less if the case had been outside the glare of Watergate publicity.

As part of the proposed consent decree the co-op agreed:

— To refrain from using threats, coercion or undue influence to induce milk haulers or processors to discriminate against farmers who are not members of the co-op.

— Not to enter into certain restrictive contracts with processors or haulers.

— Not to buy any milk hauler who is the sole means of getting a non-members' milk to market.

— To refrain from a number of practices designed to discriminate against processors who buy milk from non-members.

— To give members at least one opportunity each year to get out, and to refrain from using threats or coercion to get farmers to join or to keep members from quitting.

— To refrain from selling cheap milk in some areas to punish non-members by driving down their prices.

— To refrain for 10 years from buying any milk plant without advance approval of the Justice Department.

— To file reports with the Justice Department each year for the next 10 years, and to allow government enforcers to inspect the co-op's books, ledgers, accounts, correspondence, memoranda and other documents on request.

Decision On Nixon Up To Prosecutors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said Tuesday he told President Ford that it is up to special Watergate prosecutors to decide whether to bring criminal charges against former President Richard M. Nixon.

Saxbe said Ford made no direct response at their hour-long meeting Tuesday but "I got the feeling that it will just run its course, that he has no intention of intervening one way or the other."

The special Watergate prosecutor has made no decision on the matter and is not expected to in the near future, a spokesman said later.

John Barker, responding to news stories that Prosecutor Leon Jaworski seems to be moving toward getting a grand jury indictment, said there was "nothing in the reports that's very accurate."

Saxbe said he told Ford the decision "was in Mr. Jaworski's arena, and this would just have to run its course."

Saxbe also said Ford asked him to continue as head of the Justice Department, presumably through the remainder of the current administration. He said he agreed to do so.

"The President wanted me to understand he wants me to stay, he wants me to run the department as it had been, he wants it clean and fair," Saxbe said. "I told him I would."

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 8-14

36,000 mile guarantee. Steel-Track Belted Grappler I

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

50% to 60% off 2ND tire

When you buy 1st at regular price plus F.E.T. each and Trade-in Tires

2 steel belts stabilize tread to help resist cuts, punctures, impact.
